Classes Jammed As Enrollment Hits Record 8285

By Paul Plinsky

Jamming corridors and classrooms to capacity, an all-time record 8285 students have registered here this fall, raising the college's enrollment to the second highest of the two-year colleges in California.

According to figures just released by Mary Jane Learnard, college registrar, the daytime enrollment total of 6228 and the evening division figure of 1657 both stand at all-time highs. Of the combined record total of more than 8000, Miss Learnard attributed the unexpected increase to returning students rather than new registrants. The number of new students (mostly from local high schools) was anticipated and did not exceed expectations.

The surprise "rush," however, came from the largest per cent increase of returnees in the college's history, many of whom are in attendance here for their fifth semester, Miss Learnard explained.

Last semester's enrollment of 7536 and the Fall 1960 total of 7503 were both surpassed this semester by approximately 800 students.

AS ROGER MARIS knows, records were made to be broken! Rog just missed a tie, but registration here this semester went way over the top. Crowded parking conditions at the left signify the magnitude of the unexpected student overflow.

To alleviate partially the present crowded conditions in the classrooms, a Communications G-5A section has one of its lectures scheduled for Tuesdays at 7:10 a.m.

This semester's record-breaking leap over the 8000 mark places the college second to Los Angeles City College as the two-year college with the largest enrollment in the state, confirmed in a telephone interview with Lloyd D. Luckmann, co-ordinator, dean of instruction.

Previously, Pasadena City College had held second place. Complete figures revealing the number of students here from each local high school are still in the process of being tabulated.

CPS Offers Inexpensive Insurance Plan To Students; Applications Due Thursday

By Herman Kligerman

Deadline for students here to make application for the California Physicians Service Student Health Plan has been announced as tomorrow, Thursday, by Ralph O. Hillsman, dean of men.

Eligibility requirements for this policy are that a student be regularly enrolled at the college and that he be a member of the Associated Students during the current semester.

Thespians Plan Drama Productions For Fall C-Hours

Because the Associated Students have been unable to appropriate the necessary funds, drama activities in the new theater will be limited to one major production this semester in January; however, the department will present College Hour shows approximately every two weeks.

Students, faculty and public have discouraged a more extensive program by their limited attendance, but Michael Griffin, drama director, hopes to arouse interest through experimental theater.

Actor Rod Steiger Set To Appear At College Friday

The essence of Ernest Hemingway comes here this Friday during College Hour in the form of Rod Steiger, who recently starred in Short Happy Life at the Alcazar.

The play is loosely based on Hemingway's life and incorporates much of his work into one story.

Steiger was invited by Michael Griffin of the drama department, who was favorably impressed with the rather unusual production, which is now being slightly revised by its author, A. E. Hotchner, after the play closed last week.

This College Hour shows will be performed in the round with the audience seated on the stage.

Styles in Shakespearean Acting, first of the series, will be followed by Pullman Car Hiawatha, Ionesco's Foursome, and Death Of Bessie Smith, which has been doing well off Broadway.

In addition, works of Genet, Beckett and Sartre will be chosen, but because of the small seating capacity on stage, only Associated Student card holders will be admitted to the avant garde efforts.

Griffin looks forward to his single full scale shows, Shakespeare's King John. The play is an actor's piece and rarely done, even though many actors achieved greatness through it.

As it stands now, Griffin said, the show will run for one night unless presale tickets or some other indication demonstrates more enthusiasm than has been shown in the past.

One encouraging factor, Griffin points out, is the large enrollment in drama classes. Perhaps this semester's efforts will revive interest in the department's dramatic presentations, Griffin said.

His classes are full of many students who intend to take advantage of the unparalleled facilities that the college offers in this field.

Through the joint co-operation of the AS, the college administration and the CPS this plan was derived and offered to interested students inexpensively.

Hillsman urged students to consider this seriously since there is no college provision to handle injuries or sicknesses other than the minor type that can be handled by the registered nurse on campus daily.

Dues are payable in advance. Cost is $13 per semester or $26 for the entire college year. Coverage includes weekends, holidays during the year, and, if one has signed up for the Spring semester, the summer vacation period also.

The plan is one of accidental coverage on a limited basis. If such a plan was applied for outside, the costs could range as high as $20 quarterly, according to the dean.

Hospital benefits, X-ray and laboratory tests, surgical benefits, and physician visits in the hospital for illness or injury are among the services covered. In addition, out-patient medical benefits for injury only are handled by this policy.

Those enrolled in the plan have their choice of physician.

Full details and applications are available in Dean Hillsman's or Dean Mary Golding's office, at the Smith Hall bank (comptroller's office) or at the new AS office, S-134.

"If the demand is considerable today and tomorrow, Hillsman stated that the deadline could be extended slightly.

The response to this plan was very good in past semesters, and Hillsman expects a record number of applicants this semester.

Africa Week Visitors Here Stunned By Loss Of UN's Hammarskjold

By Richard Boyle

The tragic death of United Nations Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold September 18 cast a sense of despair among Africa Week visitors to the college last Wednesday.

They were here in observance of the week's Education Day, officially proclaimed such by Mayor George Christopher to afford representatives of various African nations an opportunity to see the city's schools in action.

In an exclusive interview, Abdou Sidikow, foreign secretary general of the infant Niger Republic, through his French interpreter said with a note of sorrow, "Hammarskjold's death was a great misfortune to the small nations."

"I was very much impressed with the similarity of feeling between our nations over the Secretary General's death; perhaps this will make closer the ties between your country and mine."

A note of hope was added when Sidikow, dressed in his long white native robes, commented on the forthcoming United Nations' East-West battle over the Soviet's three-power secretary generalship or "Troika" proposal.

"The people of Niger will lean toward the West, but not because of sentimental reasons."

Hopefully, the statesman added that Hammarskjold's death might make the Congolese "come to a peaceful solution of their problems."

A second Africa Week visitor, El Medi Ben Aboud, Morocco's ambassador to the United States, stated to Alfred Tapsen's political science class that "the neutrals will reject the Soviet's proposal."

"We are anxious to know if the UN will be preserved," he added. "A more workable change is needed to the single secretariat, but I hope that the Soviets will not paralyze the UN by forcing its plan."

"The UN is the only hope of mankind and it is the salvation of the small nation. We must find a way to work out this problem or all is lost," the former Moroccan delegate to the United Nations pleaded.

In addition to Tapsen's class, Irving Witt's sociology class was also visited.

After they had toured the schools, the guests again met at the college for an Education Day luncheon in the cafeteria.

IFC Slates Open House Tonight In Smith Hall

Inaugurating the fraternity activities for the fall semester, the Inter-Fraternity Council is sponsoring its 17th semi-annual consecutive open house at 7:30 o'clock tonight in Smith Hall, Bob Rogers, IFC president, announced today.

At the affair all men desiring fraternal affiliation at the college will have a chance to meet the officers and members of each of the eight organizations participating in a question and answer period.

The program will begin with welcoming addresses by Ralph Hillsman, dean of men, and IFC President Rogers. After this each of the individual presidents of the eight fraternities attending will give a short talk clarifying his group's aims, activities, and past and present records.

It was also pointed out by Rogers that an interested student may sign up with as many fraternities as he wishes without obligating himself in any way, and that the final choice is entirely up to the individual prospective rushee.

An IFC rushing fee is required of all students attending any of the rushing functions. There will be facilities set up at tonight's affair to collect money from those who haven't already paid.

Also, if a man paid this fee last semester, but did not pledge a fraternity, he will not have to pay again.

Entertainment will be put on by each of the eight fraternities. They are Gamma Phi Upsilon, Alpha Sigma Delta, Phi Beta Delta, Beta Tau, Zeta Phi Sigma, Tau Chi Sigma, Alpha Phi Epsilon and Alpha Kappa Rho.

The IFC officers for the fall semester are Rogers, president; Fred Cherniss, vice president; Bob Rauh, treasurer; Don Disterheft, secretary, and Don Tarantino, rushing chairman.

Symphony Ticket Demand Forces Tight Allotment

A growing demand for a limited supply of the specially priced tickets now available for the San Francisco Symphony season has made necessary a new system of distribution, according to Meyer Cahn, music instructor and Symphony Forum adviser here.

The response for these tickets, which are sponsored by the Symphony Forum, and which makes possible a very substantial savings, has been so great in the past years that it was decided this year to have interested students apply.

Applications may now be obtained at the switchboard, S-169, near the main entrance in Science Hall.

A list of international guest performers is featured so that each of the 19 concerts offered this season will be highlighted by a special appearance.

Six guest conductors will appear, headed by Pierre Monteux, once the conductor of the San Francisco Symphony, and the well-known Andre Kostelanetz, who in recent years has recorded music from classic symphonies to popular songs.

Also scheduled to appear is the Russian composer-conductor Aram Khachaturian in a concert of his own works.

A sampling of the list of the guest artists reveals such renowned names as Robert Casadesu, pianist; Gregor Piatagorsky, cellist; and Yehudi Menuhin and Isaac Stern, violinists.

Cafe Problem Launches Action By Elworthy

Operation Turnover, launched today by Sherm Elworthy, student government adviser, will be a campaign to encourage students to use the college cafeteria facilities conscientiously, that is by observing the posted snack and lunch time hours of service there.

The breakfast and snack hours are from 8 to 11 a.m. and the lunch time from 11 a.m. until closing time at 1:15 p.m. The lunch period is what concerns Elworthy more because that is when the accommodating problem is most acute.

Also, he stressed the college regulation that anyone not registered here cannot make use of the cafeteria and anyone violating this rule will be asked to leave the premises on the spot.

There are 6228 day students registered here and the college eating facilities can seat no more than 650 persons at one time.

However, the newly enlarged Student Union scheduled to reopen last Monday with about 150 seats will help to relieve the present overcrowded conditions in the cafeteria.

Elworthy also stated that most students do co-operate by not monopolizing too much the seating facilities in the cafeteria, but the few who do not co-operate are sufficient to create the existing problem.

Sorority Sign-Ups For Rushing Start Here Next Monday

With sorority rushing set to start Monday and run for one week, Kathy Hallock, president of Theta Tau and the Inter-Sorority Council, announced that women students wishing to join may register any time between 8:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. each day in Dean Mary Golding's office.

To be eligible to rush, women must have 12 units of college work with a "C" average or better. There will be a $1 fee for entrants.

Students who register for rushing will be invited to a tea Sunday, October 8, from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. at Laurel Hall, 2676 California Street.

Sororities participating in the rush week and sponsoring the tea are Delta Psi, Delta Sigma Tau, Gamma Kappa Beta, Gamma Sigma Sigma, Kappa Phi, Phi Beta Rho, Theta Tau and Zeta Chi.

Featured also that week by the sororities will be a display of their pledge outfits in the showcase at the south end of Science Hall.

A collection of trophies and a scrapbook will be shown there also.

Last semester Gamma Kappa Beta, maintaining a 2.5 grade-point average, won for the first time the Margaret Dougherty trophy for the top scholastic average among the college's sororities.

Runner-up for the trophy was Gamma Sigma Sigma with a 2.4 grade-point average.

Overflow Enrollment Stresses Value Of Two-Year Colleges

WITH the largest enrollment in its 26-year history, City College of San Francisco has begun another semester of higher education. The unexpected overflow of students in the classrooms here emphatically typifies the rising tide of America's college enrollment in general, and the important role of the two-year college in particular.

Last semester The Guardsman aimed editorial comment at apathy toward student government and student activities here and pointed out that the two-year college possessed certain disadvantages of unity and solidarity that four-year institutions of learning were not hampered by.

But rather than rationalize, let's look at the other side of the problem in order to explain (1) why the two-year college is attracting such large numbers and (2) what its ADVANTAGES are.

College Registrar Mary Jane Learnard recently pointed to three causes for the large enrollment here this fall.

Economic—Bay Area employment is at a low ebb, particularly where student placement is concerned. This brings students here.

Political—The Berlin crisis has increased the draft rate and deferments for students require a full unit load. This brings more students here.

Social—The state's universities have stiffened their entrance requirements considerably, and this, too, brings students here.

City College, as a two-year college, does have several advantages. Financially, with no tuition, it affords students a chance to save for later expenses at a university.

Scholarship, the classroom and laboratory courses here, such as freshman English and chemistry, are less crowded than at universities and more individual attention means better understanding of subject matter.

Psychologically, a student just out of high school can adjust slowly to his new collegiate environment; the abrupt change-over to a community-like university can often shatter his dreams and dismantle his stability.

The cross-section of students here is as varied as it is vast. They're on their way to other colleges, taking semi-professional courses, or enrolling for general education. With many different interests but ONE main goal (education), more than 8000 men and women have enrolled in City College of San Francisco this fall.

Hemingway is dead. The world needs new writers. Hammarskjöld is dead. The world needs new diplomats. Education is the key, and the two-year college is the opening door.

Two-year colleges are "junior" only in the sense that they're lower division; they are not by any means secondary or second rate.

The Spectator Thrills And Suspense Make 'Guns' A Must

By Herman Kligerman

SHEER determination on the part of six courageous men coupled with intense suspense throughout make The Guns Of Navarone a must-see on everyone's movie list.

The Carl Foreman production in Cinemascope and color is still going strong after more than a three-month stay at San Francisco's St. Francis theater.

Contrary to some beliefs, The Guns is not a western. It is a legend con-

Early Mo(u)rning Class Is Available To Eager Students

Rights of students to complain when they must rise for 8 a.m. classes are slowly and subtly being encroached on by scheduling of one class an hour earlier.

Because of the great influx of new students to the college, it was found that all scheduling space for communications 5A lectures was used, according to James Billwiller, director of the English department and acting dean of instruction for Dean William Mayo, who is on Sabbatical leave.

It was necessary to add another section either late in the afternoon or early in the morning, Billwiller said, and because of the lateness of other classes already scheduled, the morning class was selected.

The section which was opened was quickly filled, and students are now attending classes conducted by Carolyn Riedeman at 7 a.m. on Tuesdays. Tardiness is relatively infrequent, Billwiller commented, and the only complaints were from one or two students who thought when they enrolled that the class was to be held at 7 o'clock in the evening.

cerning huge radar-controlled guns on the island of Navarone, a highly guarded German settlement on the coast of Greece.

Treacherous schemes to blow this dreaded installation off the map, as an armada of British warships approach, make this epic's climax one of the most thrilling to flash across the silver screen.

During the two-and-a-half-hour duration of the picture, the viewer will frequently find himself at the edge of his theater seat.

Take, for example, the group's treacherous voyage over stormy seas which actually injured several of the film's stars since no doubles were used.

Adding to the excitement was the personal feud aboard the sailing vessel and the scaling of an apparently unclimbable cliff which may make City College students watching the picture think of good old "Hill 29."

Filmed on location in Greece, the production stars several veterans in film-making. In the leading roles are Gregory Peck, David Niven, Stanley Baker, Anthony Quinn and teenage idol James Darren in a strictly serious role as one of the "brave ones."

For probably the first time since the gimmick has been used, it was understandable why the theater's management forbade seating during the final half-hour of the adventure.

Coming out of the St. Francis one drizzly Sunday afternoon, this writer couldn't help but associate The Guns with another Columbia Pictures blockbuster from a few years back that won the coveted Academy Award—The Bridge On The River Kwai.

It won't be a bit surprising if the studio's latest bid for an Oscar wins the honor when awards are given out again next year.

24 Join Campus Police

Cheat You May,
Beat You Can't...

By Dave Grievie

If you can't beat them, join them, is a phrase which may or may not be applicable to the staff of eight Campus Police who hold down the college fort, in that if you're tired of receiving citations, try issuing them.

Only temporarily are the local gendarmes short handed; however, there are 24 spanking clean uniforms awaiting 24 brand new occupants, already enrolled, to fill them.

The big date is October 10, when the green but fair-haired boys will be transformed into two dozen policemen by the "ordaining" hand of City Police Chief Tom Cahill.

The deadline to remember is October 2, when at 4 a.m. the present staff of campus blues will be waiting with pencils in hand to issue citations to cars without student parking permits. If a student is foolish enough to park illegally in student facilities after the latter mentioned date, he either has cohorts on the force or goes to church each week.

student parking violations, with 2000 citations last semester and potentially more this fall.

Tips to "crazy" students trying to outsmart the law are few and far between, a fact emphasized by past experiences which have not foiled the keen eyes of the blue-coats.

Notes, left by students inside and outside cars, appear in all forms of size, legibility and content, but have one thing in common, they don't for the college cop.

Another favorite of the previously cited student is to wrap an old ticket around the windshield wiper of his car. His hopes of succeeding where his blood brother, the note leaver, failed. That trick is one of the first lessons learned by the rookie traffic cop.

A Man With Patience

Hollywood Vacation Nets
Actor Leff Bit Part On TV

Patience must be a virtue of an actor as Henry Leff, television and radio broadcasting instructor here, can testify.

While on vacation in Hollywood this summer, Leff got a telephone call asking him to read for a bit part in the new television series Follow The Sun.

He "followed" through and landed the part which, because it is the opening scene, is the attention-getter. Here's where the patience comes in.

On August 28, Leff appeared on the set at 6:45 in the morning. He was in costume at 7:30, and on location by 8:30. All day he sat around while the camera crew took shots of passengers in a car.

For the scene which he didn't expect would take more than a day to shoot, he appeared bright and early on the second day of shooting.

This time he got some action. His part was to drive a car up a curving driveway and stop at a precise point. This looked easy enough for a scene expected to last about one minute.

Leff started up the driveway perfectly, but when he applied the brakes the car came to a jerky stop.

Leff just wasn't used to power brakes.

On that day Leff needed all the patience he could muster.

Rams Shut Out Los Angeles In Season Opener

By Ivan Temes

VAN NUYS, Sept. 22—Unleashing an attack featuring a host of small, swift backs and a strong, unyielding defense, the Rams gridders tonight opened their season on a highly successful note as they powered past outmanned Los Angeles Valley College, 27-0.

Coach Grover Klemmer's charges, using a halfback flanker on every play, jumped in front with 6:18 left to play in the first quarter when Al Raine burst through left tackle for a 14-yard touchdown and the Southern hosts never recovered.

So staunch was the Ram defensive unit that it held the Rams defense minus eight yards rushing for the game and only with five minutes left to play could the hometowners penetrate past the victor's 47-yard stripe.

Time and again big tackle Jim Baffico looked like the fifth man in the losers' backfield as he burst past opposing linemen to send the bewildered Valley signal-callers scurrying for cover.

Though in front by only the touchdown at the intermission, the Rams augmented that with a trio of six-pointers in the second half, the last two coming within a three-minute span.

Early in the third stanza, speedster Ron Coleman took Randy Autentico's short pass and raced 24 yards to pay-dirt.

Respective passes of 14 and 10 yards to Raine and Ernie Oliver along with Bob Taylor's six-yard run had set up the score.

Showing excellent field-generalship after a Los Angeles punt, quarterback Ben Winslow took his team from its own 20 to the Monarch 30 from where he connected on a pass up the middle to Verdel Price, who cut to his left, viciously straitjacketing the last defender, and went in to score.

Price's interception set up the final touchdown, a 12-yard pass from Winslow to little John Daigle, who skirted right end.

Chuck Oushan's 17-yard run was the longest from scrimmage as the winners, led by Tom Piggee and Taylor who combined for 88 yards, outscored Valley 186 to minus eight and outplayed them 139-70.

Much credit is due the defensive linemen who supported Baffico and veteran end Terry Fischer, among them Cal Rothman, Alex Darnes, Jack Burgett, Dennis Drucker and Dave Urrea, whose driving effort picked off a Monarch pass in the first half.

RAMBLINGS

By Ivan Temes

THOUGH Coach Grover Klemmer's Rams gridders will never plunge low enough to catch a glimpse of the hapless Oakland Raiders, the squad will still run into trouble finding someone to fill the shoes of departed Gary Lewis.

The powerful all-anything backfield star for the Rams last year now should be destined for national prominence as a fullback for the not-so-powerful Washington State Cougars.

As Coach Grover Klemmer states, "We have no men in our backfield weighing even 180 pounds this year, and can only hope that our small, speedy runners are able to carry the load."

Ex-Polytechnic High star Tom Piggee, a top hurdler who showed brilliantly on the football field for the college last year, will have to carry the brunt of the load, though not a big man, may be called upon to fill the fullback slot.

Otherwise top hopes rest with a pair of 5-7, 150-pound freshmen in the halfback positions, Al Raine from Mission High and Washington's Ron Coleman.

WITH THREE new professional athletic clubs set to begin operations in San Francisco this fall, the college may be able to play a part in the success of at least one of the teams.

Though the San Francisco Saint basketballers boast such former Na-

Four Vets Lead Booters In Pre-Season Test Saturday

With the return of four seasoned veterans from last year's soccer team, Coach Roy Diederichsen is preparing his team for a pre-season test this weekend in the Northern California Intercollegiate Soccer Conference.

The competition this weekend is with other teams in the Northern California Intercollegiate Soccer Conference at the University of San Francisco's Ulrich Field.

Action will take place at noon on Saturday and will continue at 11 a.m. on Sunday.

Other teams competing in the individual eliminations include San Francisco State, Stanford University of California, University of San Francisco and the University of California at Davis.

Winners at the end of competition on Sunday will be given a perpetual trophy by the Olympic Club.

Last year's soccer team tied for first place with the University of California but was unable to make the trip back to St. Louis for the regional finals.

Because this college is a two-year institution (the only such member in the conference) and National Collegiate Athletic Association rules permit four-year colleges only to participate, the Rams did not compete.

Coach Diederichsen has won commendation for molding players from all over the world into a consistently outstanding soccer team.

The team plays with the knowledge that even though they may sweep an entire season's play they will be ineligible to compete in the finals back East because of the technical rule.

This semester's schedule is as follows:

Oct. 6—San Jose State, here
Oct. 14—University of Santa Clara, there
Oct. 21—University of California, there
Oct. 28—San Francisco State, here
Nov. 4—California A.C., here
Nov. 11—Stanford, there
Nov. 18—U.S.F.C., here.

Gymnasium Gets Major Facelift

Anyone who visited the men's gymnasium during the summer witnessed part of the complete "facelifting" that was accomplished there.

According to Jack Gaddy, director of athletics, everything in the building was either cleaned, sanded, painted, varnished or repaired, except the body-building room which is only a year old.

Probably the largest bit of facelifting, or "floor-lifting," created completely renovated basketball courts. This included a sanding and varnishing job over the whole gymnasium floor, as well as repainting of all necessary lines on the courts and the painting of the backboards.

Even the bleachers surrounding the courts were repaired, sanded and varnished so there are no more splinters to puncture legs and clothes.

Glancing around at the new floor and shining walls of the gymnasium, Gaddy expressed the hope that the student body would co-operate in keeping the "new" men's gymnasium in top shape.

AS WAS REPORTED earlier in the year, tennis standout Bob Siska has officially enrolled here and Coach Roy Diederichsen couldn't possibly be happier.

The 18-year-old former Junior Davis Cupper toured Europe and the United States this summer and fared well in the Men's Nationals before bowing to the old pro Vic Seixas.

Speed Squad Seeks Victory In Inter-City Traditional

By Dave Kleinberg

Presenting a light backfield and a heavy line, the Ram footballers will try to make it two straight wins over Los Angeles City College this Friday in the college stadium. Kickoff will be at 2:30 p.m.

The departure of Gary Lewis, one of the college's best backs since the 1948 days of Ollie Matson, has left Coach Grover Klemmer without an experienced fullback.

The 6-3, 215-pound powerdriver, who was named the outstanding back in the Big Eight Conference last year while playing fullback and quarter back, transferred to Washington State along with Herman McKee, a 9.6 sprinter who had been groomed to back Lewis.

Tom Piggee, the Rams' returning Big Eight All-Conference halfback, takes over the vacated fullback spot. Although the 175-pound Piggee, who gained 675 yards in 91 tries for a 7.4 yard average last year, is the only experienced back, help is expected from the incoming freshmen.

Claude Shipp, Ron Coleman, Verdel Price and Al Raine, all light backs weighing between 150 and 175 pounds, are speedsters. Coleman and Shipp are All-City picks from Washington High.

Raine Potential Standout: Raine, also an All-City selection, has run the 75-yard dash in 7.7 seconds. Coleman, with his speed and shiftness, could develop into a top back.

Randy Autentico, a freshman from Antioch High, has run the squad in practice, looking particularly effective on the short pass. Ben Winslow from Washington and Joe Alvarez, All-City from Lowell, have the reputations of being fine throwers.

Competition Split: Veterans Terry Fischer, Ray Gregains and Ernest Oliver are fighting for the two end spots. All saw considerable action during the Rams' third place finish last season.

Klemmer should be happy with his line. Dennis Urrea, the city's outstanding high school lineman, and Dave Urrea, a 6-0, 200-pound All-City guard from Lowell, will add depth at guard.

The only problem Klemmer has in this department is where to play them.

Linemen Switched: Two ex-guards, 230-pound Jim Baffico and 215-pound Jack Burgett, have been moved to the starting tackle positions.

It's fairly certain no one will take the starting job from veteran guard Alex Darnes, who made second team All-Conference last year. This means the guards may be alternated or Drucker or Urrea moved to tackle.

Freshman tackle Willie Lawson, a mammoth 6-3, 265-pound tackle, could be much help if he comes through.

"We have very good guards," Klemmer said. "This is definitely the strongest position on the line," he said.

Center Spot Set: Cliff Vattione, the starting center, and veteran Clarence Scanlan have that position well earned for. Bob Kuech, a man Klemmer had high hopes for, is probably out of the season with a bad knee.

Graduation claimed All-Conference tackle Ed Johnson and second string All-Conference guard Jack Hickie.

Led by Lewis and Piggee, Klemmer's athletes rallied from a 6-0 first quarter deficit to defeat the Los Angeles Cubs 13-6, in Los Angeles last year.

The victory gave the Rams their tenth win in 24 games against the Southerners. One ended in a tie, Friday's game, the Rams' second and last pre-season game, should be a test for their league opener against San Mateo on October 7.

Even the bleachers surrounding the courts were repaired, sanded and varnished so there are no more splinters to puncture legs and clothes.

Glancing around at the new floor and shining walls of the gymnasium, Gaddy expressed the hope that the student body would co-operate in keeping the "new" men's gymnasium in top shape.

Radio Broadcast To Lounge Foreseen

KCSF, campus radio station, will begin a new program broadcast to the lounge provided money is appropriated by the Associated Students for a wire that will carry the show from the arts building.

Since the live broadcasts from the cafeteria have been discontinued, Harris is looking forward to this second opportunity from the lounge to provide members with practical experience in production of a radio show.

Presently the organization provides announcers for sports, rallies and numerous other gatherings; it operates Campus Carrier, the announcement program, and it tapes or records speakers, concerts and campus activities.

The club also has an extensive record library, which it makes available to all other college groups.

Membership is open to any interested student, Harris said.

Sack Social, Fashion Show On Tap For Women Students Today

Members of the Associated Women Students will be eating their lunches out of a paper bag when they attend the Sack Social today from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. in bungalow 6.

Barbara Sperring, AWS board member, explained that any woman student enrolled in the college is invited to attend. If she is interested in getting good grades, meeting other women from the college and a showing of a few fashions, she is urged to come.

Since many disappointed little sisters were unable to locate their big sisters during registration, today's program was planned to help freshmen students to meet their sophomore sisters and each other.

The agenda includes a guest speaker, Sherrie Moores, president of Alpha Gamma Sigma, college honor society. Her topic will be Tips On How To Get Top Flight Grades On Midterms.

A few dresses, appropriate for the upcoming Frosh Ball, will be informally shown. Freshman women who are not sure of the meaning of "dressed" will benefit from the presentation.

The Sack Social is planned to fall within most AWS members' lunch hour. Jan Doudie, president, also urged all of the college's women to attend and to be sure to bring their sack lunches.

Before any posters are placed on the college bulletin boards, they must be approved by the chairman of the Publications Board, Plansky explained. All posters may be approved by him in The Guardsman editorial office, S-304, each weekday at 10 a.m.

Because of the increased enrollment and addition of new buildings to the campus any student designing a poster is asked to keep the size of the poster at a maximum of quarter size, or 11 by 14 inches.

The only exception to these size regulations are campaign posters for student government elections here, which come under the direction and discipline of the election commission, a cabinet officer.

ISC Sponsors Fall Tea

Sunday Marks Initiation Of Sorority Rushing Activities

First event of sorority rushing activities for the fall semester is the Inter-Sorority Council tea, Sunday from 2 to 4:30 p.m. at Laurel Hall, 2576 California Street.

Kathy Hallock, president of the Inter-Sorority Council, said she is looking forward to a big turnout of sorority rushes this semester. Miss Hallock said that each registrant will receive an invitation to the tea during rushing registration, which ends Friday. This follows the orientation at College Hour Friday in S-100. Women interested can sign up in S-100.

In order to rush, women must be enrolled in 12 units of college work with a "C" average or better, and pay a registration fee of $1.

The tea and the rushing events which follow are designed to give women students an opportunity to acquaint themselves with the sororities.

Representatives of each sorority and their sponsors will alternate in a receiving line where they can meet the rushes.

Sorority presidents are Jeri Vickers, Delta Psi; Jeri Schutte, Phi Beta Rho; Sandy Thompson, Kappa Phi; Lois Kinney, Delta Sigma Tau; Diane Kinsey, Zeta Chi; Clare Weiner, Gamma Sigma Sigma, and Mary Ann Grandmeyer, Gamma Kappa Beta.

Sorority sponsors are Martha Scott, Vivian Ward, Katherine Hondius, Norma Carlisle, Marceline McDermott, Louise Hepper, Melia Furgis and Deen Mary Golding.

Miss Hallock said, "Rushing will give women a chance to meet new friends and attend many new interesting activities with those of similar interests."

Tickets may be purchased from any Phi Beta Delta fraternity member or at the door on the night of the dance. Music will be furnished by Sal Vance and his orchestra.

Other fraternity members who are assisting with the preparations are John Margaroni, vice president; Greg Springotti, secretary, and Ed Rodriguez, treasurer.

Along with the sponsorship of this annual dance, the fraternity, represented by the president, faculty sponsor and dean of men, presents a service award at the end of each semester to the organization which contributed the most to the college and to the community.

Donald Marcus of the counseling staff here is faculty adviser to the fraternity.

Drama Skit Highlights College Hour Programs

Drama students will present Ionesco's Foursome this Friday during College Hour in the new arts building theater, Michael Griffin, drama director, said today.

This performance will be in the round with the audience seated on the stage, the third drama performance of the semester.

According to Griffin, there will be only one major production this semester because of the lack of funds. Shakespeare's King John will be presented in January with a cast of 60 to 75 members.

The new method of registration has been praised because it ends the pre-registration crush and emphasizes studies.

Problems encountered during this newly tried method, McCloud stated, were multiplied when 400 more students enrolled at the college than had been anticipated.

This caused many classes to be filled and closed before the second or third day of registration.

Mix-up in room numbers caused some confusion, but McCloud said that whole system worked out well.

President Louis G. Conlan has formed a committee to study the problems that were encountered during registration.

Ushering Provides Cultural Advantages

Providing an opportunity for a student to attend rich cultural performances without any cost, the ushering service, already in progress, has approximately 200 participants for the musical events in the Opera House and Civic Auditorium, according to Mary Golding, dean of women here.

On September 29 the usherers sided the theater during the presentation of Verdi's Rigoletto. This year, the 39th California Opera Series also includes such operas as A Midsummer Night's Dream and Turandot.

Ushering services will also be needed during the 19 forum concerts of the San Francisco Symphony.

Pre-Programming For Spring Starts Here Next Week

KATHY HALLOCK, ISC president, announced that this Friday terminates rushing registration. Sign-ups are still being accepted in S-150.

Pre-programming for Spring registration will start at the beginning of next week, Walter McCloud, counselor here, said last week.

Each student planning to register for the spring semester must fill out a free hour form and a self-addressed post card, McCloud said.

The form and the card will be obtainable in Science Hall, the library and Smith Hall.

After the student has filled out the form and card he will return them to S-117 or to the counseling offices.

When filling in the free hour form the student will indicate the times he will be available for programming the spring semester.

The self-addressed card the student has turned in will, in turn, be mailed to him informing him as to the time of his counseling appointment.

Pre-programming takes about ten days. Any student who does not turn in a form and card during this time does not keep his appointment will receive a lower registration number, McCloud warned.

Last semester was the first time students received their registration numbers on a scholarship, seniority basis.

In previous semesters students obtained registration numbers on a first-come, first-serve basis.

The new method of registration has been praised because it ends the pre-registration crush and emphasizes studies.

Problems encountered during this newly tried method, McCloud stated, were multiplied when 400 more students enrolled at the college than had been anticipated.

This caused many classes to be filled and closed before the second or third day of registration.

Conlan Tells 3-Point Plan To Ease Congestion

By Dave Grieve

A three-point solution to the problem of a congested cafeteria, a capacity-filled library, and crowded classrooms, caused by increased enrollment may rest in a future bond issue to provide additional space, Louis G. Conlan, college president, announced this week.

"Local student growth is progressively advancing," Conlan said, "but it will reach a plateau or maximum size in the coming six to ten years. Nevertheless, the college must be streamlined to accommodate a day enrollment of 7500," the president stated.

The three-point plan to solve the predictable disorder includes a new building, new instructors and teaching techniques, and an extended class schedule.

Laboratory and classroom space could be made available to new students by the addition of a wing to Science Hall and a separate building housing both the registrars' and faculty offices, and a student union, Conlan declared.

The president emphasized, "The primary purpose of a new hall is to offer students an informal study atmosphere, although without the use of reference books, which would remain in the library."

On completion of a study hall, students can shift from the overcrowded library and cafeteria to the new building.

Instructional steps taken for future enrollment entail enlargement of the faculty aided by newly developed teaching techniques, as in closed-circuit television and group instruction, wherein several faculty members advise a large class.

Daily class schedules can be extended into the late afternoon. "A flaw in the approximate prediction of future enrollment at the college," Conlan disclosed, "is in the possible concentration by State universities on the upper division and tightening of lower division entrance requirements, thus necessitating a possible transfer of uncounted students to two-year colleges."

DR. LOUIS G. CONLAN, college president, recently discussed the campus congestion problem in an exclusive Guardsman interview here.

Guardsman Format Changes But Policy, Operation Stay Intact

EDITORIALS frequently offer articulate arguments based on current news events. These arguments are backed by facts and are usually written in lofty, picturesque and highly polished prose. Yet, editorials can also inform or instruct rather than take stands on controversial issues. Since we could find nothing to condemn and nothing to condone, today we shall get off our soapbox and go to the blackboard.

Being as objective as possible, we will discuss our favorite subject: The Guardsman. The weekly college paper which you are now reading has a high set of journalistic standards. Each semester its issues are rated by the Associated Collegiate Press at the University of Minnesota. The Guardsman has received 29 All-American ratings ("distinctively superior achievement") in its 39 semesters of competition with other two-year colleges across the country. A rating of First Class ("excellent achievements") was received during the other 10 semesters.

With such high standards to follow, the college newspaper staff really has its work set before them—and then some. We are by no means haughty or aloof about our past performances and we eagerly and earnestly welcome comment from our readers. Whether these "Letters to the Editor" contain strong verbs of praise or condemnation of our policy or whether they are directed to fellow students, any material received which is sensible, applicable and timely will be considered.

Returning students here who have read The Guardsman in previous semesters may have noticed that this semester the format of the paper has slight alterations. Page 3, previously the sports page, and page 4, previously the second news page, have been reversed. Several minor changes are due later.

One may ask with our old page sequence bringing us so many laurels, why we are advocating alterations. Our answer is: As good as something was or is, there is always room for improvement—meaning primarily experimentation and innovation, not stagnation. The Guardsman does not have advertising; all expenses are subsidized by Associated Student funds. Students who buy an AS card can have a clear conscience when reading this newspaper every Wednesday.

Concerning the paper's policy, we must remain impartial in elections, whether Associated Student, city, state or national. We don't support "crusades," such as sit-ins, freedom rides, protest rallies, et al. We are not, however, restrained from expressing opinion on other controversies, involving anything from student government to world tensions as they affect the collegian.

Our policy in a nutshell is: an accurate eye, an alert ear, an informative arm and, above all, a level head.

The Spectator Marilyn On TV Keeps Film Fans At Home

MOVIES may be better than ever, but, in view of the weekend TV offerings, that statement could stand a slight revision with the addition of two words—"on television!"

With the innovation of Saturday Night At The Movies and Premier, not-to-be feature length Hollywood pictures are now being unreleased for the whole family to enjoy in the comfort of their own home on their miniature silver screen.

The former program can be seen nationally, and in the Bay Area is on KRON, Channel 4, Saturdays between 9 and 11 p.m., while the latter is slated on Sunday evenings over independent KTVU, Channel 2, from 7 to 9 p.m.

PUT... Put... put Scooter Commuters Here Forced To Rise Earlier, Alter Route To College

Motor scooters are becoming the campus fashion, growing steadily from a handful of fearless, anti-Detroit radicals into a common, majestic, two-wheel worshipping clan. Ideally suited for the contemporary college student usually hampered by a strict budget, the scooter can transport him easily and inexpensively through the skyways and byways of the city.

Recently this clan was the victim of a State law forbidding the use of motorcycles under 15 horsepower and all motor scooters on the skyways and freeways.

This new law initiated a chain reaction amongst local two-wheel members by restricting the faster routes of travel throughout the city, into Marin county and down the Peninsula. College participants in the two-wheel clan feel that the new law is unjust in that the put-put owners pay their gas tax and a license fee comparable to that of an automobile driver.

Contrary to the motor scooter driver's argument that he maintains a legal speed limit, the Highway Patrol states that the underpowered vehicles are a menace to the fast and heavily traveled freeway, because of their slow speed.

Students who previously traveled the freeways to arrive at college, because of their adjacent home location and the shorter time period, must now alter their route to primary streets and highways, necessitating a student to "wake up with the chickens."

Local scooter enthusiasts scheduled a demonstration two weeks ago to acquaint the public with their problem and to build a civic sympathy with the cyclists.

Make Room There!

Petite Parkers Make Grade, In Own Stalls

It all started in Europe when someone long ago decided that what this world needed was a small car.

This brainstrom made sense, too. The small car would be easier on gas, upkeep and so on. Probably, however, the thought of parking ease never entered into the picture until one of his ancestors brought the first of the "petite parkers" to the good old USA.

The little guy seemed lost at first among all of his big iron brothers from across the ocean. But America has always been known to champion the underdog and this was no exception. The "petite parker" slowly crept into the hearts and garages of millions.

Was it really public apathy that caused this gigantic boom? Could it "maybe" be that the American public finally realized that the foreign car was much easier to park in congested streets and parking lots than the big bulky American car?

Well, it's now the year 1961 and Detroit has even gotten on the bandwagon of the compact car boom. The resplendent little cars, you can't drive anywhere in the country without seeing a colony of them on display in some showroom window and lining the street outside.

Sooner or later the pint-sized vehicles had to migrate to the campus. And the petite parkers have made the grade at college now, for in Cloud Circle there are eight freshly painted stalls measured to fit the little guy.

Instructor Praises Morning TV Course

By Rich Shields
It has often been suggested that people waste a major part of their lives sleeping, but has anyone ever figured out how the extra hours of a non-sleeping person's day might be utilized?
Julius Fraden, life science instructor here, believes he has at least part of the answer in the new biology course which will be televised over KPXX, Channel 5, from 6 to 8:30 every weekday morning.
"Students will find it rewarding indeed," Fraden remarked, "if they will sacrifice a little of the time they waste sleeping for educational endeavor."
The course will consist of daily lectures, midterm and final examinations, and will be offered in two semesters for six units of credit.
The years-long practice of beginning classes at 8 a.m. was ended this semester with the addition of a 7 a.m. class in the curriculum, but now students can "go the college one better" and start at 6 a.m.
The program will not be available over the college's closed circuit channel, however, so students will have to attend lectures in their homes.
And for those who will be tempted to have breakfast in bed while taking notes, the anatomy of frogs, worms and lizards will be among the topics discussed at various times during the semester.
Additional information (and temptation) may be obtained in the biology department on third floor of Science Hall or by writing to Department of Correspondence Instruction, University Extension, University of California, Berkeley 4.

Shots At RAMdom

By John Muller
ANYONE thumbing through an old newspaper that is around the house would be amazed at the oddities, quirks and humor that splatter the news, as well as how foolish and laughable some "people and situations" can be.
For example, those 20 nuclear war scare families from the New York area who recently moved to Chico, in the body of the article was the information that the Air Force is compiling an ICBM launching site five miles outside of Chico.
And still further down in the article, almost at the end, the reporter let slip that the State Disaster Office in Sacramento considered the launching site "a prime target" in the event of enemy attack.
That's almost as ridiculous as buying a bomb shelter on the installment plan.
What's worse, even if a person decided to build his own bomb shelter, he would have to have a permit.
And by present standards, the little cubbyhole which was originally designed to protect you from the blast and shield you from fallout would probably have to have an eight-foot ceiling, running water and a waste disposal system.
Very soon everyone will be trying to outdo the Joneses when the bomb shelter ad gets stronger; bomb shelters with underground ramp rooms for the kids, others with fallout proof swimming pools, for example.
Just think! Even drive-in bomb shelters with monthly rates. Could be that we'll even have bomb-fallout parties.
The imaginary possibilities are unlimited.

Wandering Drum
Gridders Vie For Tom-Tom At San Mateo
The "big" game of 1961 will be played this Saturday. It's not California vs. Stanford. It's City College of San Francisco vs. College of San Mateo at San Mateo for the prized Tom-tom drum.
The Tom-tom drum, now possessed by the Bulldogs, has gone to the winner of each San Francisco-San Mateo game since October 25, 1946, when Sonny Lewis, San Mateo's assistant yell leader, offered the Chinese Tom-tom to the winner of the annual contest.
Prior to that time the two teams had split six games.
This was the start of a bitter rivalry. One week before the 1952 game and with the Rams in possession of the Tom-tom via a 1951 victory, the drum disappeared from the college campus.
Shortly after its departure, San Mateo, with great tenacity, displayed the Tom-tom at its rally. The Rams won the 1952 game but the Tom-tom was not found until after the 1953 contest, where it turned up, of all places, in the college rooting section.
The mystery of the wandering Tom-tom, like that of Stanford-California Axe stealings, was never solved. All reports indicate San Mateo now definitely has the Tom-tom, but if the Rams win, will we see it?

The Tom-tom, a red and white, blue and white painted drum (the colors of the two colleges) has been held technically, of course, nine times by the Rams, six for the Bulldogs.
The last time the Rams held the Tom-tom was 1957.

Appointed cabinet officers are Gail Margolin, secretary; Sandy Shaw, Finance Committee chairman; Judy Starky, corresponding secretary; Bob Perkins, State Information Service chairman; John Jacobson, Men's Athletic commissioner; Ed Ayala, Election Committee commissioner, and Dianne Hardesty, Campus Affairs coordinator.

Miss Hardesty is also Red Cross representative here.
Honorary appointive cabinet members are Stan Burford, Rally commissioner; George Woo, Club Activities Board president; Bob Rogers, Inter-Fraternity Council president; Paul Plansky, Publications Board chairman; Sue Mount, Publicity Committee chairman; Jerry McCarthy, Campus Police chief; Shirley Thornton, Recreation Association president, and Kathy Hallock, Inter-Sorority Council president.

Moore Presides Over AGS Honor Society This Fall
New officers for Alpha Gamma Sigma were officially announced during its first meeting by William Richardson, faculty adviser for AGS.

They are Sherree Moore, president; Bruce McBine, vice president, and Elizabeth Boudront, secretary-treasurer.
Richardson, who is also the state secretary for AGS, outlined plans for offering coaching services to students of the college during the meeting.
One of the activities of the group is to coach those students who are in need of scholastic help.
AGS is the organization whose only requirement for membership is scholarship.

The standards a student must meet to belong to AGS are based on units carried and grade points.
They are computed as follows: 12 to 14 units, 42 grade points; 15 units, 45 grade points; 16 units, 48 grade points; 17 units, 51 grade points; 18 units, 54 grade points. Also, no student may have a final "D" grade.

Graduation Petitions Due By This Friday
Students planning to graduate from the college at the end of this semester must file a petition for graduation with the office of the registrar on or before Friday.
Petition forms may be obtained at the office of the registrar, Science Hall, Room 121.

Club Meetings, Concerts, Lectures Scheduled For Fall College Hours
Six club meetings, four concerts and three lectures are programmed for the remaining 12 College Hours, Dean of Men Ralph Hillsman said yesterday.
The four lectures, which will cover a wide range of academic interest with emphasis on social sciences, will start on October 27, Irving Witt, sociology instructor and organizer of the series, indicated.

Blood Bank Offers Gratuity To Donors
The Permanent Blood Bank will pay professional blood donors from local colleges $10 per unit of blood for their donations.
Students and faculty members interested in donating blood on a professional basis can present themselves at the laboratory on the second floor of Kaiser Foundation Hospital for blood typing.
When emergencies occur, the blood bank will inform the registered persons of the type needed for donations.
Kaiser Laboratory is opened on weekdays from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Saturdays, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., and Thursdays from 6:30 to 9 p.m.

Art Contest Prizes Gross $2250
Third and fourth semester art and advertising art students here are eligible to enter the 1962 Collegiate Advertising Poster Contest, sponsored by the Advertising Association of the West and the Zellerbach Paper Company, according to William J. Eckert, art instructor.
The theme for the 1962 Collegiate Advertising Poster Contest is Break The Language Barrier. In previous years, two of the themes were Fight Prejudice and Vote.

Frosh Ball Set For October 20
Sophistication will be the theme of this semester's semiannual Frosh Ball slated for the Colonial and Italian rooms of the St. Francis Hotel between 9 p.m. and midnight, Friday, October 20, Greg Monk, Freshman Class president, stated today.
Free bids will be distributed to frosh between Monday, October 16, and Wednesday, October 18, upon the presentation of an Associated Student card. After that time, invitations will be available to the entire student body on a first-come, first-serve basis, Monk said.

Students when picking up their bids should have the name of their date, he added.
Dress is semiformal and couples only will be admitted. Music will be supplied by Ray Hackett and his orchestra, with additional entertainment planned to include an electric guitarist and a drummer.
Highlighting the ball will be a Cutest Couple Contest, Monk added. Working toward the success of the dance with Monk are Josie Gunther, vice president; Joan Morrow, corresponding secretary; Marilyn Slagter, recording secretary, and Ron Binaghi, treasurer.

H&R Executive Chef Nets Special Award

Pierre Coste, executive chef of the hotel and restaurant department here, was awarded during the past summer the Special DeBanda Award by DeBanda and Splitter Incorporated of New York City in recognition for his "outstanding contribution and for fostering greater interest in the culinary profession of the United States."

Recognition is also made of an outstanding record of promotion by writing, training and other worthwhile practices in the field of cookery.

This annual award, established by Paul A. Splitter, is open to anyone, including chefs and culinarians, regardless of his affiliation, provided he resides within the boundaries of the United States. The honor is desired by many but only the best are considered for it, the citation said.

Welcome New Students Friday

By Sandy Sells
NUMEROUS activities will be highlighted throughout the college this week.

First on the agenda is the Collegiate Christian Fellowship. This organization invited new members to the next meeting this Friday during College Hour in C-201, Howard School, a member of the college's faculty and a counselor here, will be the special guest speaker. His subject is Marriage Relations.

This Friday at 8 p.m. the fellowship will meet at the home of Judy Almie, prayer and Bible study chairman, for a group discussion on the Book of Ephesians.

Meyer Cahn, music instructor here, will give a lecture on some aspect of music to members of H&R on Friday in C-246. Visitors are welcome to attend.

Four members of the Retail Florists Club, represented the college last Sunday at the State Conference of Retail Florists in Los Angeles. A demonstration of floral arrangements was presented.

All those interested in signing up for the Newman Club snow trip should come to the business meeting on October 24 during College Hour. The trip is planned in January during the semester break.

The Merchandising Club is soliciting for new members. A business meeting this Friday in S-258 will be held so old and new members may discuss their main objectives.

Boasting about 20 players this semester, the Chess Club, meeting in C-114, is inviting interested students to attend. Talent in the game is not a prerequisite.

Contemporary Affairs Forum, under the leadership of Edward Jackson, will hold a business meeting this Friday for an election of new officers.

The International Relations Club has invited the Filipino Club to perform one of their native dances at the tea dance to be held at San Francisco State College this Friday.

For education majors, the Student California Teachers Association, plans a meeting on this Friday in C-209. A guest speaker, a student teacher at the college, will speak on his experiences.

Deadline for club news is noon each Wednesday in The Guardsman office, S-304.

AMS Asks Student Ideas Via Suggestion Box

The Associated Men Students are once again in the suggestion box enterprise this semester, encouraging all students to present their ideas concerning all phases of the college's procedures in writing, according to Paul Snowberg, AMS president.

The thinkers can drop their ideas into either of the two suggestion boxes located by the Silver Pole in Science Hall and the other by the north exit door in the cafeteria.

All suggestions placed in these boxes will be appreciated and receive due consideration, Snowberg said.

Fischers Proof Of Proverb —Like Father, Like Son

By Doug Cathcart

Like father, like son, is an old saying, but nothing could more aptly describe the four gridiron men of the Bill Fischer family. Bill, Sr., presently a counselor here, began his football career at St. Mary's College as a guard under the famous "Slip" Madigan. In his senior year (1931) with the Galloping Gaels he was elected to the All-American team.

Spartan Tilt Opens Tough Season For Soccermen Friday

With the loss of three All-America and four All-Conference players from last year's squad, Coach Roy Diederichsen's soccermen, the co-defending league titlists, may find the going a little bit tough this season.

The opening tilt against the San Jose Spartans is slated Friday in Balboa Stadium. The kickoff time is 3:30 p.m.

The only first string returnees Diederichsen has on hand are goalie Gary Delong, center-forward Al Korb, halfback Flavio Valiente and wing Vincent Liu.

The present Ram outfit, which features a fairly solid defense and a young forward line, will have All-American prospect Delong at the goal-tending position.

Opening at the fullback slots will be Sam Sanchez, All-City from Galileo, and Hugh Olano, newcomer from Mission.

The halfback positions will be manned by newcomer Caesar Pina, Dave Fromer, a University of California transfer who has added punch to the all-important middle line, and Valiente, the team captain.

In the front line, the sharp-shooting center-forward Korb, another strong contender for All-American honors, is counted on to handle the scoring. Helping him out will be inside Pedro Liva, Roberto Salazar and Ivan Bernudez, the latter hailing from Nicaragua.

Serappy Dennis Mingo and veteran Liu will handle the wing positions, where invaluable service is also expected from veteran Louis Chung.

Some of the newcomers who will see considerable action are Horace Jackson, Sherwood Zammit, Lee Wurtzenberg and Allen Chew.

Playing as the sole two-year college in the Northern California Intercollegiate Soccer Conference, the Ram boosters have dominated the league in the past two years during which they won all but one of their games and amassed a total of 80 goals to their opponents' 12.

The league, which has narrowed down to seven teams, is evenly balanced and exceptionally tough this season, according to Diederichsen.

MAC Urges Support For Minor Sports

Suggestions on how to strengthen student interest toward the minor sports of the college were offered last week by John T. Jacobson, president of the Men's Athletic Commission.

A member of the college football team, Jacobson, nevertheless, stated that more publicity should be directed toward the less-publicized sports such as soccer, golf, tennis and swimming.

As a "middle man" between the department of physical education and the Associated Students, Commission Jacobson makes reports to the Student Council on the sports activities of the college.

He brings up items such as the purchasing of equipment, the issuing of black awards and matters of this nature, which are to be voted on by the Student Council.

When the petitions are finally approved, two nights per week will be set aside for intramural competition, with the nights to be voted on.

Gridmen Kick Off League Campaign At San Mateo

With undoubtedly the lightest and fastest backfield in the Big Eight Conference, the Rams will open the 1961 league season against their traditional rivals, the defending champion San Mateo Bulldogs Saturday at San Mateo. Kickoff will be at 2 p.m.

The speed merchants are Al Raine, a 7.7 75-yard sprinter at Mission High; John Daigle, a 9.7 sprinter; Claude Shipp, a 9.9 100-yard dash man at Washington High; and Tom Piggee, an All-City low hurdles champion two years ago at Polytechnic High. First-stringer Ron Coleman and Chuck Oushani rate highly.

Piggee, a returning All-Conference 175-pound back, is fast, a tremendous blocker who can use his speed well, but he is not a big enough fullback. The others, newcomers Shipp, Daigle, Coleman, Verdell Price and Raine, have an average weight of only 157 pounds.

Dave Urrea, the 200-pound All-City guard from Lowell High, won a starting berth on what otherwise is an all-veteran line.

Urrea, guard Alex Darnes, tackles Jim Baffico and Jack Burgett, ends Terry Fischer and Ray Gregains, and center Cliff Vattuone form the powerful Ram offensive forward wall.

The line has depth, namely in Dennis Drucker, the Northern California lineman of the year last season at St. Ignace.

In 1960, the chief Ram problem was quarterback. In the Rams' opening 27-0 victory over Los Angeles Valley, Randy Autentico passed for one touchdown and Ben Winslow, the second-string quarterback from Washington High, two as the Rams rolled up 130 yards in the air.

Defending champions San Mateo, which last year ended Stockton's five-year domination of the Big Eight Conference, lost all of the 1960 first string with the exception of Lynn Raymond, a 210-pound fullback.

The Bulldogs, who rolled up 271 yards on the ground in a 12-7 early season loss to Pasadena College, have a brutal running attack centered in Raymond, a 210-pound fullback, a 9.9 hundred-yard dash man.

The Rams, who have not defeated the Bulldogs since 1957, opened the season last year by demolishing San Mateo, 14-14.

The legacy of Fischer fame isn't over yet, however, for there is one more son still to make his mark in the grid world.

He's Kevin, 14, the youngest of the Fischer clan who recently donned a football jersey to play for his local playground squad.

The pigskin world of 1965 had better watch out, for "little fish" is just getting started.

Southerners Unable To Cope With Sturdy Winning Line

CITY COLLEGE STADIUM, Sept. 29.—Football's most dreaded disease—fumbleitis—almost cost a potent City College squad its first defeat of the young season today, but Grover Klemmer's charges found the antidote in a rugged defense and recovered in time to post a 20-6 triumph over visiting Los Angeles City College.

Showing no fear of the Southland colleges, the Rams, who last week battered Los Angeles Valley, now have beaten both outfits from Smogville two years in a row and own a 12-1-1 lead in their traditional series with LA City.

In a sluggish contest with neither speed moving through the air, the home eleven, leading 12-0 and set to receive a fourth quarter punt looked "safe," but then disaster struck.

Flashy fullback Tom Piggee, who tallied all of the winner's touchdowns, suddenly traded Ram for goat horns as he fumbled the kick and, despite the valiant resistance of the defenders, the visitors drove for a 15-yard score in eight plays, with Bill Esselman tallying from the one.

Two plays later, quarterback Randy Autentico's bobble gave the Angelinos possession on the Ram 21-yard stripe and a chance for victory with but five minutes remaining to play.

Not to be denied, the defense paced by linemen Cliff Vattuone, Jim Baffico, Jack Burgett and hard-tackling halfback Ron Coleman would permit only a three-yard advance in four plays.

Here Piggee won back his Ram horns as he sandwiched sparkling runs of 9, 26, 2 and 14 yards around a penalty and short sprints by Coleman and Al Raine, and then tallied from the seven as Coleman scored the two-point conversion to clinch the win.

In the first quarter, alert guard Dave Urrea pounced on Bill Clayborne's fumble on the Cub 27 after Jim Baffico's punt and then Terry Fischer's great fourth down catch set up a two-yard off tackle score by Piggee.

Late in the third stanza the winners finally crossed the goal line again via Piggee's three-yard jaunt but the highlight of this drive was Raine's spectacular 29-yard broken field run.

Once again, the smoothly operating Ram forward line was top billing as time and again they thrust back the Los Angeles offensives, holding the losers to 102 yards rushing and 68 passing, and opened clutch holes for the wing T offense.

Cub Coach Steve Pritko was highly impressed with "your real tough line," but felt "Our mistakes and poor tackling cost us dearly." —By I.T.

Coed Sports Open To All AS Card Members

Students with Associated Student cards are invited to participate in the coeducational sports offered here this semester at 3 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays, Marlin Galloway, women's physical education instructor, announced.

The first all-college sports day will be held here on November 18. Sports offered will include tennis, archery and bowling; all of which are co-educational.

One of these members, Chuck Wood, sophomore council member, stated, "I can't see why I or anyone else should have to take time to go down to the union just to be a baby-sitter."

The job of chairman is to supervise the students in the union, making sure that the rules are observed. Other members thought that the union should be run solely by the Associated Students and that there was no need for Cook.

Council last week also passed the Publicity Committee budget and voted a total of $1517.30.

Delayed Opening Of Student Union 'Successful,' Expansion Depends On Student Backing

Opening of the new student union in bungalow 3 and 4 last week was termed successful but there is room for improvement, according to George Cook, co-ordinator of the lounge.

The union, which seats close to 150 students, is seen as a means to relieve some of the congestion in the cafeteria, which seats approximately 650 students.

Lack of water delayed the opening for three weeks, but the city took care of that and the only immediate problem is the coke machine, empty because of the strike.

The first day about 50 persons came in and out, Cook said.

Doughnuts, candy bars, hot chocolate, coffee and cigarettes are sold in the union but it is also a place for students to study and relax. If the union is as successful as Cook hopes, sandwiches and other food supplies may be moved in.

The student lounge is probably the only place in the city where the 5-cent doughnut can still be purchased. The first day two dozen were sold in the first hour.

Baseball fans were treated to the World Series last week via the television set up through the efforts of the Associated Student officers. The union was filled to capacity during each game.

Cook, in reemphasizing that there is a lot of work to be done, listed three goals for the union:

- It must be made a necessity to the students.
- It must relieve cafeteria congestion.
- It is a place where clubs can meet and post announcements, where students can relax and study.

"The lounge offers the students something; I think it can work, but the place has to prove itself," Cook declared.

Hours are from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Too Much Diversion Puts Jinx On Gridiron Support, Dance

city, and students seem to find too many other things to do besides attend football games.

Nevertheless, the Rally Committee, undaunted in its continual efforts to create an inkling of spirit, plans a pep rally with entertainment prior to the Santa Rosa game here Friday, October 20.

"Undeclared, untold and unlabeled" is used to describe the famous University of San Francisco football team of 1951 featuring ex-Ram Ollie Matson, Bob St. Clair and Gene Marchetti, and unless things change for the better, "once defeated, untold and unwanted" may go down in history with the not-so-famous City College 1961 team.

They play a very good brand of football as was attested to by their consecutive wins over two colleges from Los Angeles.

However, at the home contest with traditional rival Los Angeles City College, barely 200 could be counted in attendance—including people, players, birds and everything else.

Quarterback Randy Autentico came up with an apt statement when he said, "There were no distractions."

Those who may have stayed away last year because of the childish yells directed at them had no excuse this time as Yell Leader Chuck Wood, assistants Burford and Otto Van Duyn, and an appealing array of song girls did an excellent job of channeling yells in the right direction at the right time.

City College has had its golden days on the gridiron with such standouts as Matson and Burl Toler and even last year with Gary Lewis.

The team may be on its way to a title in the Big Eight's final year of operation, but it will carry a certain dryness unless a crowd appreciative of their big try turns out for the remaining contests.

More than 350 citations have already been issued this semester by the Campus Police, Jerry McCarthy, police chief here, announced today.

On the basis of this figure approximately 150 more tags can probably be issued by the police force for parking violations within the next two weeks.

McCarthy also added that parking permits are no longer available at the reservoir; they may now be obtained in C-120 any time during class hours.

To get a parking permit a student must have his Associated Student card, driver's license and car registration.

AS Leaders To Attend Regional Convention

A tentative delegation of 30 student leaders will travel to Monterey Peninsula College on the weekend of October 21 to attend the Northern Region Junior College Student Government Association convention, Gary Wilkening, president of the Associated Students, said this week.

Workshops scheduled for the conference include Judicial Systems, Current Problems, Student Government, Conference Reorganization, Activities, Athletics, and Publicity and Publications.

Upon being questioned about the present Big Eight Conference becoming a new Bay League in 1962, his comment was, "This is by far one of the toughest leagues in California today, and it will be made tougher when it is changed and the new colleges are added."

College Has Football Team; Has Football Team Support?

ALL MEDIA of communication connected with news reporting became slaves last week. Their master, the World Series, has been shelving international trouble spots, national tensions and local tragedies by shoving them lower on page one, or, as the case may be, switching them to other channels and stations.

Our conclusion is: news value is a relative thing.

It seems strange, though, that the normally conservative sports fan succumbs to the abnormally speculative "one-week fever."

Even with the championship series finally decided this week, recollections still fill daily conversations with such coined phrases as, "... if this pitcher would have started instead of that one ... my team didn't get the lucky breaks ... that one play cost them the series!"

With all this discussion and attention given to the annual classic that climaxes the baseball season, it becomes easy to forget which of the seasonal sports is actually in progress. It is Fall. And it is FOOTBALL!!!

In addition to attendance at Kezar Stadium, Strawberry Canyon and other sites of Bay Area gridiron games, the student here still hasn't caught the seasonal spirit in his very own habitat—a very serious disease called "anti-athletics."

City College not only HAS a football team, but one of their BEST in recent history. According to a very reliable source (The Guardsman sports department), there is only ONE "team to beat" in the league this season—the Red and White Rams!

At the time of this writing, the footballers, who represent every student here when out on the field, have won their first two contests in decisive and confident fashion. Our prognosis for the remaining games, perhaps uncautious and a bit prejudiced, is for many more victories and a probable conference title.

In the days when such greats as Ollie Matson and Burl Toler carried the ball for the Rams, they drew very large crowds in Kezar Stadium. Even with the absence of Gary Lewis, All-Conference back last season, City College's big line and light backfield offers its students the best possible of football thrills.

We believe that our stadium should be jammed to capacity with student rooters.

Let's build more stands, BUT FIRST LET'S FILL THE EMPTY SEATS.

Columnist 'Cools' Weather Problem

WHETHER students pulled IBM cards for it at registration time, all 8000-plus enrollees here are signed up for a hill-climbing class taught each hour with the cool air and gusty winds as instructors.

It meets on Hill 29, upon which the college stands, numbered in succession with the many other molehills highlighting San Francisco.

By now, 99 per cent of the students realize what this columnist's going to be about. For the other percentage, an explanation may be in order. Walking from class to class men and women may have caused to themselves about those 99% & hills embodying the campus. Well, that's the famous hill climbing class!

The poor "climber" receives little pity when he tries to scale each hill surrounding the campus on the way from class to class.

Are you one of those lucky ones with, for example, an 8 a.m. course on the third floor of Science Hall and then in the allotted 10 minutes have to race down the hill to the respective gym for a 9 a.m. lesson? Rots of ruck! No wonder the physical education classes seem to have a large "cut-rate."

As many in the past have discovered to their dismay and sometimes embarrassment, the weather doesn't help the situation one bit, either.

In a feature article published following these pages last semester, the following paragraph was inserted which best illustrates the preceding statement:

(Quote.) One young lady was descending one of the most travelled hills when all of a sudden a large piece of cloth flew into her face. It was her skirt. (End of quote.)

Nowadays with people suggesting changes and recommending various actions, why should this writer be a non-conformist? Following are a few ways to ease the problem of students here:

1) Give everyone an elevator key for use in each building. Of course, to receive this privilege he should possess an Associated Student card, too.

2) Install moving sidewalks throughout the campus connecting each building with the other, including the bus stop on Ocean Avenue to the main entrance to Science Hall.

This contraption should also have a convertible canopy to keep out the bad weather and let in the very infrequent warm air.

This would definitely eliminate the strain on students' feet and would offer them more strength and stamina to get to their widely spaced classrooms and, upon arrival, the ability to set through one of those interesting (?) lectures without dozing off in the back of the room.

If only this column could get to the proper authorities for consideration and action. The only stumbling block seems to be that the "if only" is bigger than any hill on the campus. Or anywhere, for that matter, in the City by the Golden Gate, when a problem is posed to the public.

US Champion Enrolls Here

Yodeler Queen Carolina Cotton Takes Time Out For Education

A unique example of East meeting West was accomplished in Korea by a coed here—partly through the medium of the equally unique title she holds—champion yodeler of the United States.

The champion is Carolina Cotton, for whom show business has acted as a travel agent, guiding her around the world from the North Pole to Africa and now to this college, where she is in her first semester as a recreation major.

1200 Little Safes

Hall Lockers Aid One-Third Of Enrollees

A scattering of louvered metal lockers dot the network of halls that link classrooms throughout the three main buildings on campus.

Necessity being the mother of invention, or in this case ambition, lockers in the arts building, Cloud Hall and Science Hall are allotted to students under the universally recognized system of first come, first served.

Application dates for lockers are announced during class registration and orientation proceedings, usually a designated two-day period following the start of the semester.

The cubicles are shared by two occupants who, together, apply at the student bank in Smith Hall. In addition, students must present their registration cards for identification purposes.

Available lockers in the three buildings total 1200 dark, shallow, rectangular-shaped voids, lining a new occupant to start the cavity while thoughtfully comparing the process of jamming books into the locker to stuffing bread crumbs into a turkey.

College lockers, which accommodate a minority one-third of the day enrollment, are supplemented by automobiles as safe receptacles for books and supplies, but the walk from the reservoir to the college can discourage the most athletic student.

Set aside for special use are approximately 300 lockers for the "brush pushers" and "tooth pullers" supplies.

Amassed oddities found discarded by careless students inside the lockers include false teeth, an alarm clock and dirty stockings, plus textbooks and other college supplies.

At the end of a semester an estimated 10 per cent of the thoughtless students returned to identify their material; the remainder took a financial loss on salvagable textbooks for they were transferred for resale to the Associated Student bookstore.

National newspaper week, cranberry week, apple week and popcorn week are all celebrated in October.

IBM Machines Never Err

Entrance Tests Plague Students; Scores Determine College Work

By Rich Shields

If a survey were taken of things that students dislike most, examinations would probably be so high on the list that they would make up the whole survey.

In fact, examinations are so unpopular that some students would rather endure a boring lecture, skip class, or even ask sensible questions than have to take one.

It might be that poetic justice, or even the wrath of angry gods works to insure that one of the first things to confront students when entering college is an enormous battery of examinations.

Actually it isn't poetic justice or anything similar. It's simply college policy and the subtle hand of Thomas Nesbitt, head of the testing department here, which sets up the series of entrance exams given at the college.

And Nesbitt hastens to inform students that entrance exams here are standardized tests which are given at colleges all over the nation.

It is only later in course examinations which require much more detail and technical information that attempts may be made to fasten the blame for difficulties on specific individuals, namely instructors.

Another major difference between the two types of tests is that in the case of entrance examinations, students are not certain basic courses before continuing into regular college work.

Nesbitt's department also administers counseling tests to students who are not certain of the field of study that they wish to pursue, and these tests are given in S-142.

One consolation for despairing entering students may be the thought that the very IBM machines which will score their tests in a very short time were created by people who once took entrance examinations themselves.

However, only study and faith may console students facing examinations from their eagle-eyed, pencil-happy instructors.

Shots At RAMdom

By John Muller

FOR entering students green from high school, the college holds many thrills, a lot of woe and major problems.

Beginning with registration, one of the main problems is squeezing the not-so-many open classes into the more and more cramped program card. Then comes the big challenge of being able to read the card once it's completed.

Many a student, uttering a premature sigh of relief because he has successfully registered, is gripped by a sudden change of heart when he sees the card. He has more than one class meeting in the same hour.

A lucky student has a fairly good schedule with most of the courses he wanted. Of course he has an 8 o'clock class, several two-hour breaks and doesn't get out of his last class until 3 or 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

An unlucky student, on the other hand, wastes several days of instruction in dropping and adding classes, and in the confusion of seeing so many people and getting so many signatures, he usually gets very discouraged.

A NEW STUDENT, lost in an unfamiliar world of new names and places, patiently studies his room numbers to make sense out of them. Let's see, S-200. That couldn't be right, Smith Hall is a one-story building.

Finally he sees light. An S prefix refers to Science Hall. C stands for Cloud Hall and so on.

But the arts building, annexes and bungalows—what and where are they?

It's not news that during the first week of instruction there is considerable tardiness.

ONE OF THE biggest problems during the first few days of instruction is the certain basic courses before continuing into regular college work.

Green stuff commonly called yon or, by the more conventional, money. Once he collects sufficient funds, there still remains the problem of the bookstore. The Ramptom is the only structure of its size on campus that can accommodate well over a hundred students at a time, all scrambling to get books and materials.

Finally the student is set. He has a moment to breathe and relax. But before he can, his instructor smiles in that strange way and announces that midterms are only two weeks away.

He just can't win.

New Concert Series Starts With Ishvani

Counterpoint

'Graceful As A Bird, Lithe As A Snake ...'

By Dick Drago

ISHVANI came to the door wearing a typically brilliant, hued East Indian blouse and loose white pantaloons.

"Excuse my costume," she explained, "I have just been practicing." On the table in her living room were scattered magazines specializing in the fields of various native dances.

At the end of the room a recorder (a flute) lay on a music stand. One magazine, Impulse, an annual publication dealing primarily with the dance, contained an article by Ishvani on Hindu dancing.

"I create all of my dances," she commented, "and produce them in the traditional Indian style. As a basis for these dances I use sculpture and nature."

"The reason is that our sculpture was originally made from dances," she explained. "Through the centuries there was an ebb of interest in the arts, and as a result, the statues are very important in the re-creation of the customary dances."

Her hands drifted, as she talked, to the magazines on the table, and she thumbed through one idly. It was one of her self-descriptive brochures.

Two drawings, a peacock and a snake, stood out from the pages. Ishvani smiled. "When I studied with Uday Shankar, and later worked with him, he told me that I was as light as a bird and as lithe as a snake."

"Since then I have had these two symbols on my pamphlets," she continued.

She led the way toward her second floor studio. In the elevator she seemed to float down on her own initiative.

The studio was partly carpeted with a large mirror on one side. A small rectangle about the size of a 24-inch television screen was taped on the mirror.

Ishvani sat cross-legged on the floor. "I practiced for my TV appearance (on KQED) using that rectangle. For one part of the program only my hands were visible and I used the mirror to see how it would look to the viewers," she remarked.

She demonstrated briefly. Her hands flowed through the air in front of her, and then flitted together like two birds in a rose bush.

"There is also a drawing of a deer in my brochure," Ishvani added. "It is from a dance that I do in which a little girl sees a deer in a clearing and would like to touch it, but doesn't dare because she is afraid the deer will run."

Ishvani stood, and a portion of the dance was seen as the little girl reached out, drew back her hand, finally touched the deer and it bounded away.

She was as natural as though she herself were the little girl.

"When you work long enough at one thing," Ishvani commented, "it becomes the major part of you, and what was your every day self seems to be the act which you briefly assume at times."

Ishvani's flutist arrived, and she began her earnest practice, which she said is from four to five hours each day.

AWS Plans Nov. Fashion Show, Tea

This semester's fashion show and tea, slated for November 15, and sponsored by the Associated Women Students, is now in the planning stages, Jan Doudiet, AWS president, announced today.

Responsible for presenting the event for the women seniors of the high schools in San Francisco and for the women of the college is Suzanne Murphy, fashion co-ordinator.

Miss Murphy is also in charge of selecting the models for the show, drawn from AWS members who volunteer to try out.

Livingston will provide the fashion for the newly appointed models. Sportswear, evening wear and college wear will be featured.

Indian Dancer To Perform Friday In College Hour

An opportunity to preview Ishvani, dancer from India, is afforded students here during College Hour Friday, Meyer Cahn, music instructor and Student-Faculty concert chairman, said today.

This concert, the first of this semester's College Hour concert series, will be held in the college theater.

Value of these concerts was emphasized by Cahn who, recalling the appearance last semester of Rama Jucker, mentioned that Jucker has received the Pablo Casals Award.

He will be appearing at Stanford and at the University of California at prices ranging up to $4 a person. Students here enjoyed Jucker's performance at no cost.

Ishvani, who dances in the traditional style and costume of India but creates her own routines, will open October 30 at the Marine Memorial theater.

"We were very fortunate to be able to obtain her less than three weeks before she opens downtown," Cahn said. The program which Ishvani will present will include Rhythms, Exposition of Gestures, and Radha and Krishna.

Ishvani studied with and became the partner of the famous Hindu dancer, Uday Shankar. Presently living in San Francisco, she returned recently from India where she had completed a year of study, concentrating on medieval Indian sculpture and classical literature.

These studies will be applied to creating new dances, as she bases her interpretations on sculpture and nature.

A number of composers have been impressed enough by Ishvani's performances that they have written works specially for her.

One, Thomas Canning, wrote a group of 19 dances, on hand gestures, titled A Marriage Between East and West.

Ishvani has appeared in London and Paris besides Spencer Barfoot Concert Management.

A SWALLOW FLOATING OVER A SILVER BRIDGE. Ishvani assumes the character which she depicts with her hands.

numerous cities throughout the United States including New York, City, Rochester, N. Y., Detroit and Eugene, Oregon.

Recently she was featured on KQED during a half-hour program. This appearance will be given in co-operation with the Spencer Barfoot Concert Management.

AS Card Sales Top Former Mark; Goal Set At 3,000

With a record number of Associated Student cards already sold, prospects are good that sales will hit more than 3000 before the end of the semester, Lon Earnshaw, Associated Student card sales chairman, said yesterday.

The old record of 2600 sales was set in the fall semester of 1960. Associated Student cards may still be purchased from the student bank in Smith Hall, although no deadline is set for buying them.

The Associated Student card, which can save a student up to $47.50, offers its holders various benefits of free admission and reduced rates to dances, social affairs, merchandise discounts and home athletic games sponsored by the college.

Sales have averaged near 1800 for the last few years, and the increase is probably due to the record enrollment this semester, observers said.

In the annual Associated Student card sales contest George Woo, president of the Club Activities Board, took first place with 332 sold. Bob Ross in 1960 set the college record of more than 800.

Ed Ayala and Judy Starkey were runners-up this year.

Competition for next spring's card design will begin in the near future, according to Gary Wilkening, president of the Associated Students.

Art students usually enter a contest because they are familiar with the card's form, but anyone may enter, Wilkening said.

The deadline for entries probably will be sometime in mid-December. The cards will be needed in February.

Designs may be turned in at the Associated Student office, S-134.

Shutterbugs Show New Photo Process

A technique involving the enlargement of small negatives is the current topic being displayed in the faculty photo gallery, according to Emmett Smith, photography department instructor.

Photographs are by graduate Wes Pease. While attending the college in 1951 Pease was a graphic arts major and took courses under the instruction of Bev Pasqualetti.

After graduation Pease became a photo lithographer and is presently employed by the Kaiser Corporation. His hobby is pictorial photography, and he is print chairman of the Oakland Camera Club and has won many prizes in this field.

New Directions in Photography is to be the next exhibit coming to the Gallery. It will be displayed in mid-October. This professional photography of Northern California will feature more than 40 prints in black and white and color, Smith said.

Michigan has the longest shoreline of any state in the union.

Club Cavalcade

Organizations Operate On Full Schedule

OFFERING a wide variety of activities to interested students, the campus organizations, have full schedules of events planned this semester.

The Student California Teachers Association held its 12th Annual Leaders conference at Burlingame on October 1 and 2. The college was represented by four members of the local organization, Gene Tognetti, president; Bill Gebhardt, vice president; Hannah Howard, secretary, and Barbara Ford, treasurer.

The student teachers group will have a representative from KQED during College Hour Friday in C-269. The guest speaker's topic will be Educational Television. Everyone interested is invited to attend.

There was an election for president last week of the Contemporary Affairs Forum in C-219. Those interested in attending future meetings are welcome to come.

Any person or organization interested in participating in the International Relations Club fair can consult Hernando Garcia, chairman of the IRC fair committee, in S-186.

The newly elected officers of the Engineering Society invite all new and old student engineering majors to their next club meeting on October 20 during College Hour in S-200.

A film or guest speaker will be presented and field trips are planned. Newly elected officers are President Bill May, Vice President Tom Naughton, Secretary Joan Otteson, Treasurer Mike Gadda and Sergeant-at-Arms John Moore.

Membership cards, which entitle members to attend all field trips and social events, are now available at 50 cents.

Collegiate Christian Fellowship also elected new officers for the fall semester. George Sloan is now president, with Laurie Thurlwell vice president and Elaine Leong acting as secretary-treasurer. Eight appointive positions in the club have been filled with new officers opening so new members may participate. Meetings are held in C-101 during College Hour.

The Associated Women Students are now inviting all interested women to attend meetings in Dean Mary Golding's office on Tuesdays at 2 p.m. Plans for the semiannual fashion show and tea are under discussion.

Boasting a membership of more than 30 women students, the Modern Dance Club invites all other interested potential dancers to participate. Meetings are held in the dance studio of the women's gymnasium on Tuesdays at 3 p.m.

On October 10 the Hotel and Restaurant Society will meet at and tour Del Webb's Tourne House. Afterward, refreshments will be served.

At the end of the semester the society will have a dinner and dance for the members.

Because of the large attendance at the Symphony Forum record concerts during College Hour, Program Chairman Gary May has moved the session from A-135 to the choral room, A-133.

Billwiller Acting Dean Of Instruction; Mayo On Leave

Temporarily replacing William Mayo as dean of instruction, James Billwiller, chairman of the English department, will assume the position this semester until Mayo returns from a Sabbatical leave.

Billwiller has been an instructor at the college since leaving the service in 1946. The English department chairman said in an interview last year, "I am a very fortunate person, I have always wanted to do, that is, be an educator."

Mayo was granted a year leave by the Board of Education from July 1961 until July 1962, to travel through the Central American countries.

Since 1926, Mayo has been associated with the college, first as an engineering instructor then head of the engineering department, and finally as dean of instruction, his present position.

JAMES BILLWILLER, English department chairman, was recently named acting dean of instruction to fill in for William Mayo.

RAMBLINGS

By Ivan Tomes

IF GROVER KLEMMER's gridiron heroes expect to win a Big Eight football title, they'd better do it quickly, for the conference is soon going to be the new organized Bay Conference next fall.

Along with this college, Oakland, San Mateo and Contra Costa will leave the defunct Big Eight and join a trio of Golden Valley league colleges, Diablo Valley, Foothill and San Jose in the eight-team organization. Upon its completion, South County in Hayward will fill out the state.

Actually, this is but a small phase of what is scheduled to happen throughout California.

The minor revolution involving the state's present 10 leagues and 70 members will reach its culmination next September as the result of an extended campaign to align the colleges according to their enrollment and proximity to each other.

In what probably amounts to the largest scale upheaval of its type ever to occur, the State Association has come up with 11 leagues involving 73 colleges, three of which are now being constructed.

Expanding from its present three leagues, the Northern California area will add one new one, and a large number of colleges will "jump" from their old circuits.

On the home front, Bay Conference entries from here, Oakland, San Mateo and Contra Costa will be joined by Foothill, Diablo Valley, San Jose and the new South County (Hayward).

No longer will the Ram eleven have to worry about being to Stockton or falling down in their bid for a championship because of the strong perennial titleholders.

Maybe it doesn't follow the old "If you can't beat 'em, join 'em theory," but one couldn't help seeing through his thoughts when Klemmer said, "We're sorry to lose Stockton and the others since they provide us with some really good opposition."

Santa Rosa, trying to get out of the Big Eight for some time, finally gets its wish, and should turn from a league patsy into the Golden Valley's powerhouse.

It's no fun for a team to take a two-hour car ride and tire themselves out before a game, nor is it a thrill for a small college to lose time and again to a larger one—these are the reasons why the big change has come about.

The colleges have a similar enrollment and are closer geographically.

Athletic Director Jack Gaddy echoes the sentiment of all the Ram coaches when he states, "We don't like to lose contact with schools like Sacramento, Modesto and Stockton whom we've played for so long, but we're happy with the new setup and the Bay should be a strong league."

Track mentor Lou Vasquez is unhappy to lose the excellent track facilities at Sacramento and Modesto but feels that with expanding Foothill joining the league, the loss may be compensated for somewhat.

Since he always manages to come up with an outstanding basketball squad, Sid Phelan isn't fretting over the opposition which may be the best in the state.

The Rams, Oakland, San Mateo and Contra Costa, all hoop powers, remain together and are joined by San Jose, state champion two years ago and perennial champion of the old Coast Conference.

Modern Dance, Volleyball Set For Coed Slate

Two activities, modern dance and volleyball, highlight coeducational activities this semester, Frances Galloway, of the woman's physical education department, said today.

The modern dance group, which meets on Tuesdays at 3 p.m. under the leadership of Lene A. Johnson, has planned a full program. The first activity of the semester will be participation in dance with other students of modern dance from the various high schools throughout the city.

Lee Durkee, Nora Collins, Marsha Webber and Jan White are assisting in the plans for inviting John Graham, who is now at The Playhouse, with the Ann Halprin dance group, to give a master dance lesson to the modern dance group here.

There are four volleyball teams this semester, and many participants have returned from last semester. The volleyball teams are also invited to games here on Tuesday afternoons.

Three outstanding players on the regular teams are Sue Oddone, Jim Calanice and Jack O'Carne.

According to Miss Galloway, the game of volleyball is becoming a worldwide sport, and in the next Olympic games it will be included as a recognized team sport.

Because of popular demand, Elizabeth K. Wirth has begun a basketball team for women only on Wednesday at 3 p.m.

Radical Realignment Brings End To Big Eight Circuit

The Big Eight Conference is doomed.

According to the plan released by Karl Drexel, of the State Junior College Athletic Association, which reveals a major shuffling of all two-year college leagues in the state, the Rams will find themselves in the newly organized Bay Conference next fall.

Along with this college, Oakland, San Mateo and Contra Costa will leave the defunct Big Eight and join a trio of Golden Valley league colleges, Diablo Valley, Foothill and San Jose in the eight-team organization. Upon its completion, South County in Hayward will fill out the state.

Actually, this is but a small phase

of what is scheduled to happen throughout California.

The minor revolution involving the state's present 10 leagues and 70 members will reach its culmination next September as the result of an extended campaign to align the colleges according to their enrollment and proximity to each other.

In what probably amounts to the largest scale upheaval of its type ever to occur, the State Association has come up with 11 leagues involving 73 colleges, three of which are now being constructed.

Expanding from its present three leagues, the Northern California area will add one new one, and a large number of colleges will "jump" from their old circuits.

With the Bay and Valley leagues introduced, the Golden Valley and Coast Conferences will retain their old names despite revisions.

City College, with a daytime enrollment near 6300, heads the Bay, largest of the four.

Losing Foothill, Diablo Valley and San Jose, the Coast Conference will retain its other members—Monterey, Hartnell, Vallejo, Cabrillo, Menlo and San Benito—operating with a six-college alignment.

All have enrollments ranging between 600 and 1100 except for the smaller Menlo and San Benito institutions.

The six-Golden Valley alignment will combine a trio of former Big Eight entries, Stockton, Sacramento and Modesto with American River, formerly of the Golden Valley, Fresno and College of the Sequoias have dropped from the Central Conference to fill out this group.

Somewhat balanced attendance figures range from Sacramento's 3200 to Sequoias' 1400.

Santa Rosa, which has been trying for some time to drop from the Big Eight, tops the Golden Valley league which inherits Marin, Shasta, Yuba, Sierra, Napa and Lassen from its former organization and also adds College of the Siskiyous.

Smallest, enrollmentwise, and weakest athletically of the four conferences, the Golden Valley ranges from the 1700 figure attending Santa Rosa to under 200 at Lassen.

Rams Shocked By Bulldogs

RAM HALFBACK RON COLEMAN breaks from the grasp of a would-be tackler for a short gain in the 2nd quarter over Los Angeles City College. A vicious tackle on defense, the 5-8, 160-pounder is one of the reasons why the small, speedy offense moves the ball so well.

Defending Champs Retain Tom-Tom With 22-6 Victory

Not even a blistering wind could interfere with the College of San Mateo radar as their alert defenders picked off five Ram unguided missiles en route to a 22-6 victory over the less than-challenged Rams' Big Eight crown Friday at San Mateo.

Clearly the aggressor all the way, Coach Doug Scoville's eleven had its trying moments but always managed to come up with a clutch play in winning its Big Eight season inaugural and retaining the prized Tom-Tom.

The Rams, suffering their initial defeat of the young campaign, found their air game to be disastrous as they completed six of nine attempts, but five of these were eagerly received by their opponents.

In fact, the last five Red and White tosses of the game, three in the first half and a pair after the intermission, went awry.

Though they had given up a total of only 94 yards on the ground in their first two games, the highly touted Ram line was unable to cope with the Bulldog backfield speed, enhanced by Clarence Hamel, Claude McMillen and Lynn Raymond, as the winners rolled up 209 yards.

Neither club was able to move the pigskin in the first quarter as the rivals exchanged punts six times.

Not to be denied, the Rams launched a 45-yard scoring drive after Fred Opezzo had intercepted an Autentico toss. Raymond, tallying the first of his three touchdowns, culminated the drive by going three yards over the right hash.

Only 50 seconds remained in the half when Raymond scored from one yard out, climaxing a 95-yard drive highlighted by Hamel's brilliant 42-yard dash from his own seven-yard marker. A conversion pass from Rich Norman to Jim Cheatum made it 14-0 at the half.

After the intermission, the Rams got their chance.

On opening play from scrimmage at the San Mateo 32, Norman faked back to pass but was chased by Terry Flecher and Dave Urrea all the way back to his own five-yard line where an apparent attempt to ground the ball was turned into a fumble and Flecher pounced on it.

It took Tom Pigge only one play to cross the goal, going between left tackle and end but the conversion failed.

Three plays later punter Dan Biers fumbled the pass from center and after a scramble, Ram tackle Jim Baffico gathered in the elusive pigskin at the San Mateo 30-yard line.

But the drive was short-lived as Autentico, trying to hand off, fumbled on the Bulldog 22.

One more golden opportunity came for the Rams as they drove to the San Mateo two-yard stripe but on fourth down and one inch to go Pigge tried to sweep left end but got nowhere. Never was the Rams' need for a big line-crashing fullback more in evidence.

Scoville's squad led the contest midway through the final stanza as Raymond scored from the three and end Larry Schille took a pass for the PAT to make it 22-6.

In the heated battle of the two rivalry tempers flared often and both teams suffered critical penalties.

Led by Ron Coleman's all-around play the Rams gained 204 yards rushing as Coleman, Pigge, Al Raine and Autentico got 59, 61, 41 and 39 yards, respectively.—By I.T.

Comets Release Swift Backfield On Rams Friday

A Ram defense, sometimes so stingy that it would put Scrooge to shame by comparison, will face the swift-moving backfield of Contra Costa at 8 p.m., Friday at Contra Costa.

The only touchdown scored off the Rams in two preseason games was after they took over on the San Francisco 14-yard line. Even then it took them eight plays to take it over. The Rams won, 20-6.

The Ram defensive front wall has limited the opposition to an average of 31 yards on the ground and 85 yards in the air in the two preseason victories over the Los Angeles clubs.

In the opener, the Rams dumped the game in the second quarter, limiting the opposition to an average of 31 yards on the ground and 85 yards in the air in the two preseason victories over the Los Angeles clubs.

Advocating efficient student governmental procedure and promoting two-year college campus activities, the Northern Region California Junior College Student Government conference meets this Saturday at Monterey Peninsula College.

President of the Associated Students Gary Wilkening will be accompanied by a college delegation of 20, assigned to seven workshops and a general assembly, working together with representatives from 25 two-year colleges in Northern California.

The primary purpose, Wilkening disclosed, "of sending delegates to the conference is to instill a spirit in the active students by recognizing their own problems through helping other college representatives."

Representing the college in the workshops are Kathy Henderson, Bob Anderson, Chuck Wood and Kathy Hallock in activities; Dan Collins and Suzanne Murphy in student government; and Ed Paulus, Shirley Thornton and Andy Shemiyeh in athletics.

Larry Levin, Bob Rogers and Pam Chandler will represent the college in current problems; Marcia McNeely, Paul Steiner and Ed Ayala in judicial matters; Sue Mount and Paul Plankly in publicity; and Wilkening, Bob Perkins, George Woo and Paul Snowberg in conference reorganization.

The finance workshop was replaced this semester by a judicial workshop, because, Wilkening says, "The same problems are discussed each semester in finance, but there is an urgent need for a student governing body to discipline student activities."

Reorganization of the conference will be the outstanding subject discussed in the workshops and general assembly. The plan is to extend the one-day conference into a weekend convention.

Accompanying the college delegation to Monterey and acting as advisers are Sherman E. Elworthy, student government adviser, and Mary Golding, dean of women.

Peace Corps' West Coast Representative Grothe Due Here For Speech Friday

Peter Grothe, the man credited with presenting the Peace Corps concept to President John F. Kennedy, will speak here during College Hour Friday, in S-100.

Grothe, attempting to recruit students for the corps, will speak on the subject, The Peace Corps And You, a discussion of a new dimension in American foreign policy and opportunities in the One faculty member here, and two former students, are at present active in the Peace Corps.

They are Desider Slavo, instructor in engineering; Deane Wylie, 1955 graduate and associate editor of The Guardsman, and Gerald Mahon, member of Gamma Phi Ypsilon.

Slavo worked with the corps in Mexico during the summer, while Wylie is serving with a group in the Philippines as a teaching aide, and Mahon is serving with a sanitary project in Colombia.

Grothe, now a teaching assistant at Stanford University, working for his doctorate in political science, is an expert on all phases of this subject, especially Communist affairs.

Shortly after President Kennedy announced the Peace Corps plan, Grothe served for three months in Washington and at the United Nations as a special consultant for the Peace Corps, helping to develop the program.

Grothe will bring to the college a wide range of experience, developed by traveling to 21 countries, including extensive treks into eight Communist countries.

A recent three-month sojourn brought him to the far reaches of the Soviet Union, Hungary, Poland, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia and East Germany. He has talked with Boris Pasternak, taught American football at a Leningrad school, and has had street meetings in every part of Russia, answering questions about the United States.

He spent two years in the army in Berlin where he was in charge of feature stories for the service newspapers, Stars and Stripes.

While in Berlin he made more than 100 trips into East Germany, and

Queen Hopefuls Appear At C-Hour Rally Friday

Candidates vying for the college's Homecoming Queen title will be introduced in a "pre-Homecoming" pep rally during College Hour this Friday at the Redwood Ram, Rally Commission Stan Burford announced last week.

The rally precedes the Rams' grid game against Santa Rosa here.

Applications for the queen contest are being accepted until tomorrow's deadline. Forms can be obtained in S-148.

This semester's pretty song girl quartet and award winning yell leader trio will spearhead the rally.

Quota System To Rule ISC Rushing October 22-27

Members of the eight campus sororities agreed last week to adopt a new quota system of pledging in an effort to insure their continued existence. The system was outlined by Vivian Ward, faculty sponsor of Theta Tau and Kappa Phi.

Since it is required that all sororities be of a certain size in order to remain on campus, a certain quota for rushers for each sorority has been set.

Rushes are required to attend five out of eight Firesides this semester, to be held from October 22 to 27. Last semester, however, rushes could attend any number they desired.

After the Firesides, rushes will indicate a preference for three sororities, instead of the usual one or two. There will be no coffee preference hour this semester.

The rushes who name a sorority as their first choice will be allowed to pledge it until the quota is met. Those remaining who wish to pledge this sorority will have their second and third choices considered, again until quotas are met.

Last semester rushes could choose any sorority, but the sororities had a right to choose those rushes it desired. This semester rushes will be allowed to pledge their choice unless the quota is filled.

All rushes will be guaranteed acceptance in one of their three choices, whereas last semester many rushes did not get into a sorority at all, because they had only one choice.

Official acceptance dinners will be given by the college's eight sororities from November 1 to 9, according to Dean Mary Golding.

Students who are rushing must have a C average for the first midterm period, and must guarantee to be a co-operative and active pledge of the sorority in which they are placed, regulations provide.

Kathy Hallock, Inter-Sorority Council president, informed student leaders that 80 to 90 prospective rushes had attended the ICS tea October 8.

Earnshaw got a laugh from members when he said, "One good bang-up week by the Campus Police clinic non-AS card holders with parking tickets and we will go over the 3000 mark."

Dan Collins, Sophomore Class president, announced that the Sophomore Class plans to give a spirit trophy to the organization showing the most spirit at the Homecoming game with Stockton on October 27.

Campus Affairs Co-ordinator Diane Hardisty told council members that to date 378 students had taken advantage of the opportunity to join the California Physicians Service student health plan.

The key hope of organizing the 1961 Homecoming Day, the Council of Organizations, has elected its president and is set to move ahead with the October 27 plans.

Fred Cherniss, a member of Beta Tau fraternity, was elected last week to the post by representatives of the campus organizations within the COO.

Purpose of the council, besides its first duty of Homecoming, is to act as a campus "United Nations." The COO is the link between the Inter-Fraternity Council, the Inter-Sorority Council and the Club Activities Board.

It is a permanent fixture on the campus, designed to co-ordinate all the clubs and organizations. Like the new student union, however, it must prove itself.

While plans for the Homecoming have been discussed last week by the new council, concrete action cannot take place until the council's constitution is adopted tomorrow.

It's definite the naming of the Homecoming Queen will take place, and also a certainty the annual car parade will take place, but Cherniss said the Homecoming dance, not successful last year, might be cancelled this semester.

Other members elected to posts in the council are Vice President Don Distenfeld, Gamma Phi Ypsilon; Secretary Maureen Farley, Phi Beta Rho; and Treasurer Art Scarsen, president of the Chess Club.

Cutest Couple To Highlight Semiannual Social Fling

With the theme Sophistication, the Freshman Class, under the leadership of President Greg Monk, will present its semiannual ball this Friday night, October 20, in the Colonial and Italian rooms of the St. Francis Hotel.

Bid priority to members of the Freshman Class ends today. Tomorrow and Friday, until the supply runs out, the Associated Students will be able to secure bids until the limit set for 500 couples runs out.

This quota was adopted by Student Council last semester in order to prevent the recurrence of the overcrowded conditions which prevailed at the Freshman Ball last fall at the VU-lage, where two bands were used in two separate rooms.

Students should present their Associated Student card at the information booth at Science Hall, Monk said, and they should also have the name of their date available at that time.

Providing the music for the 9 p.m. to midnight affair will be Kay Backett and his orchestra. Additional entertainment will be supplied by two centerpieces, a combination electric guitarist-singer and a drummer.

Highlighting the evening's festivities will be the traditional "cutest couple" contest. Tallies and number boards will be distributed to prospective candidates upon entrance to the dance. A process of elimination will determine the final winners.

The awards consist of two trophies and a bouquet donated by Phi Beta Rho sorority, Phi Kappa fraternity and Alpha Sigma Delta fraternity.

Dress for the affair is semiformal. A photographer will be on hand in the Georgian Room adjacent to the two ballrooms. A soft drink bar will also be situated there.

Working toward the success of the ball besides Monk are class officers Jose Gutierrez, vice president; Marvin Snipper, recording secretary; Joan Morrow, corresponding secretary; and Ron Biagini, treasurer.

12 Instructors Join College Staff

Appointment of 12 new members to the college faculty was announced today by Lloyd D. Luckmann, co-ordinator, division of instruction.

They are Peter Briggs, accounting; William H. Funke, business; Bernard A. Coyle and Mildred Johnson, chemistry; Lawrence Lawson, criminology; Edwin Knapp and Cornelius McCarthy, English; Norma Carlisle and Marian McDermott, nursing; Frances Galloway, physical education; Robert Hargis and Lee Dolson, Jr., social science.

Dolson, who with Hargis have been here as substitutes during the past year, served at Balboa High School; Knapp at Washington High School; McCarthy at Lowell, Miss Johnson and Funke at Lincoln and Miss Galloway at Pelton Junior High School.

This year's staff shows growth resulting from both increased enrollment and expanded curriculum. Luckmann said. There are now 287 faculty members, including those in administrative positions.

Of the first 40 appointed when the college was founded in 1935, Luckmann pointed out, 25 are still faculty members.

Rams Face Santa Rosa Friday

Bear Cub Eleven Takes On Locals For Last Time

By Dave Kleinberg

A Santa Rosa football club, a team that was humiliated by the Rams last year 50-6 on the loser's home field, gets its last chance to defeat the San Francisco squad this Friday at the college stadium. Kick-off will be at 2 p.m.

After splitting two practice games, Santa Rosa's Bear Cubs opened their Big Eight season, the last because of the realignment of leagues, losing to perennial league power Stockton, 14-0.

The Santa Rosa attack, concentrating on the air game, threw 20 times and completed 11 in their losing effort.

Dino Verges, the 185-pound returner quarterback, is the big gun of the Bear Cub attack, which has netted close to 180 yards a game through the air.

The mainstay of the Bear Cub line is big Jack Lever, 5-8, 200 pounds, and the only returner lineman from last year's first string.

Average weight of the Santa Rosa backfield is 183 pounds, and Coach Grover Klemmer of the Rams would like to have some of that backfield weight. As it is now, the Rams backs are still as fast as ever, but are also as light as ever.

Light backs produce light blocking, which could—in part—explain why the Rams' air game has been so poor this year.

A weakness last year, the quarterback position looked much improved after the Rams had defeated Los Angeles Valley 27-0 this year, rolling up 139 yards passing. Randy Autentico, the starting quarterback, hit on one touchdown pass, and Ben Winslow, the No. 2 thrower, hit two.

Since then the passing has looked like 1960. Against San Mateo 10 days ago the Rams threw nine times, completed one for six yards and had five intercepted. Even though the Rams defeated Los Angeles City College two weeks ago the quarterbacking wasn't particularly impressive.

In other bad news veteran end Earnest Oliver, who was the number three end until his injury, was declared out for the season with a fractured hand, suffered in the Los Angeles City game.

In the top-sized Santa Rosa victory last year the Rams gained 288 yards on the ground. Tom Piggee, a veteran starter, scored once in the game on a 44-yard TD run.

Santa Rosa, which has an enrollment of only 1300, lost all seven of its game last year to finish last.

Opening Tilts In Mural Cage Loop Set For Tonight

The intramural basketball league will get underway tonight, according to Paul Snowberg, president of the Associated Men Students, sponsors of the league.

There will be two divisions, the fraternity and the club leagues.

The games, except for the inaugural week, will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings starting at 7:30 p.m.

The intramural system, an important part of the athletic program, is open to all men students possessing an Associated Student card.

There is an expected turnout of about 16 teams, according to Snowberg. There will be various clubs, fraternities and independent teams represented.

The schedule will consist of a single round robin, and the two division champs will have a championship playoff. The winning team will receive a trophy, and the individual players on the team will receive medals.

Last semester the Associated Men Students, titleholders of the Club Activities Board League, defeated Alpha Phi Epsilon, fraternity league champions, to take the overall intramural title.

Larry Stewart, the league's high scorer, is once again expected to play for The Guardsman.

Footballers' Rally In Final Period Downs Comets, 12-0

By Ivan Tames

Out to avenge their opening league loss to San Mateo, the fired-up Ram footballers pushed Contra Costa all over the field for most of three quarters but couldn't cross the goal until late in the final period to send the Comets down to a 12-0 defeat.

It took an assist from the losers' coach and a sparkling defensive play to finally bring Coach Grover Klemmer's squad a pair of six-pointers in the final nine minutes of action.

In the first half the Rams had seen potential scoring drives thwarted deep in Comet territory on four occasions, and midway through the last period the situation again looked bleak as the winners ran into a fourth down and two yards to go situation on the Contra Costa five-yard line.

Here Comet Coach Vince Malorian, trying to bolster his line, sent in end Mario Mariani but, since the clock was not stopped, this constituted an illegal substitution, gifting the Rams with an all-important first down on the two.

Autentico Scores. Still, it took three more plays as halfbacks Ron Coleman and Tom Piggee got nowhere on backs into the matted Comet line, and signal-caller Randy Autentico finally trailed center Cliff Vattuone in from one yard out with only 8:50 left in the contest.

The outcome was still very much in doubt until with two minutes remaining, alert defensive guard Dave Urrea picked off one of Ron Melton's passes on the run and raced 31 yards down the sideline to paydirt, finally easing the grim tension on the Ram bench.

Coming in widely different manners, the two scores brought the Rams their initial Big Eight victory and third triumph in four outings overall.

Baffico's Punt Blocked. A break for Contra Costa turned out to be the forerunner of the first score when Jerry Ludy partially blocked Jim Baffico's punt to set the home town club up on the Klemmermen's 31-yard line.

But the drive carried only 13 yards before Melton fumbled and Urrea took possession of the loose pigskin. From there the winners crunched out 82 yards, taking 20 plays and 12 minutes to finally reach the promised land.

Key plays included a third down screen pass to Piggee who scampered 14 yards behind key blocks by Dennis Drucker and Jim Baffico, and a fourth-and-one situation on which Coleman squeezed through tackle for two yards to keep the drive alive.

Linemen Look Good. Because of the outstanding showing by the Ram forwards including Jack Burgett, Terry Fischer, Ray Gregains, hard-tackling Vattuone, Baffico, Drucker, Alex Darnes, and especially Urrea, the game was much more one-sided than the score indicated.

Klemmer called the line play "one hundred per cent improved over the San Mateo game," but cautioned, "We still have some mistakes to iron-out."

Contra Costa took the opening kickoff and drove to the Ram 33,

Soccer Squad's High Scoring Offense, Tight Defense Aim For Crucial Victory At Cal

By Vince Liu

Fresh from the 7-0 conquest of the San Jose State Spartans two weeks ago, Coach Roy Diederichsen's soccer team goes against University of California in a "crucial" this Saturday. The game, will start at 11 a.m. in Berkeley.

As both squads are contenders for the Northern California Intercollegiate Soccer championship this year, the winner of this contest should have the inside track toward the league title.

Realizing full well the significance of the tilt, the Rams also have a score to settle with their counterpart across the bay.

For the newcomers on the squad, the scar left by the defeat in the pre-season tourney championship game at the Bears' hands has yet to be erased.

The veterans still remember last year's stunning 1-0 upset by the same team, which ruined what otherwise would have been a perfect season for the Red and White.

As for Diederichsen, who is no Santa Claus when it comes to losing, this is a "must" win if the Rams are to have a chance of capturing their third straight title.

"We have as good a chance as any to take California if the boys give a 100 per cent effort," the mentor declared. Stressing on a defensive game, he is counting on a top performance from his defensive line to hold the Bear front line centered around Bill Barreda and John Foulds, the latter starring for City College two years ago.

The slick Ram defense, which has been very stingy, is headed by Dave Fromer, Hugo Olaya, Caesar Pina, Dennis Minga and Sal Sanchez. The sure-handed Gary DeLong has been reliable at the goal-tending position.

The offense, which found the scoring punch with the seven-goal performance in the league opener, is centered around Al Korbus and Flavio Valiente, who put on a shooting exhibition at the expense of San Jose State.

To recall the Ram-Spartan game could bring dismay to Siobodan Galah, the Spartan goalie who watched with horror as all seven shots bombed past him in that lopsided contest.

With a strong wind against them, the Rams were held scoreless in the first quarter. Then with the elements on the favorable side, Korbus scored to put his team on the scoreboard with 15 minutes elapsed in the second stanza.

Five minutes later Korbus dribbled around three defenders and scored. Not satisfied with its scoring output in the initial half, the Ram forward line scored rapidly in the fourth quarter.

Just when the Spartan defenders were getting tired of Korbus' antics, after the center-forward had knocked in his third straight tally, Valiente scored.

From 18 yards out he sent a bullet straight into the corner of the net to make the score 4-0, with 19:50 left.

Previously the trackmen came in second in a five-day meet held with Oakland, Diablo Valley, San Jose City and the Cal Frosh team. This meet was held without the appearance of two top runners for the team, Roger Ritchey and Andrew Loobey.

This semester's squad is composed of 15 members, John Arberry, Anthony Ferrigno, Peter Giacchetti, Steve Jackson, Frank James, Jack Kyle, Loobey, James Nigra, Alfred Petriat, Tim Power, Ritchey, Valle, Lawrence Van Croyneest, George Varmuza and John Weidinger.

Last year the Red and White trackmen, exhibiting an admirable display of power and confidence until the last click of the stopwatch, defeated second place Sacramento with a final tally of 30-34 to bring home the Big Eight Conference championship.

The idea of a place where the students could study or socialize is strictly an idea put forward in the suggestion box.

This eventually brought about the student union and, ironically, the suggestion box has found its new home in the building it created, sometimes referred to as the Shack.

Taking some of the heavy load from the cafeteria, the Shack has a cigarette and other vending machines along with a supply of doughnuts for the student's convenience. The television set which aired the recent World Series proved successful.

George Cook, chairman of the student union, revealed that many innovations are now in the planning stage. One of these may include performances by the Ram Band.

Coming off of a decisive win over San Jose City College, the college cross-country team faces Oakland, Contra Costa and San Mateo in a four-way meet at 2 p.m. tomorrow in Golden Gate Park.

Paced by star runner Esteban Valle the team ran over the San Jose squad by the score of 44-22.

Homecoming Frenzy Hits College

Car Parade, Crowning Of Queen Tops Rally Friday

By Dave Kleinberg

Highlight of the 1961 Homecoming will be the presentation of the awards for the beauty queen and the best decorated car Friday during College Hour at the Redwood Ram, according to Fred Cherniss, president of the Council of Organizations, the group directing the event.

The car parade, an annual event of Homecoming, is open to all students of the college. Petitions to enter the contest, which is judged on originality, theme, effectiveness and the amount of work called for by the decorators, must be in by today at the Associated Student office, S-134.

Students entering the contest need not belong to an organization but a sponsor is preferred, Cherniss said. Members of the administration, headed by Student Government Adviser Sherman Elworthy, will judge the cars.

Cherniss, counting heavily on the fraternities for support, indicated there would be about 12 cars competing. The top three will be awarded trophies.

Following American college tradition, the Homecoming Queen will reign over the day's activities, which culminate with the Stockton-San Francisco football game scheduled to start at 2 p.m. (See Guardsman sports, Page 4.)

Petitions for queen entries closed last Friday with a favorable turnout. Votes can be cast today in Science Hall at the silver pole.

The balloting ends tomorrow, and anyone with an AS card may vote. The winner of the queen contest and the three runners-up will receive trophies. The queen will receive with her trophy a dozen long-stem roses.

The queen will reign over the game and will preside over the half-time activities. At the game's conclusion she will present a trophy to the most valuable Ram player, selected by members of the athletic department here.

The rally will include entertainment from the college's song girls and cheerleaders.

IRC Fair Features Cultures From 16 Countries Nov. 3

The Eighth Annual International Fair, Bagdad By The Bay, will be held Friday, November 3, from 8-11 p.m. at Marina Junior High School on Fillmore and Bay streets, according to Joseph Jacobsen, International Relations Club sponsor.

The price for this fair is $1 general admission and 75 cents for students. Tickets can be obtained in S-186 or at the door.

Proceeds will be used for the scholarship fund for international students. Jacobsen said that students will be dressed in their native attire and will compete for the best booth, stage production, the sale of foods representative of their native countries, and the best display of world art goods.

The winning "country" will have its name engraved on a plaque. The first part of the stage production includes a demonstration of native dances and songs by members of the International Relations Club and students from San Francisco State and Golden Gate College.

Some of these dances include a Calypso dance representative of Jamaica, an unusual dance representative of the Philippine Islands called the Tinkling (done by dancing between bamboo poles) and an Indian wedding dance.

The next part of the show will be a skit concerning a visitor from Bagdad, Arabia. He will be escorted to the different sections of San Francisco, including Chinatown, North Beach, Russian Hill and the William Tell restaurant, a meeting place for Austrians and Swis.

The show will point out the different patterns of culture in San Francisco and the fact that it is a "melting pot" for people of many nationalities.

Countries represented will be Tahiti, Jamaica, India, Indo-China, Japan, Arabia, Philippines, Latin America, Russia, Greece, Germany, Switzerland, Ireland, France, Holland and Scandinavia.

Looking for new ideas which may prove as popular as the Shack, Paul Snowberg, AMS president, urged students to pour in other suggestions.

The Spirit Trophy, awarded by the Sophomore Class to the organization that contributes the most to Homecoming, will be presented for the first time this year.

The new Council of Organizations is a co-ordinating body among the fraternities, sororities and Club Activities Board, whose first job was to direct the Homecoming.

The officers who have worked on the project are President Cherniss, Beta Tau; Vice President Don Distelheft, Gamma Phi Upsilon; Secretary Maureen Parley, Phi Beta Rho; and Treasurer Art Scarsen, president of the Chess Club.

Although the number 13 is considered unlucky, a casual comparison between the plans for the 1961 and the 1948 Homecoming, utilizing a little subtraction, reveals a contrast which would make the hair on a cat's back stand straight.

The year was classified in the postwar era, the city acknowledged the veterans who were gradually orientating themselves to their surroundings, and the college applauded one of its famous zidiron teams, battered by Ollie Mason and Burl Toier.

Located adjacent to Riordan High School where the present reservoir parking area lies sunken into the earth, was the college's west campus of 1948. Spread over a flat, block-sized area, it boasted numerous shack buildings which shielded the college from the ever present gushes of wind.

Back in "yesteryear" when a club or group scheduled a college event, it was treated by the participants as a midwestern hoochdown. Simulating a Sunday picnic in the country, the activity included the chicken and did not forget the dumplings. The ants were left to fare for themselves.

Homecoming during those years was attended by the majority of the college enrollment. The celebration consisted of both an anticlimax and a climax, concentrated within a 28-hour period.

Acting as a fuse to ignite college spirit, a bonfire rally for both the student body and returning alumni sparked the crisp night with songs and stunts.

The following morning during College Hour activities continued with a menagerie of mock-animals parading in the auditorium where the applause of the students selected the winner of the contest.

In the afternoon spectators crowded into Kesar Stadium to witness the Rams crush San Mateo 26-0. In the second college-sponsored Damon Runyon memorial football classic.

Crowning the day was a hillbilly barn dance in the campus auditorium where students and alumni watched the costume and beard contest, the latter a college first.

Possibly among the dusty tombstones of dead years lies a key to the rusty lock engulfing college spirit of today. Maybe the cliché, "the good old days," is not so old after all.

Soph Class Spirit Trophy Goes To Club Most Active In Homecoming

A Spirit Trophy will be awarded at the half time of Friday's Homecoming football game to one of the student campus organizations.

To win the trophy the organization must be the outstanding participant in Homecoming Week activities and subject to the vote of all the Associated Students.

Each club, sorority and fraternity will offer its best talent in the form of a queen candidate and a decorated car for the car caravan. An organization has to attend the game to collect the trophy, but those organizations whose members do not completely participate in the activities will have a hard time winning the trophy, the sponsors hope for widespread participation, and to keep the stakes at an easy grade they will award second and third place trophies. Every organization that participates will be recognized by points designated by the judges, Collins said.

Dance Cancellation Severe Blow To Fall Festivities

A rigid blow to the 1961 Homecoming was announced yesterday by Fred Cherniss, president of the Council of Organizations, when the traditional festival dance was cancelled.

In the past the Homecoming has been the gala event of the fall season, but with the cancellation of the Homecoming dance, one of the few times in the college's history, festivities can not help but be dampened a little.

Officers of COO, which itself was unorganized until two weeks ago, said the dance was cancelled because planning of the car parade, rally, queen contest and ratification of the organization's constitution left little time for planning of the dance.

The dance, however, may have been called because of the tight social schedule, which already includes close to 18 dances. Last year the Homecoming dance did not profit too well. This could have been a determining factor in this year's cancellation.

Homecomings Past

Will Ghost Of 1948 Rekindle College Spirit?

By Dave Grive

Although the number 13 is considered unlucky, a casual comparison between the plans for the 1961 and the 1948 Homecoming, utilizing a little subtraction, reveals a contrast which would make the hair on a cat's back stand straight.

The year was classified in the postwar era, the city acknowledged the veterans who were gradually orientating themselves to their surroundings, and the college applauded one of its famous zidiron teams, battered by Ollie Mason and Burl Toier.

Located adjacent to Riordan High School where the present reservoir parking area lies sunken into the earth, was the college's west campus of 1948. Spread over a flat, block-sized area, it boasted numerous shack buildings which shielded the college from the ever present gushes of wind.

Back in "yesteryear" when a club or group scheduled a college event, it was treated by the participants as a midwestern hoochdown. Simulating a Sunday picnic in the country, the activity included the chicken and did not forget the dumplings. The ants were left to fare for themselves.

Homecoming during those years was attended by the majority of the college enrollment. The celebration consisted of both an anticlimax and a climax, concentrated within a 28-hour period.

Acting as a fuse to ignite college spirit, a bonfire rally for both the student body and returning alumni sparked the crisp night with songs and stunts.

The following morning during College Hour activities continued with a menagerie of mock-animals parading in the auditorium where the applause of the students selected the winner of the contest.

In the afternoon spectators crowded into Kesar Stadium to witness the Rams crush San Mateo 26-0. In the second college-sponsored Damon Runyon memorial football classic.

Crowning the day was a hillbilly barn dance in the campus auditorium where students and alumni watched the costume and beard contest, the latter a college first.

Possibly among the dusty tombstones of dead years lies a key to the rusty lock engulfing college spirit of today. Maybe the cliché, "the good old days," is not so old after all.

Lights, Sets, Royalties—Money!

New Theater Costs Create Problem

By Anna Papagni

When the little theater was located in the basement of Science Hall, several hundred dollars would finance a production nicely, but now that the drama department makes its headquarters in a new ultra-modern theater, production needs are on a scale equivalent to that of Broadway.

For instance, Michael Griffin, who is the drama director, could command special royalty rates in the old theater because seating capacity was limited to 90 hard chairs.

Now that the present theater provides room for 350 persons, standard rates must be paid even when only 30 tickets are sold.

The college can boast that its theater facilities reach professional proportions, but this also means that production costs are close to a professional level.

An important factor that contributed to the financial minimum in Science Hall was a 15-year accumulation of material which could be adapted to each new show. In the new theater, however, every production must be literally built from the ground up just as in New York where each show is a separate venture.

The drama department needs at least $2000 to produce a full-scale play, and the figure strikes terror in the hearts of the Associated Student Finance Committee.

How is the money spent? The answer is simple if not obvious. First of all, royalties are considered. Fifty dollars a performance is not an unusual price tag unless the plays are restricted to those as old as Shakespeare, but educational theater must provide different types of plays or it ceases to fulfill its function.

Twelve performances at $50 is equivalent to that of Broadway.

IBM OR ICBM? The above is an integral part of the complex lighting system in the college theater. Although the theater has one of the most advanced lighting systems in existence, it has no lights. The purchase of lights, the printing of programs and royalties all add up to a whopping $2000 bill if the drama department is to function full scale this semester. A production in the old theater used to cost only a couple of hundred dollars; now, with an ultra-modern theater, the cost has risen to a scale approximating Broadway.

One Man Lifeguard Force

William Hickey Gets Credit For Ten Ocean Beach Rescues

Ocean Beach's one-man lifeguard is a name that could be properly bestowed to William Hickey, aged 25 and a sophomore here. At the end of April, Hickey, aided by his friend Clifford Tune, saved the life of a middle-aged woman at Ocean Beach. For the deed the college administration sent a letter to each commending them for their alertness. A copy of it was put in their permanent record file.

Since that time the active Hickey, who modestly acknowledges "some where around 10 rescues," pulled two young boys in early this summer, and was close behind the Coast Guard in aiding another.

Hickey, who confesses now to spending at least 38 hours per week surfing at the beach, surfed passed the breakers in June and pulled in two boys who were caught in an undertow.

"I really had trouble out there that time, more so than any other time. The extra weight of the two boys and the stormy weather made it tough to paddle in," he said.

After all, what would Christmas mean to children without the presence of Saint Nick? It would be an empty void, without the flickering light of a single candle.

There are as many variations of Saint Nick as there are children in the world as there is a local demand for Santas in the toy and department stores.

As the television commercial puts it, "One out of every three Americans is overweight." With an approximate college day male enrollment of 3000—about 1000 meet the requirements listed by Joseph A. Amori, college placement director, for the Kris Kringle due to be employed in December.

Possibly next year, if there is a greater need for the employment of Santas, the college may be persuaded to initiate a class in the techniques of helping Saint Nick.

There are no essential qualifications to become a "department store Santa," except possibly a degree in child psychology.

A law in Massachusetts states that everyone must take a bath on Saturday night.

held to determine the public's opinion on the film and its subject matter. A questionnaire was distributed to the audience by Warner Bros. Following is this writer's views on four of the five questions asked in that survey.

"Should teenagers, 16 years of age or more, see it?" Yes!

"Did you find anything censorable in the movie?" No!

"Should there be more movies made dealing with this theme?" Yes!

"In brief, what is your opinion of the picture?"

Primarily because of the acting, the film could well take an Oscar or two. Young children shouldn't be taken to see Splendor In The Grass because the adult they go with might be plagued with embarrassing questions after the movie's conclusion.

Treat Or Trick: Take Your Pick

By Dick Dravagnon

HALLOWEEN, the encyclopedia tells us, was originally a holy day church-celebrated as All Hallows' Eve, the day before All Saints' Day. Also, at a much earlier date at a similar time of year, the Druids held festivities called "Saman" (Summer's End).

In early America, we are told, the day was celebrated with pranks and parties—the custom of tricks or treats—and the pranks eventually became somewhat less than harmless.

Tricks or treats fall easily into three categories.

The spoiled kid who wants both treats and the right to play tricks is in the first division.

The primary example this year is that tough kid from across the tracks, Nicky Khrushchev. He has been showing off a brand new noisemaker which he claims is a real whizbang.

Nicky has been known to have tendencies toward vandalism and bullying, since he is bigger than any other kid his age.

It has been rumored that this year Nicky will not accept anything except German candy.

The next group includes the rowdies who only want to play tricks and don't care a heck of a lot whether they get treats.

These smart-alecs might make insulting phone calls, burn crosses on other people's lawns, paint swastikas, throw stones or bottles through bus windows, or other similar, senseless stunts.

It is expected that certain of the groups in this category will be under control this Halloween.

Finally there are youngsters who are satisfied with the treats and have absolutely no intention of playing tricks except, possibly, on each other.

Dick Nixon and Goodie Knight fit this classification, since they really have no aim to cause trouble for anyone else, but Dick is interested in getting a bag full of "goodies," but rather of apples.

In fact, Dick has said that he would be content with less than the big apples. Just a medium sized apple would do, he said.

But Goodie claimed that he was tired of small apples, and didn't even want plums. He, too, will be trying for the juicy, red, medium-sized apple in this year's apple-bobbing contest.

So Halloween comes each year, and each year it is at once frightful or fun depending on which trick or treator one encounters.

The Bears beat the Redskins for the professional football championship in 1940 by the score of 73-0.

Closed Circuit TV Aids Educational Methods

November Telecast Previews Future Use

By Vince Liu

Progressing right along with and taking full advantage of this era of electronics, the college will have the services of the closed circuit television for practical classroom use in the very near future, Henry Left, radio and TV instructor here, announced recently.

"The prime purpose of the new facility," Left said, "is to transmit instruction, meetings, concerts and things of this nature into classrooms through the television screen."

"A giant step will be taken to provide a better education for the students through better use of modern electronic communication when everything is ready," he added.

At the present time with all the necessary installation of equipment practically completed, Left, with the help of his student crew and various other departments, is conducting a series of experimental telecasts.

The first of such telecasts was made on October 13 during College Hour in the college theater where a concert featuring Ishvani, the Indian dancer, was televised.

About 60 students, who found the theater crowded, were able to view the whole concert in the choral

Brussels Fair Exhibit Honors Photogs

AS Financed Exhibit Sees Stevenson Entry A Winner

International acclaim came to the college when the Exposition Internationale des Ecoles de Photographie in Brussels awarded a certificate of recognition to a print submitted by W. B. Stevenson, a student here, during the exhibit last winter.

Resemblance, the acclaimed print, which was entered under the subject of artistic photos, had previously been a classroom assignment which sought to teach the student the concept of visual comparison in photography.

Further acknowledgment of Stevenson's work came in the appearance of the reprint of the photo in the exhibition's catalog which was distributed throughout the world.

The purpose of the exposition was to view a cross-section of work being done by schools of photography in many nations. This exhibit further endeavored to create contact of these professional institutions, increase the knowledge of teaching methods, and improve relations internationally.

Last year, after receiving the invitation to submit prints, the photography department, with the assistance of Dean Men Ralph O. Hillsman, requested financial aid from the Associated Students who, consequently, appropriated sufficient funds to ship 24 photographs of various subjects to the affair.

The photographs, which were all taken by students who were then enrolled here in the photography division, were exhibited in the Cloud Hall gallery at some time in the near future, according to Emmett Smith, instructor here.

The gallery, on the third floor in the faculty office area, has been used to display the best works of talented students in all phases of photography.

Presently on exhibit is Photography West, a collection of shots by professional photographers of Northern California.

Most of these prints, which will be on display until November 10, were exhibited at state and national conventions, and more recently at the San Francisco State College.

It is hoped by Smith that the Brussels pictures will be included in the next exhibit after the present display is moved.

Drama Productions

Halt Until December

The next scheduled College Hour drama production will be presented on December 1 because the theater is booked for other activities until then, according to Michael Griffin, drama director.

Griffin is considering other campus locations in which to present the shows.

Casting is still in progress as the department is building a repertoire of one-act plays which can be used when there is space, time and demand, Griffin said.

Deserette Joins List Of Groups As New Officers Assume Leadership

By Sandy Sells

ASIDE from regular business meetings and special activities, several clubs on campus are headed by newly elected officers. The Merchandising Club has announced its new officers to be Cecile Farban, president; Jeri Stahl, vice president; Ed Wachah, secretary; Henry Yee, treasurer; Suzanne Murphy, Associated Women Student representative, and Paulette Walti and Joan Bernard, program chairmen.

Deserette is the name of a new Mormon religious club which meets every College Hour in A-108. Students interested in visiting or joining this new group are invited to attend the meetings or to consult John Salala, temporary president.

Officers who will lead Delta Psi sorority this semester are Geri Vickers, president; Beverly Hamer, vice president; Sue Sylvester, secretary; Janus Crociani, treasurer, and Vicki Grant, historian.

Hillel invites members and friends to hear Rabbi Morton J. Tutnauer from Congregation Beth Israel speak on The Jewish Sabbath this Friday during College Hour in C-246.

A speaker from KEAR, the Christian radio station at 97.3 FM, will talk to members and guests of the club of the same name, the event will be held at the Marina auditorium on November 3 from 8 to 11 p.m.

The Hawaiian, Filipino and Chinese Clubs are also participating in the event, along with clubs from San Francisco State College and Golden Gate College. Those students who would like to be last-minute helpers may come to the rehearsal at the Marina auditorium on October 27 from 8 to 11 p.m. or call Ebrahim Mirza, president of IRC, at CA 1-9754.

The Real Estate Club will meet this Friday during College Hour to discuss the possible inauguration of a scholarship fund for real estate majors, according to Nathaniel Dewberry, publicity chairman for the organization.

The theme of the fireside for Delta Sigma Tau sorority, to be held tonight, will be Delta's Goblin Fling.

'Best In Country' Claims Cal Coach As Booters Smash Bears, Face SF State Today

By Vince Liu
BERKELEY, Oct. 21.—Playing with a blazing fury in their eyes the City College soccermen thundered past University of California, 5-2, prompting Cal Coach Bob DiGrazia to tab the Rams as "undoubtedly the best two-year college team in the country."

Al Korbus, the spectacular center-forward, paced the attack with four goals and put on a shooting exhibition to the shock and horror of a pro-Cal crowd.

Cross Countrymen Face Big Test In Conference Opener

Defense of the 1960 cross-country title really gets underway tomorrow when the Rams take on Oakland, Santa Rosa and Stockton in a Big Eight dual meet.

The meet will be held in Golden Gate Park and will cover three miles. Scoring will be done on the individual basis, which means that the colleges will be scored separately against each of the other colleges instead of in an all-over score.

Last Saturday the Rams went to the San Francisco State College invitational meet, to which many Northern California two-year colleges were invited. Modesto, Oakland and Sacramento were present.

Top runners José Valle and John Weindler have alternated in taking first place while the third man, Steve Jackson, and fourth man, Andy Looboy, show much promise, according to Coach Lou Vasquez. The number five man is George Yarmaza.

A big disappointment was the loss of Rich Byers, who was a big hope of Vasquez for number one man, but because of a recurring hip injury he was declared out.

In practice meets, the college has a 2-2 record. With wins over Diablo Valley and San Jose City College and losses to University of California, Freshmen and Sacramento City College, the Red and White distance men expect a good season.

Vasquez says the Rams will be in contention with Sacramento, the big threat for the Big Eight Conference title. The Ram mentor thinks the Northern California championship could go again to last year's champions, Fresno City College.

Ex-Olympian Here To Aid Coed Fencing Team

Jerry Biagini, a former member of the United States Olympic fencing team, is at the college now to assist Lene Johnson, women's physical education instructor, with the coed fencing club, recently organized.

Biagini has aided in preparing the club's team for this afternoon's match between City College and Balboa High School, slated at 3:30 p.m. in the women's gymnasium.

Next Monday, October 30, the volleyball team will travel to the College of San Mateo to be guests at a banquet and to participate in a volleyball game.

Last night the Alumni Sports Night was held in the women's gymnasium at 7 p.m.

Phelan Counting Heavily On Rookie Power To Bolster Cage Strength

With only four returnees from last year's second place team, head basketball coach Sid Phelan is counting heavily on the freshmen for support in the 1961-62 season.

Jesse Arterberry, the 6-6 center from Polytechnic High, is the Rams' only returnee who played first club last year.

Arterberry, whose 93 points made him the team's third highest scorer, was a big rebounder during the Rams' back-to-back second place finish. Glenn Wold, a big center; Dave Roberts, a speedy guard; and Brad Duggan, a rangy forward, are all returnee substitutes. They scored a combined total of 67 points for 14 games.

The first assemblage of the basketball squad will take place next Tuesday, October 31, in the men's gymnasium.

Phelan emphasized this meeting as a must for all varsity candidates. Although they haven't made it official, incoming freshmen expected to give basketball a whirl are Wiley Price; Gene Basiste, the "Goose-Tatum" type guard who made All-City at Mission High; Dewitt Demmer, a guard from Balboa High; Randy Sims, a forward and a teammate of Demmer; and Everett Adams, a little 5-8 guard whose unorthodox jump shot was a "goodie" for three years at Washington High.

The Rams, who have 10 preseason games scheduled this year, open against the Stanford Braves at Stanford on December 1. Six of the 10 practice contests will be played here.

The Big Eight season begins January 12 against Sacramento City College here.

Charles Williams, Bob Grayson, Orlando Camp and Nate Jackson will not be with the club this year.

Rams Battle Mustangs

VICTORY OFFENSE! Preparing for Friday's Homecoming "crucial" against Stockton, quarterback Randy Autentico hands off to veteran fullback Tom Piggee, leading Ram ground-gainer.

Piggee Romps For 163 Yards In 19-6 Victory Over Santa Rosa

By Dave Kleinberg
Tom Piggee rolled up 163 yards last Friday in one of his biggest games before a home crowd to lead the Rams to an impressive 19-6 win over the Santa Rosa Bear Cubs.

Piggee, a 5-foot 8-inch All-Big Eight Conference back and a former prep star at Polytechnic High, tallied the Rams' first score on a 48-yard scamper around left end and raced 26 yards in the fourth quarter to set up the final touchdown.

The 175-pound Piggee, who always seems to play his best game against Santa Rosa, was tough for the Ram defense which held the Bear Cubs, who threw occasionally from the "shotgun," to two completions in 14 attempts with three interceptions.

The score could have been much worse against Santa Rosa. Ben Winslow, the Rams' number two quarterback, replacing the ineffective Randy Autentico, had two long scoring passes nullified by penalties. He hit Verdell Price for 36 yards and Ron Coleman for 31 but both were called back.

Bob Taylor, a speedster, had a brilliant 54-yard punt return called back. The Rams scored first, driving 62 yards in three plays. After Autentico was dropped for no gain, Winslow entered the contest and immediately fired to end Ray Gregains for 14 yards and a first down on the Bear Cub 48.

On the following play, Piggee took the handoff, started wide to his left. The speedster got good blocks on the outside from Coleman and Taylor, and got the "spring" block from 225-pound tackle Jack Burgett.

Three times in the first half the Rams drew within striking distance, but each time were halted by a fumble, penalty or pass interception.

The Ram defense, meanwhile, had stopped Santa Rosa with little yardage. The big line of Dave Urrea, Alex Darnes, Dennis Drucker, Jim Baffico and Burgett put consistent pressure on the Bear Cub quarterback operations.

After the Bear Cubs were forced to punt early in the third quarter, the college drove 70 yards in 11 plays with Coleman carrying three Bear Cub tacklers into the end zone from five yards out for 13-0.

Piggee, a real workhorse with 22 carries on the day, ran five times in the drive for 33 yards.

At the end of the third quarter the Bear Cub closed the score, but because of the obvious Ram domination to that point, few expected Santa Rosa to come closer.

Their drive, which started from the Ram 23, was culminated when Thomas Catregill hit Barry Black behind Taylor for the six points—the Bear Cubs' first pass completion of the day with eight minutes to play in the third quarter.

After Baffico recovered a Santa Rosa fumble on the Ram 40, Piggee took off on the big play of the drive, a 26-yard dash. Taylor ramblined in for the score from the 12 yard plays later.

Injured Al Raine, the Rams' starting halfback, did not see action.

Homecoming Clash Friday Is 'Must Win'

Fighting to remain in title contention, the potent Ram griders run-up against a big obstacle in Friday's Homecoming clash against Stockton, slated for 2 p.m. at City College stadium.

Though they have had their problems this year, the Valley powerhouse hasn't tasted defeat at the hands of the Rams since 1953, in the meantime winning six straight Big Eight titles until a mere missed extra point cost them a seventh crown last year.

If Grover Klemmer's potent crew, which last year fell to the Mustangs 21-12, is to get revenge they will have to do it Friday, since the encounter is the final conference meeting against Stockton because of the realignment of the Big Eight.

The Rams, who divided their opening duo of league assignments, losing to San Mateo and blanking Contra Costa after a pair of exhibition wins, will definitely be "up" for the tilt, according to Coach Klemmer.

Blessed with a defense which is often air tight, to the consternation of their opponents, and a small, fast backfield, the home squad will be meeting a Stockton team which has lost three of five games but defeated Oakland 20-0 last weekend.

In exhibitioners, Larry Kentera's crew fell to Pierce 19-12, and Fresno 21-14, before edging Santa Rosa 14-6, in their opening league fray.

However, Sacramento's Panthers, flexing their muscles this year in an unexpected run for the title, drubbed Stockton 26-6.

Deep in experienced talent, Stockton is led by the passing combo of Rich Handel and Don Watkins and a well-tuned line.

The Ram forward wall has proved to be their best asset this season. Big Jim Baffico (235) and Jack Burgett (228) man the tackle positions, while veteran Al Raine (212), highly touted freshman Dave Urrea (200) and Dennis Drucker (205) lend strength at guard.

Veterans Terry Fischer and Ray Gregains hold down the end spots. Signal-caller Randy Autentico is supported in the backfield by fleet halfbacks Al Raine and Ron Coleman, along with flashy fullback Tom Piggee.

The squad is nursing an assortment of knee and ankle injuries but should be at top strength by game time.

RAMBLINGS Gridgers Face Two Battles This Friday

By Ivan Temes

THE RAMS may have only one football game Friday, but actually they will be fighting two battles.

One will be against Stockton's perennially powerful gridiron squad and the other against themselves once they get within the shadow of the Mustangs' goal line.

For some unexplained reason, Grover Klemmer's charges have had great success in moving the ball all year—that is, until they get past their opponents' 20-yard line.

If they weren't plagued with this problem, there is a good chance the Rams would still be unbeaten instead of having their Big Eight title plans somewhat disrupted by the 22-6 loss to San Mateo.

To recall the somewhat unpleasant circumstances, the Rams trailed the Bulldogs by two touchdowns at the half, had scored once and again moved to the winners' 20-yard line before signal-caller Randy Autentico became separated from the football.

As Assistant Coach Larry Lawson felt, "Had we scored, we probably would have broken their backs, and the momentum given us a win."

Nevertheless, the Red and White were still only a score behind when they drove to the four-yard line only to be halted on fourth down.

The City College heroes didn't have this problem in winning their opening contest over Los Angeles Valley, 27-0, but the Monarchs were probably the most inept squad at the time in the state.

CJCSGA Confab At Monterey Successful

Passage Of Five Resolutions Sets Stage For State Meet

That five out of six resolutions proposed in Monterey on October 21 passed with few alterations made the Northern Region conference of the California Junior College Student Government Association a successful stepping stone for the state meeting, to be held November 16 to 18 in Fresno.

Two-Year College Opens Door For 'Creative Man'

By Dick Dragovan

Importance of two-year colleges was emphasized recently by Thomas Nesbitt, director of testing here, while commenting on a study of the "creative man, 1961," which was done by University of California.

The Institute of Personality Assessment and Research headed by Dr. Donald McKinnon of UC studied a total of 530 "proven" creative men in many fields including architects, writers, engineers and research scientists.

One of the notable common traits was that although their IQ's were no lower than 120, these men were not usually high grade-getters, but were more likely to have received B's and C's.

Since university admittance standards are continually being raised, many of the men who are qualified to be called creative men are therefore kept from enrolling.

"While we can't tell who is creative and who isn't, we feel that we get a considerable number, and we try to see that they are developed to their fullest extent," Nesbitt remarked.

There is also a fair number of persons who have gone through high school without paying attention to a particular line of study and later deciding to return to college only to find that they haven't completed necessary courses, Nesbitt added.

These persons come to the two-year colleges to complete the requirements. "We make a list of the students who have scored in the top ten per cent on our entrance examinations and distribute it to the instructors," Nesbitt said; "in this manner the students with high potential can be recognized and observed specially to be sure that they perform at a level typical of their capabilities."

Thus, though no one can say for sure, creative men who would otherwise be lost can be "saved" by two-year colleges, he pointed out.

Concert Pianist Appearance Heads C-Hour Activities

Along with the regular College Hour meetings of campus clubs this Friday and the film series, a special attraction, the appearance of Ruth Wilkie, concert pianist, will take place in the college theater here.

Her recital will be given on the college's new $3500 Baldwin piano, which is situated in the theater.

Mrs. Wilkie is volunteering her time and talent to appear at the college. Her program is expected to be varied ranging from selections by Mozart to those by Debussy.

Walter Krumm, faculty adviser to the sponsoring United Religious Forum, has urged all students to attend this performance as it will be "very interesting and enlightening."

The program will begin promptly at 10 a.m., he said.

Showing some of the amazing accomplishments and capabilities of business machines and computers. The Thinking Machine will be this Friday's offering by the college film series.

The movie, which stars David Wayne, is scheduled for unreeing in S-136 during College Hour.

Other attractions include The Northwest Wonderland on November 10 and Behind The Scenes Of Disney Studios November 17, according to Madison Devlin, audiovisual aids instructor.

IRC Fair Friday Night

RELAXING on the lawn at the side of the college's "south hill" are four members of the International Relations Club, wearing the costumes which will add a foreign flavor to their eighth annual IRC Fair to be held 8 p.m. this Friday night at Marina Junior High.

Scholarships Benefit From Annual Function

The eighth annual International Fair, Bagdad By The Bay, will be held from 8 to 11 o'clock Friday night at Marina Junior High School at Fillmore and Bay streets, according to Joseph Jacobson, International Relations Club sponsor.

General admission for the fair is $1 and cost to students is 75 cents. Tickets can be obtained in S-186 or at the door.

Proceeds will be used for the scholarship fund for international students.

Jacobson said that students will be dressed in their native attire and will compete for the best booth, stage production, sale of foods representative of their native countries, and best display of world art goods. The winning "country" will have its name engraved on a plaque.

The purpose of the show is to emphasize the different patterns of culture in San Francisco and the fact that it is a "melting pot" for people of many nationalities.

Part of the stage production will be a demonstration of native dances and songs by members of IRC and students from San Francisco State College and Golden Gate College.

Rosie Fann, a representative of China, will present surprise entertainment ending in a powerful climax.

One of the most unusual dances will be a Russian knife dance. Folk dances from Holland, Greece, Austria and other countries around the world will be performed.

In addition to these dances the audience will be able to hear unusual instruments from India and Switzerland, authentic drums and a large alpine horn.

Jacobson said that the vocal part of the program will include songs from France as well as Swiss yodeling.

AWS Semiannual Fashion Show And Tea Set Nov. 15

Autumn, Daze, the theme of the semiannual fashion show and tea sponsored by the Associated Women Students, will be presented Wednesday, November 15, at Smith Hall, Jan Doudiet, AWS president, announced today.

The event is being given for senior women of San Francisco high schools and the AWS here, Miss Doudiet explained. It will last from 3 to 5 p.m. All sorority pledges will participate in the program, and the hotel and restaurant division will provide food and tea.

Preliminary tryouts for models in the show start Friday during College Hour in Janglelow 6. Suzanne Murphy, fashion co-ordinator said.

Models will be chosen from the volunteers, Women five feet, four inches or taller who can wear sizes 8 to 12 may apply. Aiding Miss Murphy in the selection will be Tina Dresner and Melia Fung.

Approximately 13 students will be chosen for models.

Committee heads of the show and tea are as follows: Priscilla Popin and Ellen Atkins, publicity chairman; Betty Rice, programs; Suzanne Murphy, models; Barbara Sperring and Sherry Spindell, decorations; Lana Holliday, foods; Sue Ryken, invitations; and Nancy Brooks and Jerilyn Sciuto, hospitality.

Choir, Glee Club, Orchestra, Band Present Concert Tuesday

Presenting a fall semester concert for the first time, four groups in the college's music department will perform next Tuesday night, November 7, according to Galen Marshall, music instructor and a Cappella Choir director.

The program will start at 8 p.m. in the college theater, and students of the college and the public are invited admission free, Marshall said.

Selections will be presented by the A Cappella Choir, the Men's Glee Club, the Concert Band and the orchestra.

The choir, with piano accompaniment, will sing works of J. S. Bach and three Elizabethan Part Songs by Vaughan Williams. The orchestra will play an English Folk Song Suite.

A Testament of Freedom, by Randolph Thompson, based on four writings of Thomas Jefferson, will be interpreted by the 40-man glee club.

Selections from Royal Fireworks Music, by G. F. Handel, will be performed by the Concert Band.

Marshall added that the annual Christmas Concert is scheduled for December 8 during College Hour.

Inauguration of a fall concert marks the first time that these musical groups have each had two occasions during the fall semester to perform in public.

Freedom, Democracy Theme Of Art Contest

Six Students Discuss Poster Ideas

that are so symbolic of freedom in the United States.

"An idea that is understandable whether people can read or not" is the aim of Rex Holloway, who intends to come through with an idea that can be expressed through "just plain art" through research into the definition of democracy beginning with the encyclopedia.

"Symbolizing freedom of choice without words" is the ambition of Mary Meacham who, although she has not begun to work on her composition, feels that freedom of choice is one of the best examples of democracy.

"Research into politics and general freedoms" will be the first step of Ross Hill. Hill hopes to find that students from 13 western states and four Canadian provinces are competing for.

The contributors' first drafts will be voted upon by the art 61a and art 62 classes and the 15 to 20 best ideas will be selected for completion and entry, Eckert said.

"By going back into American history I hope to find many facets of freedom," Angeline Or said.

"The idea is much more important than the manner of representation," Douglas Haight, who is not as worried about the finished product as he is about coming up with a valid idea, said.

William Eckert, advertising art instructor, added that the students work singly to create an idea without a difficult technique or craftsmanship.

The winning posters will be lithographically reproduced and distributed throughout the world to countries where illiteracy is widespread. The posters, done in any medium, must "Break The Language Barrier" to express freedom.

The grand prize of $500 is one of $2250 worth of prizes offered to the winner of the contest. Recognition in the art world is another aim that students from 13 western states and four Canadian provinces are competing for.

The contributors' first drafts will be voted upon by the art 61a and art 62 classes and the 15 to 20 best ideas will be selected for completion and entry, Eckert said.

Regional Conference Reveals Lack Of Political Insight

ONE INESCAPABLE TRUTH descended upon Monterey Peninsula College last week-end when the two-year colleges of Northern California met there for a one-day conference to discuss each other's similar problems. This one truth was that City College of San Francisco was the largest and most active delegation.

However, the delegates had to leave the conference without all of their proposed legislation passed. The reason for this political setback can be attributed to certain factions present who reverted to filibuster and vote-blocking techniques, apparently just for the sake of wielding political authority by means of parliamentary law, and perhaps just to get attention.

Naturally, no group should expect everyone else to agree with its proposals on all issues, but what ensued on the floor of the general assembly was utter defiance and sheer stubbornness.

Of course, the metropolitan colleges can't always see eye-to-eye on matters that plague the rurally located colleges, but here again, that's exactly what the purpose of these meetings is—interrelation of ideas—tolerance of ideas—co-operation through similar ideas!

Two new colleges were in attendance: College of the Siskiyous and South County (San Leandro-Hayward area). They were neither lacking in aplomb in their quest for recognition nor afraid to ask aid and advice from the older guard to insure the success of their new institutions.

Our delegates in both the workshops and in the two general assemblies were outspoken, but not overbearing. The 25 students attending this one-day affair represented the college well.

Any delegation to such a conference or convention bears a two-fold responsibility: (1) Make its influence and presence felt without being domineering or boisterous; (2) Respect and offer guidance to the smaller groups present, lest they be resentful and unco-operative.

City College met these requirements adeptly, and didn't lose their heads about it. Monterey was the HOST, but San Francisco was the MOST!!

800 Soaked Students Rally Grid Support

IT WAS THOUGHT by many administrators and student leaders here that the sudden downpour last Friday would not only soak the field of the football stadium, but also dampen the spirit of the college's Homecoming activities that day.

Ironically, somehow the unexpected rain resulted in an unexpected turnout at the Stockton game and was the largest crowd in the history of the new stadium.

Dean of Men Ralph Hillsman estimated about 800 students in attendance after a half-time count of 600 plus had been taken.

Once college spirit starts raining, IT POURS!

The Spectator Fifth Film Festival Perks Up Bored Fans

FOR THOSE who would like to get away from viewing the conventional Hollywood movies, the International Film Festival opens its fifth season in San Francisco tonight at the Metro theater on Union Street.

This is the only such event held in the United States.

The best pictures produced by more than a dozen different countries have been imported here for special performances. Nations participating this year include Argentina, Spain, Yugoslavia, Hungary, Italy, India, France, Greece, Israel, Japan, Poland and the Soviet Union.

In the four years that this festival has been offered to San Franciscans it has been met with great success by both the movie-goers and the drama critics. It has also given the city prestige over other large metropolises throughout the nation.

All foreign films are shown with English subtitles.

Student prices are available for the series, which will end on Tuesday evening, November 14.

GEARY BOULEVARD is once again blessed with the reopening of a hard ticket (reserved seat) movie palace. It's the Coronet theater near Arguello Boulevard, and the movie which is expected to attract throngs is The King Of Kings.

Telling the story of Jesus, it opened last Thursday on the theater's 70 mm. technirama screen, in color.

Thirty-five years ago the late brilliant producer, Cecil B. deMille, brought this same subject to the screen.

It looks as though Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer may have another academy winner in The King Of Kings. Ben-Hur, which topped practically everything last year, just closed in San Francisco a couple of months ago after a stay of almost two years.

Another Geary Boulevard theater, this one 18 blocks down the street, is expected to open on a reserved seat basis around Christmas time. It's the Alexandria, and the movie will be El Cid with Charlton (Ben-Hur) Heston.

This film should fare better than Exodus did when it opened at that movie house late last year, surviving only about six months there.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

(Editor's Note: Letters to the Ram's Horn may be left with the telephone operator in Science Hall or in The Guardsman office, Room 304, Science Hall. Deadlines are 10 a.m. each Wednesday. If so desired the author's name will be withheld, but the identity of the author must be known to the editor.)

Splendor Not Splendid

Editor, The Guardsman:

Movies may be better than ever, but your entertainment columnist goes quite far out on the proverbial limb when he decks Splendor In The Grass with such liberal accolades as appeared in last week's issue of The Guardsman.

However, I do agree with him that there are a few notable things about the film—the tremendous step downward in performance for both Ella Kazan and William Inge, the harrowing image of Natalie Wood as a "sweet young thing," and the vain attempts of a new actor, namely Warren Beatty, to make an adequate showing of himself in the face of such odds.

Kazan, with such successes as A Streetcar Named Desire, On The Waterfront and East Of Eden to his credit, all of which are wonderfully realistic, fell on his face when he agreed to direct this mess of sentimentality.

And most of Inge's work in the past, such as Come Back Little Sheba, Picnic and Bus Stop, has been excellent entertainment, but in Splendor he has created a soap-opera that even Fannie Hurst would disown.

Shots At RAMdom

By John Muller

FOURTEEN years ago this college really must have had at least one center of perplexity. Confusion, question and frustration reigned in many of the college's departments, especially in the office of the registrar.

Before 1947 the college had no IBM machines.

Everything had to be done manually. The entire registering enrollment had to be alphabetized by hand.

Midterm and final grades must have been a tedious process with no IBM pencils to mark the nonexistent IBM cards that could be quickly and speedily sent through the yet-to-be-developed IBM machines.

Imagine what the college's registrar, unflinching Mary Jane Learnard, would have done this semester without the IBM's.

Most likely, with more than 4400 course changes alone during the first 10 days of instruction, the college would be minus one registrar and her entire staff.

However, almost everything seems to be going smoothly for the registrar who recovers from the shattering experience of having to "act" with Miss Wood.

Concerning the questionnaire (all poor movies need gimmicks to put credit, all of which are wonderfully realistic, fell on his face when he agreed to direct this mess of sentimentality.)

And most of Inge's work in the past, such as Come Back Little Sheba, Picnic and Bus Stop, has been excellent entertainment, but in Splendor he has created a soap-opera that even Fannie Hurst would disown.

IRC Fair Nears Hour Of Truth

Confusing Fun Plagues Bagdad Bay Rehearsal

By Gerald Almendarez

Rehearsing for the coming eighth annual International Film Festival is confusing fun.

Adapting dances to recordings, language barriers in the singing numbers and the size of the production are causing the fun-filming confusion. Although the players get frustrated from overworking at times, they are also joking and laughing all the while.

But the hour of truth comes Friday at 8 p.m. and the fair's student adviser, Joseph Jacobsen, expressed confidence that the show will go on—as shows always do.

Bagdad By The Bay, the fair's theme this year, will be staged once more in acknowledgment of the true cosmopolitan population of the city, by the college's International Relations Club.

The fair, intended to dispense flavor of an around the world trip, will feature colorful native costumes, music, dances, arts and crafts and food displays.

An added attraction will be the 15-member San Francisco-Finnish orchestra. The guest-assisting ushers will be dressed in their respective national costumes.

In former years high dignitaries have attended the fair, including the mayor and ambassadors of the nations represented in answer to formal invitations from the college.

All of the active participants, who number more than 100, are natives of the lands they portray. The students attend college here or at other San Francisco colleges.

The various national groups will again perform in competition for the honor of having their country's name and year engraved in the IRC plaque.

The stage manager's duties are being handled by Hernandez Garcia and the food displays and other exhibits are directed by Maria Luisa Radillo.

Long-Lost Articles Seek Owners

'Misplaced' Department Offers Refuge

Everything from a green plastic ruler to a claim check from the fix-it shop for a bicycle has found its way to the lost-and-found office, which has four "turn-in" locations on the campus—C-303, A-301, S-149 and the finance office in Smith Hall.

But where is the traditional optimum of youth?

Apparently students feel that what they have misplaced, misplaced or lost is irretrievable, because at the end of every year a substantial amount of unlabeled clothes, books and glasses are given by the college to good will organizations throughout the city.

Ruth Hoburg, secretary to educational management, who operates the main lost and found location in Cloud Hall, already has a collection of coats, jackets, sweaters, shoes, purses, textbooks and notebooks.

Two pairs of prescription glasses, a bundle of flash cards, keys, an asthma kit and a well-used paperback copy of The Ugly American fill in the spectrum of items without owners.

New additions to the assemblage are being turned in daily so that students who do not see their belongings in this list can be justifiably hopeful.

As the rainy season approaches a deluge of variously decorated umbrellas is expected.

If a name is written on the article, the individual is notified by postcard, but this courtesy is sometimes frustrated when the owner's local address is not easily available. Mrs. Hoburg cautioned students to identify their books especially with local name and address.

Anyone who enters the Cloud Hall branch need not be dismayed nor discouraged when he sees the cartoon on the wall of a rather befuddled individual who is apparently mumbling, "I'd sure like to help you but I don't work here—I'm lost!" It's only a joke.

Floristry Dept. Enters Design Show

Exhibits Feature All Phases Of Basic Techniques

For the fourth consecutive year retail floristry majors here exhibited flower designs in the annual San Francisco Design Show held at the flower market at Fifth and Brannan streets on October 22, according to Maryhope Jacks, floriculture instructor here.

Basic techniques were illustrated in all phases of flower design, including wiring and taping, funeral work, simple vase design and the designing of corsages, Mrs. Jacks said.

Second and fourth semester students demonstrated these basic principles, while the first and third semester group taped as well as answered questions concerning the purpose and advantages of the course.

Representatives from the college were George Horio, Al Cove, Maxine Garden, Dick Lendall, Joanne Taylor, Mike Ward and Sanford Wheeler.

Open only to retail floristry majors, the design show offers students an excellent opportunity, Mrs. Jacks said, to show what they can do while at the same time placing themselves in a position for employment offers and opportunities in the floristry field.

Club Cavalcade Foreign Flavored Buffet, Dinners Highlight Sorority Activities

AN ACCELERATED activities schedule for the sororities on campus gets underway today.

Phi Beta Kappa will start off by giving an annual Italian dinner tonight from 6:30 to 8:30 in Smith Hall. The meal will include imitation Italian "accents" and plenty of spaghetti. The sorority is also currently working on a service project of entertaining convalescent children at Shriners Hospital.

A Halloween party given on October 30 by Gamma Sigma Sigma was the entertainment provided for the servicemen patients in Letterman Hospital. Favors were filled with candy and cookies and covered with colored crepe paper. Cookies were homemade.

Gamma Kappa Beta will also hold their pledge dinner in the social room of the women's gymnasium on the afternoon of November 5.

That evening Zeta Chi will follow with a buffet dinner to be held in the same place from 6 to 8. Sorority members will officially welcome the new pledge sisters at this dinner.

Theta Tau will give a luncheon for new members from 6:30 to 8:30 next Wednesday evening. On hand for entertainment will be Fred Cherniss and Roi Cann for a rendition of folk songs.

Next Thursday will be Kappa Phi's Ban for the use of the social room of the women's gymnasium from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. A Chinese dinner, traditional with the sorority, will be given for new pledge sisters.

Delta Sigma Tau sorority has introduced its officers for the fall semester: Carol Ann Henton, president; Harriet Brown, vice president; Gloria Nelson, secretary; Nettie Cook, treasurer; Lois Kinzy, pledge mistress; and Rebecca James, historian.

A new service project for Delta Psi has started this semester. Several days a month members visit the homes of bedridden children.

The Collegiate Christian Fellowship has a meeting this Friday during College Hour in C-201. Featured will be a tape recording on history of the Bible. This club meets tomorrow at 7:45 p.m. at the Third Church of Christian Science.

The church is located at 1250 Haight street, between Lyon and Baker streets.

Drama Department Casting Starts Soon

Casting will begin soon in the drama department for four one-act plays, and according to Michael Griffin, drama director, anyone interested in trying out the shows can apply to him in the theater.

The new plays to be added to the repertoire are Box And Cox by John Madison Morton, William Saroyan's Hello Out There, The Farce of The Worthy Master Pierre Patefin, translated by Moritz Jagendorf, and George Bernard Shaw's Dark Lady Of The Sonnets.

The next College Hour production is scheduled for December 1 in the theater, but Griffin hopes to present a show before then in another campus location.

Statler Foundation Grants $100,000 For Enlargement Of Hotel, Restaurant Division Here

Acceptance by the Board of Education of a $100,000 grant from the Statler Foundation will provide additional student-instructor space to the hotel and restaurant division of Smith Hall.

President Louis G. Conlan announced that the allocation, accepted at the October 24 meeting of the Board of Education, is contingent on the willingness of local industries to raise the remaining $50,000 of the full sum.

The gift will provide two-thirds of the funds necessary for the building of a lecture-demonstration room, a demonstration kitchen and a library adjacent to the present site.

Prominent hotelman Willard E. Abel, president of the St. Francis Hotel Corporation, who represented the college in the transaction, stated, "The gift is a fitting recognition of the college's 25 years of excellent service as a training institution for our industry."

Members of the advisory committee, consisting of the prominent leaders of labor and management in the field under the chairmanship of George D. Smith, Editor-in-Chief of The Guardsman, were leaders—considered too lengthy—style and lack of features.

Awards, presented each semester to college and university newspapers entered in ACP competition, are based on general content, style, writing and coverage. ACP's board of judges is comprised of journalistic authorities from various newspapers and academic staffs.

ACP considers an All-American rating as indicating distinct superior achievement, and First Class as comparable to "second class." The two other ratings are Second Class, indicating "good," to "very good" and Third Class for "fair" to "good."

Meibine Fills Post On Student Council

By Bob Hacker

The post of sophomore council member, left vacant when Chuck Wood relinquished his duties, was filled last week when Student Council elected Bruce Meibine to Wood's position.

Wood resigned from his post after he obtained a part-time job, because he feared the job would interfere with his duties as a council member.

Meibine, who received a great majority of the council votes, ran against Gary Wayman, also a sophomore.

Vice president of Alpha Gamma Sigma, Meibine took the oath of office yesterday and is now an official member of council.

Besides electing Meibine, council also approved five budgets totaling $6744.25.

The budgets passed were the Associated Women Student budget for $567.25; convention budget for $567.25; administrative budget for $400; controller's budget for $3100; and drama budget for $2000.

There was quite a bit of discussion over the proposed drama budget among council members, because many could not understand why drama needed so much money.

That many members were opposed to granting the allotment was obvious in the vote which was seven for, five against and one abstention.

Inter-Fraternity Council President Bob Rogers announced that during Pledge Week the campus fraternities would participate in a "paint the student union" project. Members from different fraternities will paint the union and pull the weeds that surround the building.

Sightless Educator To Lecture In C-Hour

Onvia Ticer, a totally blind teacher of the third grade at Grant school in San Lorenzo, will be the guest speaker during College Hour Friday, November 10, in S-100. The program is being sponsored by the Student California Teachers Association.

Miss Ticer will present a tape and slide program entitled The Blind On The Job. This presentation is a series of interviews with several blind persons who have been successfully employed in normal occupations.

In addition to the slides and taped interviews Miss Ticer will discuss some of the facts about blindness and how one adjusts to it. The program promises to be both interesting and informative, and SCTA officers invite all students to attend.

During her visit to the college Miss Ticer will also give two other lectures. These will be for the education classes, and Miss Ticer will discuss methods of teaching, especially those which she has invented herself and which she uses in her own classroom.

James Schwabacher To Sing In Theater

James Schwabacher, well known San Francisco tenor, is expected to sing before an overflow crowd during College Hour Friday, November 10, in the theater in the arts building, Meyer Cahn, music instructor here, said today.

Schwabacher, who is also the president of the paper company, formerly appeared on television every Monday night and his singing is widely acclaimed.

According to Cahn, Schwabacher has prepared an "interesting and enlightening" program for his audience and he is expected to attract a very large audience.

Ram Booters Win Handily; Gridders Get Close Call

Offensive Splurge By Korbuses Paces Leaders Past SF State, 7-0

Local Eleven Still In Contention After 7-6 Thriller Over Stockton

By Vince Liu

Scoring early and often, the high flying City College soccer team romped to a 7-0 shutout victory over San Francisco State College last Wednesday for its third straight win.

Coach Roy Diederichsen's powerful squad will put its perfect record on the line when it takes on tough California Aggies this Saturday at Balboa Soccer Stadium. The tilt is slated for 11 a.m.

Showing no sign of a letup after a crucial victory over University of California, the rampaging Ram booters continued the merciless onslaught on their opponents, this time at the expense of the Gators.

All Korbuses, the irrepressible All-Conference center-forward who has been driving opposing goalies crazy with his heavy bombing, kicked across five more goals in raising his three-game scoring total to an incredible 13.

On the very first offensive play of the game Ivan Burmudez took a pass from Dennis Minga and booted home the first tally with the contest barely 30 seconds old. That set the tempo for the Ram forward line.

With the Gators still wondering what hit them, Korbuses tallied twice on quick passes from Minga and Vince Liu. Before the first quarter was history, Coach Pina, possibly the best offensive halfback in the league, connected on a spectacular midair smash from 12 yards out to send his team to a 4-0 lead.

The heavy firing, "cooled" down in the second stanza as the Gator eleven "held" the Red and White to one goal. A Korbuse head shot off a high loft from Dave Fromer gave the home forces a five-goal half-time lead.

Two more goals by Korbuses, the one-man wrecking crew, in the third quarter prompted Diederichsen to clean his bench. In order to keep the scoring down.

The Ram defense was once again superb. Goalie Gary DeLong, the forgotten man on the field, probably had more concern with the possibility of catching a cold than with making saves as he had but a couple of shots to field all afternoon.

The halfback line, the backbone of a soccer team, has been the key of the Ram success thus far. Only through the smooth footwork of Pina, Fromer and Minga has the forward line been able to generate its attacks.

Team balance is another big factor in the Rams' current surge to the top. While the offense is leading the league with 19 goals in three games, the defense is the stingiest in the league with only a two-goal yield.

Murals Swing Into Second Week

This week's intramural basketball state continues tonight as Zeta Phi Sigma meets Alpha Sigma and Alpha Kappa Rho meets Beta Tau at 7:15 and 8:15 o'clock, respectively, in the men's gymnasium.

Last week saw The Guardians fall prey to the Collegiate Five by the score of 36-22. The Electroners swam the Newman Club 43-25, the Untouchables squeezed by the Alii 23-24 and the Believers win by forfeit over the Student Government team.

Zeta Phi Sigma ran over Beta Tau by the score of 34-20. The scheduled game between Alpha Kappa Rho and Zeta Phi was forfeited to Zeta Phi because Alpha Kappa Rho failed to appear for the game.

High scoring for the Collegiate Five was Ed Rice, who dunked 10 points. Dave Towner and Harbie Briscoe led the Untouchables' with 14 and 9 points, respectively. Bill Nevins led the resurgent Guardians team with nine points.

Sid Phelan, referee for the intramural games, stated that this semester's teams seem to be much stronger and more evenly balanced.

Showing a marked disregard for the statistics stacked heavily against them, the City College gridders took advantage of their biggest break of the year to eke out a fourth-quarter 7-6 decision over Stockton in Friday's rain-splattered Homecoming clash. It was the first win since 1953 for Grover Klemmer's men over the perennial Valley powerhouse.

Sacramento deadlocked the Rams in second place with a 3-1 mark by downing Oakland, 26-12, as Big Eight leader San Mateo walloped Contra Costa, 54-6.

Picking up only 60 yards on the ground and outgained 289-92 overall, the victors got their big chance when a bad pass from center went between the legs of a befuddled Mustang punter Tom Estes.

He finally caught up with the elusive pigskin on his own four-yard stripe, but Ram end Bill Fischer was right there to fall on Estes.

However, the staunch Stockton line stiffened, stopping Tom Piggee twice and Ron Coleman once, short of the goal. On fourth down, halfback Bob Taylor plunged one yard over the left side of his line to deadlock the score.

Here, center George Benkle, who earlier did a swan dive to block the Stockton extra-point attempt, was successful on the second placement kick of his career, but a strong trailing wind was necessary to aid the weird boot over the crossbar.

Neal Shea blocked an ensuing Stockton punt four plays later.

The Mustangs, who tallied in the second period on a seven-yard jump-pass from Rich Handel to end Roger Smith, almost squeezed out a victory in the final seconds as they marched for their own 20 to the winners' 25-yard line before the Ram secondary stiffened.

Winning Coach Klemmer lauded his defensive backfield, led by Piggee, Taylor, Coleman and John Daigle, for their play against much taller offensive ends all year, while line coach Alex Schwarz had nothing but praise for his forwards.

All four ends, Shea, Terry and Bill Fischer and Ray Greggins; tackles Jim Biffico and Jack Burgett; guards Alex Darnes, Dave Urrea and Dennis Drucker; and centers Benkle and Cliff Vattuone—had big moments in the win.

The Rams were irate over an apparent mistake by an official, which cost them a clinching last-quarter score. Coleman made a great over-the-head grab of an 11-yard pass from Ben Winslow but the official, some 25 yards away from the play, ruled that the Ram speedster's feet landed out of the end zone.

The Recreation Association is currently preparing for the all-college sports day on Saturday, November 18.

New 'Big 8' Christened Golden Gate League

The eight-team conference in which City College will participate next year has been officially named the Golden Gate League.

Officials from the member colleges will meet here December 8 to iron out final plans.

In a team election, the Ram football squad has chosen All-Conference fullback Tom Piggee and tackle Jim Biffico as co-captains for the year.

Big Eight Standings

Team	Won	Lost
San Mateo	4	0
San Francisco	3	1
Sacramento	3	1
Contra Costa	2	2
Santa Rosa	2	2

Fencers To Attend Clinic Saturday

The college's fencing club will attend an all-day fencing clinic at Letterman General Hospital this Saturday, sponsored by the Fencing League of America and the Western Intercollegiate Fencing Association, of which the college is a member.

A meeting for judges and directors will be held in the afternoon, followed by competition in the evening. Lene Johnson, women's physical education instructor here, stated:

Because there are so many competent men fencers here this semester three men's fencing teams have been organized, with Harry Jorgensen, Dan Early, Marcia Spears, Jennifer Renaldi and Maureen Corrigan.

The Recreation Association is currently preparing for the all-college sports day on Saturday, November 18.

Diederichsen, Hopes For Title Contest

NO MATTER what happens the rest of the year, the powerful City College soccer team can count its season as a highly successful one.

Actually, it's highly unlikely that the team will suffer any defeats, but just to make sure Roy Diederichsen's talent-laden eleven completely outclassed their closest tormentor, Cal, by a lopsided 5-2 margin.

Cal Coach Bob DiGrazia didn't mince any words as he flatly declared, "You, undoubtedly, have the best two-year college team in the country."

Led by sure-fire All-American Al Korbuse, who booted through the amazing total of eight goals in his first two games, the Rams may even have the best college team—bar none—in the nation.

DiGrazia, whose club was edged in last year's NCAA regionals by champion St. Louis, felt the Rams could certainly battle the Midwest outfit on an even basis.

RAMBLINGS

By Ivan Temes

"However," he cautioned, "they play awfully aggressive ball and have already suffered two broken legs this year, one in their own practice."

"Their superior size would be an advantage, but such a match would be an interesting one to watch."

However, such a contest—one which would compare favorably for thrills with any sports event in the country—can never come about.

The Rams, sole two-year college entry in the NCISAC, can amuse themselves all year knocking off the likes of Cal, Stanford, San Jose State, et al, but they want to advance any further the college is left out in the cold.

Under the NCAA's archaic system only four-year colleges can compete in the nationals. Last year a possible national junior college championship game matching the Rams against Orange County (New York) fell through because the state frowns on out of state championships.

Diederichsen still retains hope that a national title game can be arranged.

Optimism Prevails Over Soccer Team

This year, says the successful college mentor, "Last year there were some complaints because we had three first string All-Americans (Jim Lynch, now with USF, Dave Kingsley and Bob Papara)."

"With our team we could have had five or six, and I'd sure like to show these Eastern teams how strong we are."

This year's team may not have the big names of last year's squad but, according to Julie Menendez, San Jose State coach, DiGrazia and Diederichsen, the men have displayed much more of a team effort, which surpasses last year's club.

The offense, aided mainly by Caesar Pina, Ivan Burmudez and Roberto Salazar, is centered around Korbuse and Flavio Valiente, while Dave Fromer, Dennis Minga and Hugo Olaya head a strong defense.

Goalie Gary DeLong is rated an All-American candidate, and he showed tremendous courage playing against Cal while still suffering the after-effects of a tonsil operation.

Weight Room Gives Students Chance To Keep Pace With U.S. Trend

The weight room, located in the men's gymnasium, is rapidly growing into a major phase of the athletic program.

Only in existence for two semesters it is now used for regular physical education classes and for students who want to work out.

There is a national trend toward weight-lifting in athletics. Evidence of this is that all of the professional football teams send out pamphlets on physical fitness to their rookies to offer advice on how to get in shape before their practice begins.

According to Sid Phelan, weight room instructor, there are three reasons for the room's popularity. Students want to improve their appearance and condition and gain proficiency in athletics.

Rams Tackle Oakland Friday; T-Birds Seek First Big 8 Win

When the Rams venture into Bushrod Stadium at 2 p.m. Friday to meet the Oakland Thunderbirds they may be wondering why a perennial powerhouse like the T-birds suddenly find themselves in last place.

"Injuries have done it," Coach Don Gabor moaned; "five first-stringers have been out of action, including our top end, 6-5, 225-pound Tim Grasso."

The Thunderbirds, who alternate between a single wing and a T-formation attack, have lost four straight games. Three of them in Big Eight Conference play, including a 20-0 loss to Stockton 10 days ago.

This sets the stage for the Rams to seek revenge. Last year the locals were moving swiftly along toward the Big Eight title when they were hit and knocked sideways by Oakland, 36-24.

The T-birds are minus All-Conference fullback Wendell Haynes, who put on a one-man show against the Rams last year, but Oakland is high on newcomer Dale Rubin, a 9.6 sprinter who made All-OAL at Oakland Technical High.

Ralph Melton, a reserve quarterback, pressed into duty for the ailing Willie Loughlin, has had his throwing problems, but could get back on the line when Grasso returns this week.

If anything, the T-birds can claim the biggest lineman in the league in starting tackle, 285-pound Fred Pillars, 22 pounds heavier than the Rams' heaviest lineman.

On the home front the Rams, after dropping the league opener to top contender San Mateo, bounced back with two straight victories, Contra Costa 12-0, Santa Rosa 19-6.

Little Tom Piggee, an All-Big Eight back, showed why 10 days ago when he had his biggest day, racing for 163 yards in the Santa Rosa victory.

Bob Taylor, another speedster, proved an asset to the Rams since leaving the second string. Moved up to the first club after an injury sidelined starting halfback Al Raine, the speedy Taylor scored on a 12-yard romp and had a 55-yard punt return nullified by a penalty.

The Ram ground game, with blocking up front from Cliff Vattuone, Alex Darnes, Dave Urrea, Jim Biffico, Dennis Drucker and Jack Burgett has worked well.

IFC Pledge Week Plans Include Student Union Cleanup, Games, 'At Last' Dance November 17

Plans for Pledge Week by the Inter-Fraternity Council include a program to clean and paint the student union by the pledges and the IFC-sponsored dance and pledge games, Bob Rogers, IFC president, revealed today.

The IFC, co-ordinating with the Inter-Sorority Council, will assist in delegating pledges to the union clean-up. Pledge Week commences next Monday and ends with IFC's dance Friday night.

"IFC has gone all out to present to the Associated Students a dance which will properly end Pledge Week, the outstanding IFC affair of the semester," Rogers stated.

The dance is themed At Last, a semi-formal affair presented in the Empire Room of the Sir Francis Drake Hotel, featuring the seven-piece band of Sal Vance, from 9 p.m. to midnight.

Rogers stated that this semester's Pledge Week will consist of four days, eliminating Wednesday, with the regular pledging activities slated for the cafeteria between 7:30 and 11 a.m.

Fraternity pledges, George Cook, student union manager said, will clear the grounds surrounding the shack of weeds, also paint the new archway connecting the two rooms composing the union.

The sorority pledges are expected to fashion curtains and possibly some tablecloths for the inside of the shack, Cook commented, "to lend a pleasant atmosphere to the plain rooms."

ISC will send pledges to decorate Smith Hall before and clean up following the AWS fashion show and tea. The decorations will include dried leaf arrangements.

During College Hour November 17 IFC will sponsor the semiannual pledge games in the college stadium, where fraternity pledges compete against each other for an overall perpetual trophy.

Pie eating, egg throwing, balloon blowing contests and a relay are scheduled for the games.

AWS Hosts Fashion Show And Tea Next Wednesday

Autumn Daze, the Associated Women Student fashion show and tea, will be presented next Wednesday in Smith Hall, Jan Douillet, AWS president, announced today.

Present plans as scheduled for the show provided that at 3 p.m. refreshments of tea and cookies will be served in the fountain room of Smith Hall. At 3:30 p.m. the program will begin in the larger section.

Fifteen senior women from each of the San Francisco high schools and all AWS here have been invited. Four new members of the college faculty have also been asked to attend as special guests. They are Mildred Johnson, Frances Galloway, Norma Carlisle and Marian McDermott.

Special entertainment and modeling of the fashions will be included in the program. Miss Douillet said that a variety of "international flavor and amusement" will be presented in the show.

The theme of the show will have for its decor the corresponding seasonal colors of brown, gold, orange and yellow. It will last from 3 to 5 p.m.

Esorts are being selected from men students who have volunteered recently.

Homecoming Hails Queen

Although dampened slightly by the weather and the cancellation of the annual dance, the 1961 Homecoming was considered "highly successful," according to Fred Chernis, president of the Council of Organizations, which directed the event.

Pretty five-foot three-inch Linda Ann Hines, sponsored by Alpha Sigma Delta, who was elected Homecoming Queen by Associated Student vote, was crowned during College Hour and reigned over the day's activities.

She presented the spirit trophy, a new award to the campus organization contributing most to Homecoming, to Alpha Sigma Delta at half-time of the football game, and at the game's conclusion she presented the Most Valuable Player Award.

Although rain poured at half-time, the crowd was the largest the Rams have drawn this year, and the 7-6 comeback win over Stockton College, the first victory over the Mustangs in eight years, was a perfect climax to the day.

Runners-up to Miss Hines in order were Suzanne Murphy, sponsored by Beta Tau, Carolyn Wall by Newman Club and Danie Duryana by Zeta Phi Sigma. All received trophies.

First place in the car parade went to Alpha Sigma Delta, second place to Beta Tau and Zeta Phi Sigma took the third spot. Eight cars participated, five from fraternities, three from clubs.

James Schwabacher To Give Theater Recital During C-Hour

Concert Star Is Printing Exec

Artist To Make New York Debut

Featuring James Schwabacher, accomplished tenor of San Francisco and former Stanford music instructor, the second student-faculty College Hour concert will be held this Friday in the theater.

Schwabacher, who has appeared several times with the symphony orchestras of Cincinnati, Vancouver, Portland and San Francisco, has also served as leading tenor for the Carmel Bach Festival for 11 seasons.

He made his debut with the San Francisco Opera Company in 1948 and has, since then, sung 14 roles with that company.

In 1953 Schwabacher made his debut with the San Francisco Symphony in the role of the evangelist in the St. Matthew Passion by Bach, a role which he repeated during the last symphony season.

In chamber music recitals he has appeared with the Budapest Quartet, the Griller Quartet, the American Arts and he was invited to be the first singer to appear with the San Francisco String Quartet.

In the winter of 1962 Schwabacher will make his debut in New York City at a recital at Town Hall.

As an instructor at Stanford, he conducted the Glee Club, coached in the Opera Workshop and gave courses in music history and appreciation.

He recently completed a series of six symphony programs over KQED and in previous years was engaged as opera commentator for radio station KEAR.

Schwabacher also did a 20-program TV series on The History Of Song in 1958. On this program he introduced young artists of the Bay Area and was also the principal singer and commentator.

Very active in musical functions in the area, Schwabacher has acted as master of ceremonies at the San Francisco Opera Fol-De-Rol for two consecutive years.

He is president of the San Francisco Symphony Foundation, chairman of the Merola Memorial Training Program for young singers, and a member of the Artists and Repertoire Committee of both the San Francisco Symphony and the newly formed San Francisco Opera.

Besides his musical interests he is president of Schwabacher-Frey, one of the largest printing concerns in the western United States, and is also a member of the Republican Alliance, an organization of business and professional men who are interested in active participation in politics.

Bombs, Fallout, Fear Reign... There's Still Time, Brother!

WHEN F.D.R. determinedly stated, "The only thing we have to fear is fear itself" in his inaugural address in 1933 he greatly comforted the minds of a people in the midst of their greatest economic depression. MONEY MEANS MUCH TO MANY.

But what about J.F.K. today?
What can President Kennedy say to comfort the distressed and perplexed millions who are caught in their greatest mental depression? LIFE IS DEAR TO ALL.

The key to the causes of both these depressions lies in the past. The former had its roots in the preceding decade with Harding's normalcy and Coolidge's complacency; the latter had its roots, or should we say scars, dug deep under the rubble and ruin of Hiroshima and Nagasaki in 1945.

About the only comfort Kennedy can give us might be, "The only things we have to fear are ICBMs, 50 megaton bombs and Strontium 90, but if we perish, it will be as a free people."

Even without so pessimistic and fatalistic, we find it difficult to argue with two basic facts: nuclear fission and human frailty; we find it not only difficult to refute them, but difficult to escape them.

As a student of higher education and "future leader" of the world what is the collegian's outlook? It seems that he tries to be optimistic, but the older and more "life-worn" society around him frowns on his fortune and stifles his spirit.

If young adults today are lucky enough to sustain a full life expectancy, what will that life be like? The Atom Age could certainly offer many physical comforts if peace is the goal. Yet the choice between good and evil in history has been quite one-sided.

As long as the power to destroy himself exists, man will become more and more psychologically defensive and socially restrictive, to wit:

- 1) Students at Berkeley last week put their energies into a 24-hour vigil to protest the explosion of Khrushchev's biggest bomb to date. It went off anyway. Their time and effort could have been used for a much more constructive project.
- 2) Young marriages are becoming more acceptable all the time. Perhaps it's unconscious, but high schoolers are unsure of the future and want to live as full a life right now, not maybe tomorrow.
- 3) Even the style of prose writing is affected. Humor is high on the best-seller list. People want to forget about the profound and the dramatic. Even more significant is modern poetry. Many find it hard to understand because the poet has such a sense of inner insecurity he himself can't be sure of what he wants to write.

The loosening of the standards for morality can also be attributed to the "What's the use" and "I don't care anymore" attitudes of today.

But don't stop studying, students. There's only one thing that can save us from all this: KNOWLEDGE, for from knowledge comes TRUTH.

College Hour Horizons Expand Culturally

SOME INSTRUCTORS here have often referred to the weekly College Hour idea as a complete waste of time, or more loosely, just plain "play-hour."

However, this semester's College Hour activities offer perhaps the best quality and variety of lectures, concerts and drama productions that have been scheduled here for a long time.

Among visiting notables appearing in College Hour programs to date have been actor Rod Steiger, Indian dancer Ishvani, West Coast representative for the Peace Corps, Peter Grothe, and educator Margaret Adams. Scheduled for the November 10 concert is tenor James Schwabacher.

Science Fiction Paperbacks 'Invade' Ramporium Shelves

Science fiction paperbacks have invaded the shelves of the Ramporium, taking a stand among an estimated 1600 paperback books. These books are selling rapidly, complying with staggering popular demand.

If a student ever wonders what it would be like to awaken after a prolonged sleep, finding himself one of only a few human beings on earth, he would certainly be interested in reading Genus Homo, by L. Sprague de Camp and P. Schuyler Miller. Among other popular science fiction books supplied by the bookstore are the following:

The Martian Chronicle, a highly imaginative epic of life on other planets; a look into the future with The Time Machine; The Clock Strikes 12, a collection of macabre tales of the supernatural, and a composite of Star Science Fiction Stories, edited by Frederik Pohl.

Various new supplies for both academic assistance and personal use which were not previously in stock are now available. Loose-leaf Webster's dictionaries in French and Spanish are also available, along with other foreign language dictionaries.

Blind Teacher Exemplifies...

Onvia Ticer Adapts System To Class Needs

By Harry Cordellos

On Friday during College Hour the faculty and students are invited to see and hear a program presented by a most interesting guest. She is Onvia Ticer, a teacher of the third grade at Grant school in San Lorenzo.

Most interesting about Miss Ticer is the fact that she conducts a normal class and stimulates great interest among her students, though she is totally blind.

Her imagination and inventive talent have enabled her to come up with techniques which enable her to do the things most people would say were impossible.

During her program in S-100 on Friday during College Hour, Miss Ticer will discuss some of the situations which face every blind person seeking a normal occupation.

Her slide and tape presentation, The Blind On The Job, presents clear illustration of her point.

In the few years which she taught before 1957 Miss Ticer had partial sight. However, she depended mainly upon the blind techniques which she had learned previously at the Oakland Orientation Center for the Blind. She recognized the children mainly by their voices. Her partial vision enabled her to recognize them by what they were wearing.

Late in 1957 Miss Ticer suddenly became totally blind. At this time she was teaching a class of 40 fourth graders. After having an eye operation she returned to her classroom with the idea that she would continue her work.

How did she feel about walking into her class totally blind?
"I knew I could do it," Miss Ticer said, "because my sight was not the thing that made me a teacher in the first place." Although she did not know right then how she would handle everything, Miss Ticer immediately began developing methods of conducting her class as a totally blind teacher.

At present Miss Ticer is teaching the third grade. Her class is still composed of children with a wide variety of interests and intelligence.

Her success in teaching is greatly due to the fact that she takes an extreme interest in all of her children, and plans her lessons to fit their interests. This is demonstrated in her method of teaching arithmetic.

The children are allowed to make problems with people they know and like to talk about rather than using the ones in the book.

Third graders in other classes and those in Miss Ticer's class learn the same things and in the same way. The children do arithmetic with flash cards just as in any other class.

However, the cards are Brailled and, therefore, enable Miss Ticer to know just what the children are reading. Demonstrations are also given on the blackboard. By placing one finger on the board and writing from that point with the other hand, Miss Ticer can tell where to begin the second line.

Written work is handled by a reader, and the reading lessons are recorded on tape. After studying the same things and in the same way, the children are reading in their books.

Despite her systematic approach to teaching, Miss Ticer never refuses to teach. (Continued on Page 3, Column 1)

Theater In The Round Brings Drama Success

Theater in the round is providing an overdue experience for the arts building theater-packed houses.

Incredibly enough, Michael Griffin, drama director here, turned away 1000 persons from his two College Hour performances of Pullman Car Hiawatha by Thornton Wilder.

The second production, which included Inosenco's Foursome and Before Breakfast by Eugene O'Neill, played to a capacity crowd of 50 persons plus those standing. More than 100 were turned away from this show.

What sort of magic is theater in the round that it can compel the interest of so many when extensive publicity schemes failed to promote drama activities last year?

Those who have the opportunity to see Griffin's experimental theater find themselves seated in a circle on a darkened stage under a tent-like formation of canvas. The actors enter from two openings in the circle and gather in the center of an audience seated around them on folding chairs. Quietly someone in the cast explains a set that exists only in the imagination.

A story begins to unfold as the actors take their places and, without the aid of extensive costumes, scenery and props, the audience, along with the actors they can reach out to touch, becomes absorbed in an experience originally created in the mind of a playwright who hoped it would be meaningful to them.

One example of the rapport that is achieved between audience and actor was demonstrated by two students who discussed the presentation of Before Breakfast.

The first student remarked that he did not like the set. It was too dark and dingy, he said, because the walls were painted a musty grey. The second student disagreed. The set was not dark nor dingy, and the walls were not grey, but an eggshell color. What both students failed to realize was that there were no sets and the different effects they perceived were products of their individual imaginations.

Theater in the round has made its mark on the campus just as it did with the Elizabethans in the past and will continue to do in the future.

Soccer is by far the world's most popular spectator sport, its yearly attendance throughout the world nearly doubling that of supposed "king" baseball.

the chance to apply a newer technique. She is constantly trying out newer ways of doing the things she already does well.

Her carefully made plans for a lesson were interrupted last week when a child brought a bird nest to school. "You can never miss a chance to teach," says Miss Ticer. "The children wanted to learn about bird nests now and not some time in the future."

The key word in Miss Ticer's method is "Organization." Chairmen and monitors are appointed to handle classroom duties just as in any other class. The class is divided into groups in order that all of the children can be kept busy.

In her physical education class Miss Ticer has the class spread out over four play areas. Each day a different group moves to a different area.

While watching over the children on the playground bars, she is constantly aware of what the other children are doing. By staying a few minutes at each play area, Miss Ticer keeps everyone busy and co-operative.

As a result of her imagination and desire to succeed, Miss Ticer is not only a successful teacher, but also a hostess who sees that the children get their lunches and find seats.

With her keen sense of hearing Miss Ticer takes care of all of the discipline problems herself. The children respect her but do not feel sorry for her.

Rather than scolding children for what they have done, she explains to them what it would be like if others did the same thing. The children are taught to realize why they should not do certain things rather than just being told "no."

Outside of school Miss Ticer is an active member of the Alameda County Club of Adult Blind. This is an organization of blind people who work together toward normal and productive lives instead of lives of sympathy.

With her determination and leadership it is easily explainable why Miss Ticer served as president of the club for several terms of office.

Assembly Bill Opens Door For Party Organizations On Campus

Taking advantage of the Assembly bill which allows increased political participation in two-year colleges, the Young Republicans of San Francisco have formed a unit at City College.

With high hopes for the new "party," Dave Hoag, appointed by the San Francisco group as organizational chairman of the unit, has announced that the opening meeting will be held during College Hour Friday in A-301.

CAB Prepares For Christmas Drive

Kickoff for the annual Club Activities Board Christmas Drive here will be held on Monday, December 4, and continue through Friday, December 8, George Woo, CAB president, stated yesterday.

Helping to feed a needy family during the Christmas season is the primary purpose of the drive, Woo emphasized.

This year three committees have been assigned to handle the Christmas Drive, under the chairmanship of Jenny Tom, CAB representative from the Chinese Students Club.

The method which will be used to procure money for the needy family's food, will be the coffee cans which are to be distributed among clubs, fraternities and sororities, and used as collection tins.

THE Christian Collegiate Fellowship plans a bowling party at 7:30 p.m. this Saturday at a place to be announced on KCSF this week.

The fellowship also will hear Dick Piamquerest, general manager of Radio Station KEAR-FM, discuss opportunities in radio work. Other students are invited to attend.

A film will be shown for members of the Chinese Students Club on November 17 during College Hour. The movie will show scenes from a Chinese opera with English translation. Location will be announced on KCSF. Members of and visitors to the Newman Club may expect a movie to be shown on November 17 during College Hour in S-204.

Students of the college are also invited to a Thanksgiving dance, sponsored by Newman Club. The dress is casual and the time is 9 p.m. to midnight, Wednesday, November 22, at St. Emydian gymnasium, 256 Jules Avenue.

The Christian Science Organization will hold its regular meeting this Friday during College Hour in C-101.

The Student California Teachers Association will host a speaker, Onvia Ticer, a totally blind teacher, this Friday during College Hour in S-100. All interested students are invited to attend.

Photography West Theme Of Display In Cloud Gallery

Photography West is the theme of the photography exhibit now on display in the Cloud Hall gallery. These prints, on exhibit until Friday, are made by professional photographers of Northern California, according to Charles Lamp, photography instructor here.

The prints were recently exhibited at the 15th annual San Francisco Art Festival and also at state and national conventions. About 30 per cent of the prints on exhibit are in color.

After Friday these prints will be forwarded to the department of photography at San Jose State College and thence to Oakland City College.

Professional photographers who have prints on exhibit include Zefierino Castillo of Richmond, Chris Der Manuelian of San Mateo, Don Faulkner of San Francisco, Jerry Gruman of San Mateo, Walter Hagemann and Dennis Hodgson of San Francisco.

John Jogoda of Richmond, Douglas Mack of San Francisco, Hubert Miller of Stockton, William Owyand of San Francisco, George Perry of Richmond, William Skeehan of Oakland, George Thanos of South San Francisco, and Don Tong and Miriam Toren of San Francisco.

Robert Toren and Henri Van Wanden of San Francisco and Les Walsh of San Rafael.

In between, though, are delicious entrees, such as sweetbreads in a cream sauce and steak stuffed with smoked ham, which will satisfy the most discriminating taste.

The customer is warned on the menu that he should "taste his food before getting salt as 'all the cooking is done in the kitchen and it is not expected to be continued at the table'."

The menu also states flatly, "Ketchup is not available," and "The chef cannot be hurried."

Meals include soup (of the day) and salad. The Captain's Gallery also boasts of a chef who can prepare almost any meal of any European country if given advance notice.

From the moment one enters this candlelit restaurant till he leaves, comfortably full, the customer will be charmed. It is the kind of spot which leaves a person feeling that only he and the other 40 or so diners who are in there know about it.

From across the channel, the food featured at The Coachman is English.

The only problem one will encounter at this establishment at 1057 Powell street will be finding a free parking space. It may be necessary to break down and park at a nearby garage, but it will be worthwhile.

The route to one's table may lead through the kitchen, but the patron is pampered when the continental waiter spreads the napkin on the diner's lap.

The highest priced item is the English Mixed Grill at $3.75, which the diner will discover to be generous portions of steak, chops, sausage, kidney and mushroom.

The menu here can practically be cut with the edge of the fork, but the flavor remains hearty.

Steak and kidney pie will satisfy the more robust appetites; it is a feast par excellence at $2.75.

Both The Captain's Gallery and The Coachman are small, seating probably about 40 to 50 dining enthusiasts at a time.

For the more American-orientated appetites there is no better roast than the rib of beef available at any price than that which is served at Ed's Chuck Wagon, situated in San Francisco at 2086 Lombard.

Ed's serves roast beef and chicken every day, but has one other entree which changes; for instance, on Monday, Thursday and Saturday barbecued spare ribs are offered, Tuesday it's ham, Wednesday one may choose Swiss steak, Friday fish is available, and on Sunday one may feast on roast turkey.

The feature here is that for $2.88 (which rounds out neatly to $3 when the tax is added) a person may eat until he is filled, and he usually does.

The diner directs the making of his own salad, which may include lettuce, tomato, onion, radishes, pickle, carrots, garbanzo beans and his choice of French or Roquefort dressing.

For dessert Ed's has served for years buttercream sundaes with toppings of choice and faster than any which is obtainable at the numerous ice cream stores in the area.

These, then, are some of the spots where one can impress a companion without overly depressing his billfold. The educated diner will call for reservations at any of these places on weekends.

Restaurants DO Cater To Tight Budgets

By Dick Dragovan

LIVING in a city known for its fine eating places can have its drawbacks as anyone knows who has entered any of the more famous establishments here and who has left with a badly deflated wallet or ego, or both.

People who are on a college student's budget in particular often find it difficult to locate an eating place where they can delight their dates on a big night.

There are, however, many places where a person can obtain an excellent meal and stay well below a limit of $4 per person.

One is the Captain's Gallery located at 38° 48' North latitude and 122° 27' West longitude, which by coincidence happens to be 2241 Chestnut street.

Star Booter All-American Prospect

Korbus Leads Offensive Attack

By Vince Liu

What Orlando Cepeda, or Willie Mays means to the San Francisco Giants is precisely what Albert Korbus means to the City College soccer team.

Possessing probably the most powerful shot in the league, the 19-year-old San Francisco-born center-forward is the bulk of the offense in the Ram forward line. Much of the success of Coach Roy Diederichsen's forces this year should depend on how well Korbus fares.

In the first three league games of this season, the score-happy sharpshooter went on a scoring spree that saw him knock in 13 goals out of the team's total of 19. His four tallies against University of California were chiefly responsible for the Rams' crucial victory over the Bears.

Still getting better with every game, Korbus is a strong contender for All-American honors this year. Coming from a soccer family, Korbus learned the game at the age of ten from his uncle and his German father, Peter Korbus, who is the ex-president of the San Francisco Soccer Football League and the California Soccer Football Association.

Living in a nation where soccer is much under-publicized, Korbus managed to keep up the game by playing in the San Francisco Juvenile League, then the equal of the little league in baseball, and the Junior League for five years.

Blessed with the gifted ability to shoot equally well from both sides, a difficult feat in soccer, and a powerful head shot, the All-City from Balboa High School was reputed to be one of the best players ever to come out of the San Francisco high school soccer league.

Just to show that brawn and brain do go hand in hand, the story-faced athlete is in his second year at this college, majoring in construction engineering and planning to transfer to University of California after fulfilling the lower division requirements here.

As though playing soccer and carrying heavy schedule weren't enough, the quiet, soft-spoken sophomore works four days a week and attends night school on two other days.

In his first season with the Rams last year, the 6-10, 165-pound powerhouse helped lead the squad to a championship finish by knocking in nine goals, thus tying two other teammates for the team scoring leadership.

His sizzling performance on offense earned him a berth in the All-Conference second team and a reputation as one of the most feared bombers in the league. Diederichsen couldn't care less as to how many home runs would Cepeda hit or how many bases would Mays steal as long as his star center-forward keeps pumping in shots and winning games for him.

Booters Edge Cal Aggies, 5-4, Meet Lowly Stanford Today

Somewhat shaken by the closeness of their 5-4 victory over the California Aggies last Saturday, the unbeaten Ram soccermen travel south today to engage lowly Stanford, but their minds will be set on Saturday's 11 a.m. championship showdown against the University of San Francisco at Balboa Soccer Stadium.

Coach Roy Diederichsen and his league leaders, paced by amazing center-forward Al Korbus, don't expect any serious opposition when they take the turf at 3 p.m. against an Indian outfit which finally broke into the victory column by clubbing winless San Francisco State.

However, the titanic against the Dons is a different matter altogether. By winning their final Northern California Intercollegiate Soccer Conference clash this year the Rams, defending titlists, can lock up the crown, but there is more than first place at stake for a USF eleven which has a spotless record since its opening game 2-2 deadlock with California.

The Hilltoppers can gain a berth in the NCAA tournament here November 18 since the Red and White "giant-killer" are ineligible because of their two-year college status.

Only the once-beaten, once-tied Bears from Berkeley are also in contention. Coach Tino Genigeozis' surprising Davis crew could well be in first place except for a lightning bolt named Korbus who struck for an incredible four goals in less than six minutes to bring up his total to 17 for the campaign.

The fired-up visitors took a 1-0 lead on a goal by All-Conference star Enrique Escardo, one of three brighteners on the Aggies, but with 2:45 to play in the opening quarter Korbus took a pass from goalie Gary De Long, dribbled half the length of the field between two defenders, and smashed one home from 19 yards out. Respective assists from staunch halfback Caesar Pina and Tom Wynn, playing in his first varsity game, led to two more Korbus tallies with 2:15 and 12:00 to play in the first quarter. Early in the second quarter Korbus took a pass from versatile Dennis Minga and scored again from six yards out. After a score by Aggie speedster Ed Mankatu from the Congo, Allan Chew pushed around what proved to be the winning tally. Shut out in the second half for the first time this year, the Rams had to stave off the onrushing Aggies, who closed the gap on a pair of third period goals by Joe Franco. Offensive standout Ivan Bermudez, Bob Salazar, Louis Chung, and the absent Vince Liu didn't figure in the scoring but are expected to be in top form along with defensive stalwarts Dave Fromer, Flavio Valente and Hugo Olaya for the upcoming crucial—BY I.T.

Harriers Aim At Santa Rosa Win

The first place cross-country team, which defeated Santa Rosa 20-38, and knocked off Modesto 26-29, in a dual meet, will hold its last league contest of the season tomorrow at Santa Rosa. All cross-country teams in the Big Eight Conference will participate in the meet at Santa Rosa, and on November 17 the Northern California championships will be held. In the prior Santa Rosa and Modesto meets John Weidinger blazed the course in 15:58, with Steve Jackson at 16:12 following close behind. George Varnuza and Andy Loobey, with times of 16:27 and 16:34, respectively, placed high. Jose Valle, one of the Rams' better harriers, ran a 17:01 while placing 10th even though he did not get time to warm up. Valle has been a consistent first place runner for the Rams this year and is one of the two men who have run the course in under 16 minutes. Weidinger is the other.

RAMBLINGS UC Academic Change Aids Athletics Here

By Ivan Temes

IT'S VERY LIKELY that the new University of California ruling which governs transfer students from two-year colleges will prove helpful to the City College sports program.

Formerly students academically ineligible to attend UC at the completion of high school could transfer after completing only 30 units of work at a two-year college.

Under the new decree recently handed down by the university, students are required to complete 56 units satisfactorily.

Certainly anyone who works at it, even an athlete with long hours of practice, can go through 30 units in one year's time but no one—unless the Russians invent him—is going to take 56 units in a year.

This means that many athletes are going to find themselves required to study for two years at City College or another two-year college.

Four-year colleges are able to take an athlete and develop him until he may very well prove to be a real star. It's hard enough for a junior college coach to lose a player—star or otherwise—after two years. Having him transfer after one year only increases the problem. Now, at least the coach will have more of an opportunity of knowing who to concentrate on since some of his men will definitely be back for a second go before transferring.

In nearly all cases, an athlete in college will improve progressively each year and this can prove a boon to the team. Remember, if the athlete is eligible to don the Blue and Gold of Cal at the conclusion of his high school career, but decides to attend a two-year college for one of many other reasons, he can still transfer at any time. Also, the ruling applies to California and not any of the other four-year colleges in the area.

Don't start feeling sorry for the athletic giant at Berkeley or the other campuses, however, for they are now increasing their scholarships-for-athletes program and should be able to draw in most of the athletes they want when they conclude high school, unless they are absolutely hopeless from a "grades" standpoint.

However, never one to get involved in the recruiting scandal that often plagues many of the country's larger universities, Cal will continue to lose athletes not only to two-year colleges but often to out-of-state institutions with less rigid scholastic requirements.

IFC's Second Annual Dance Climaxes Pledge Week Events Friday Night

Concluding an activity-filled Pledge Week here, the second annual Inter-Fraternity Council sponsored dance is planned for this Friday evening in the Empire Room of the Sir Francis Drake Hotel, Bob Rogers, IFC president, announced.

With the theme, At Last, the ball will feature the music of Sal Vance and his seven-piece orchestra between 9 p.m. and 12 midnight.

Tickets for couples at $2.50 each are now available from any fraternity member on campus. They can also be obtained at the door Friday night.

The dance is open to all Associated Students and is not restricted just to pledges and their dates, Rogers emphasized. Dress is semiformal.

As a climax to pledge activities traditional games are scheduled during College Hour in the college's new stadium. The contests will include a piggy back, egg and three contests, egg throwing, balloon blowing and pie eating.

Points will be computed and the winning fraternity will be awarded the Pledge Week trophy.

During the initiation period IFC pledges will be working on several worthwhile endeavors. The painting of the student lounge, newly named the Shuck, and the cutting of weeds around the building are two such projects.

Members of the Inter-Sorority Council will aid the fraternity pledges by designing and hanging curtains to brighten up the Shuck. They have also been instructed to clean up Smith Hall following the Associated Women Student fashion show.

IFC officers besides Rogers include Fred Cherniss, vice president; Gary Sozzi, secretary; Bob Rauh, treasurer, and Don Tarantino, rushing chairman.

Entertainment, Academic Award To Highlight AWS Fashion Show-Tea Today

Featuring a special academic award and selected entertainment, the Associated Women Students present their traditional fashion show and tea, titled Autumn Daze, today from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. in Smith Hall, Jan Doudiet, AWS president, announced.

The order of proceedings calls for tea to be served first at 3 p.m. followed by the entertainment. The fashion show will then be presented, with more tea served simultaneously. The award will come as the conclusion to the show, Miss Doudiet explained.

AWS officers have honored women who have joined the faculty this semester by asking them to pour at the tea, and representatives of the college's new nurse training program will wear the uniforms newly designed for them to use in their courses in the clinics.

Invitations to invited all women students of the college to see the fashions, courtesy of Livingston Bros. and the presentation of the academic award.

Invitations were sent to 12 high senior women each from Galileo, Lowell, Washington, Lincoln, Mission, Polytechnic and Balboa High Schools, to women student body cardholders of these schools, and to the women members of the college's faculty.

AWS leaders from College of Marin, Cabrillo College, Vallejo Junior College, Diablo Valley College, College of San Mateo and Napa Junior College are also invited. Women students here are expected to compose the remainder of the 800 seating capacity.

Invitations were handled by Susan Ryken, chairman, and members of her committee, Margaret Kriete, Nancy Brooks and Sue Canasty.

"The show, in the planning stages since the beginning of this semester, is made possible by the diligent work of many committees," Miss Doudiet acknowledged.

Promotion of the event was handled by Patricia Poppin and Ellen Atkins, who employed posters, banners, KCSF and the word-of-mouth method.

Six Instructors Voice Opinions On Passage Of State Assembly Bill 2512

In view of the recent passage of State Assembly Bill 2512, which allows the youth division of any political organization on the ballot of California to hold meetings on a junior college campus, a series of interviews was conducted last week with six social science instructors of this college concerning the subject.

Opinions and comments were contributed by Lee Dolson, John Gerstung, Robert Johnson, Eugene Mead, Claude Silva and Irving Witt.

They are all in favor of the bill and unanimously agreed that the existence of student political organizations on a college campus will boost students' interest.

"Although it is expected that the Republican and Democratic parties will probably provide for the major representation in campus politics, the instructors voiced identical opinions that other legal minority parties should also have an equal voice."

When asked if party functioning on this campus might cause controversy Johnson replied that controversies are actually necessary and beneficial to the students who through them will be able to develop a broader and keener understanding of the pros and cons of political issues and make rational decisions on them.

Different opinions were expressed as to whether outsiders of this college should be allowed to take part with the political groups on campus.

While Witt favored the participation of outsiders who are acceptable to the college, Silva felt that all the activities should be confined within the campus.

According to the assembly bill, the student political group may also distribute bulletins and circulars concerning its meetings provided that there is no endorsement of such organization by the college authorities.

Distribution will be in accordance with college regulations.

Don Ralph Hillman explained that the groups would be entitled to use campus facilities as provided under the Civic Center Act.

This act states that facilities not otherwise in use may be made available to the groups with a faculty member present as a representative of the college.

As a climax to pledge activities traditional games are scheduled during College Hour in the college's new stadium. The contests will include a piggy back, egg and three contests, egg throwing, balloon blowing and pie eating.

Points will be computed and the winning fraternity will be awarded the Pledge Week trophy.

During the initiation period IFC pledges will be working on several worthwhile endeavors. The painting of the student lounge, newly named the Shuck, and the cutting of weeds around the building are two such projects.

Members of the Inter-Sorority Council will aid the fraternity pledges by designing and hanging curtains to brighten up the Shuck. They have also been instructed to clean up Smith Hall following the Associated Women Student fashion show.

IFC officers besides Rogers include Fred Cherniss, vice president; Gary Sozzi, secretary; Bob Rauh, treasurer, and Don Tarantino, rushing chairman.

Entertainment, Academic Award To Highlight AWS Fashion Show-Tea Today

Featuring a special academic award and selected entertainment, the Associated Women Students present their traditional fashion show and tea, titled Autumn Daze, today from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. in Smith Hall, Jan Doudiet, AWS president, announced.

The order of proceedings calls for tea to be served first at 3 p.m. followed by the entertainment. The fashion show will then be presented, with more tea served simultaneously. The award will come as the conclusion to the show, Miss Doudiet explained.

AWS officers have honored women who have joined the faculty this semester by asking them to pour at the tea, and representatives of the college's new nurse training program will wear the uniforms newly designed for them to use in their courses in the clinics.

Invitations to invited all women students of the college to see the fashions, courtesy of Livingston Bros. and the presentation of the academic award.

Invitations were sent to 12 high senior women each from Galileo, Lowell, Washington, Lincoln, Mission, Polytechnic and Balboa High Schools, to women student body cardholders of these schools, and to the women members of the college's faculty.

AWS leaders from College of Marin, Cabrillo College, Vallejo Junior College, Diablo Valley College, College of San Mateo and Napa Junior College are also invited. Women students here are expected to compose the remainder of the 800 seating capacity.

Invitations were handled by Susan Ryken, chairman, and members of her committee, Margaret Kriete, Nancy Brooks and Sue Canasty.

"The show, in the planning stages since the beginning of this semester, is made possible by the diligent work of many committees," Miss Doudiet acknowledged.

Promotion of the event was handled by Patricia Poppin and Ellen Atkins, who employed posters, banners, KCSF and the word-of-mouth method.

Six Instructors Voice Opinions On Passage Of State Assembly Bill 2512

In view of the recent passage of State Assembly Bill 2512, which allows the youth division of any political organization on the ballot of California to hold meetings on a junior college campus, a series of interviews was conducted last week with six social science instructors of this college concerning the subject.

Opinions and comments were contributed by Lee Dolson, John Gerstung, Robert Johnson, Eugene Mead, Claude Silva and Irving Witt.

They are all in favor of the bill and unanimously agreed that the existence of student political organizations on a college campus will boost students' interest.

"Although it is expected that the Republican and Democratic parties will probably provide for the major representation in campus politics, the instructors voiced identical opinions that other legal minority parties should also have an equal voice."

When asked if party functioning on this campus might cause controversy Johnson replied that controversies are actually necessary and beneficial to the students who through them will be able to develop a broader and keener understanding of the pros and cons of political issues and make rational decisions on them.

Different opinions were expressed as to whether outsiders of this college should be allowed to take part with the political groups on campus.

While Witt favored the participation of outsiders who are acceptable to the college, Silva felt that all the activities should be confined within the campus.

According to the assembly bill, the student political group may also distribute bulletins and circulars concerning its meetings provided that there is no endorsement of such organization by the college authorities.

Distribution will be in accordance with college regulations.

Don Ralph Hillman explained that the groups would be entitled to use campus facilities as provided under the Civic Center Act.

This act states that facilities not otherwise in use may be made available to the groups with a faculty member present as a representative of the college.

Rams, Sacto Eleven Clash Saturday

Gridders Go On Rampage To Sink Oakland, 41-14

By Dave Kleinberg

After the Oakland Thunderbirds failed to capitalize on two early breaks, the Rams broke loose from everywhere and anywhere last Friday at Dugford Stadium to roll up their biggest point total of the season in a one-sided 41-14 victory.

Now 4-1 in Big Eight Conference play and still trailing league leader San Mateo by one game, the Rams handed the five-time losing Thunderbirds their worse beating of the year before a Homecoming crowd.

The Rams rolled up 181 yards on the ground and 132 in the air, and for the first time this year didn't have a pass intercepted.

The Thunderbirds made their first mistake in trying a field goal, on fourth down from the 12. Terry Fletcher blocked the ball, and Tom Piggee, the Rams' little speedster, returned it 40 yards to the San Francisco 42 before being downed.

On the following play quarterback Ben Winslow found Bob Taylor 10 yards behind the Oakland defender. Taylor, who later suffered a broken ankle, caught the ball on the Oakland 34 and rambed in for the touchdown to complete a 58-yard play. It was the Rams' first touchdown pass in league play.

George Benkie partially blocked Ralph Melton's quick kick and the alert 175-pound Ron Coleman grabbed the ball on the Oakland 12 and scored for 15-0.

After Coleman raced in from 21 yards to run the score to 21-0, Oakland's Dale Rubin passed to Eddie Titus for a seven-yard touchdown, which erased any shutout thoughts.

Oakland scored quickly to open the second half, but couldn't follow up and the Rams scored twice in the fourth quarter to finish the scoring.

Elton Diles picked off a pass late in the game and raced 48 yards for the final tally, with other scores coming on runs by Piggee and Taylor.

Jim Battico, Jack Burgett, Dave Urrea, Dennis Drucker and Cliff Vattone played a major role in holding the Thunderbirds to 66 yards on the ground and 86 in the air.

Locals, Panthers Vie For Second Place Slot

Fighting for second place in the Big Eight, and still clinging to faint title hopes, the Rams and Sacramento will do their best to knock each other out of the race in a crucial encounter slated for Saturday at 2 p.m. in the Panthers' arena.

Chuck Chatfield's rugged outfit from the capital is suffering from the same handicap as Grover Klemmer's unpredictable crew—they both were humiliated by the high-powered San Mateo Bulldogs, the Panthers being shut out 12-0, and the Rams falling 22-6.

However, both are praying for on-again-off-again Stockton to rise to the occasion and knock the unbeaten league leaders from their lofty perch this weekend.

The Panthers still recall their highlight of the season, a smashing 26-6 triumph over Stockton. Against the same team, the Rams were lucky to escape with any victory, finally winning 7-6.

A stingy defense has proved to be the main force for both combatants thus far. Well balanced, the home club gets most of its offensive power from the passing combination of Bob Quintella to halfback Harry Reynolds and the bull-like rushing of fullback Frank Latona.

The invaders, who edged Sacramento 16-14 last year on an extra-point pass, from Gary Lewis to end Ray Gregains, have been handicapped all year by their inability to get off the "home run" play—the long-kicker touchdown.

However, the defense has responded admirably by giving up more than six points in only one of its first six encounters.

The starting lineup, unchanged for most of the year, will find veterans Terry Fischer and Gregains at the end spots with big Jim Battico and Jack Burgett going at tackle, while the "big three," Alex Darnes, Dave Urrea and Dennis Drucker will alternate in the guard spots.

Both hard-tackling Cliff Vattone and rapidly improving George "The Toe" Benkie are slated for heavy duty in the middle of the line.

In the backfield, either Ben Winslow or Randy Autentico will call the signals with tricky star Tom Piggee entrenched at fullback.

If available, Al Raine will get the nod at left half while Ron Coleman, a terror on defense, will be the running mate.

Ex-Chicago Bear quarterback Sid Luckman threw 28 touchdowns passes in 10 games in 1943, a pro record.

RAMBLINGS UC Academic Change Aids Athletics Here

By Ivan Temes

IT'S VERY LIKELY that the new University of California ruling which governs transfer students from two-year colleges will prove helpful to the City College sports program.

Formerly students academically ineligible to attend UC at the completion of high school could transfer after completing only 30 units of work at a two-year college.

Under the new decree recently handed down by the university, students are required to complete 56 units satisfactorily.

Certainly anyone who works at it, even an athlete with long hours of practice, can go through 30 units in one year's time but no one—unless the Russians invent him—is going to take 56 units in a year.

This means that many athletes are going to find themselves required to study for two years at City College or another two-year college.

Four-year colleges are able to take an athlete and develop him until he may very well prove to be a real star. It's hard enough for a junior college coach to lose a player—star or otherwise—after two years. Having him transfer after one year only increases the problem. Now, at least the coach will have more of an opportunity of knowing who to concentrate on since some of his men will definitely be back for a second go before transferring.

In nearly all cases, an athlete in college will improve progressively each year and this can prove a boon to the team. Remember, if the athlete is eligible to don the Blue and Gold of Cal at the conclusion of his high school career, but decides to attend a two-year college for one of many other reasons, he can still transfer at any time. Also, the ruling applies to California and not any of the other four-year colleges in the area.

Don't start feeling sorry for the athletic giant at Berkeley or the other campuses, however, for they are now increasing their scholarships-for-athletes program and should be able to draw in most of the athletes they want when they conclude high school, unless they are absolutely hopeless from a "grades" standpoint.

However, never one to get involved in the recruiting scandal that often plagues many of the country's larger universities, Cal will continue to lose athletes not only to two-year colleges but often to out-of-state institutions with less rigid scholastic requirements.

When asked if party functioning on this campus might cause controversy Johnson replied that controversies are actually necessary and beneficial to the students who through them will be able to develop a broader and keener understanding of the pros and cons of political issues and make rational decisions on them.

Different opinions were expressed as to whether outsiders of this college should be allowed to take part with the political groups on campus.

Two Way System Essential To College Communication

WRITTEN COMMUNICATION, which distinguishes man from primitive and animal forms of life, is symbolically filling every second elapsed with an endless stream of human thought.

While each reader of this issue of The Guardsman is now in communication with his college's activities through means of the printed page, man's emotions, ideals and spirit are being transmitted and interrelated all over the world.

Any newspaper, whether a college, professional or trade publication, has many more responsibilities than those connected with news coverage. Every responsible journalistic organ must aim for the accurate, clear and concise usage of man's most potent asset, the written word.

The young reporter must be more than a curious collegian; he must be able to use fundamentals of grammar automatically and correctly, have a free flowing writing style, and be able to discern the factual from the fictitious, the significant from the superfluous.

As much as The Guardsman attempts to meet these idealistic standards, we don't. This is a frustrating field in which the perfectionist may often become the psychotic.

The exact use of language is an art; we are not artists. The biggest obstacle blocking perfect communication is time. In racing the clock to meet deadlines, accuracy is often sacrificed for celerity.

When mistakes do appear in this paper, students should hasten to call them to our attention. But effective communication does not end with factual accuracy. For communication is a two-way system.

Without response from our readers we have no way of knowing what the effect of our issue or issues has been. Without the reader's reaction we have no basis from which to change or modify the policy of our coverage or content.

Without Letters To The Editor we have neither a good nor bad conscience about our work. This is the only means by which students can "communicate" with us. Are you out there?

Perhaps some students are hesitant about their "poison pen letters." Don't be. We don't shun controversy; we welcome it. No one's above the plateau of criticism.

One-way streets are the latest answer to traffic problems, but one-way communication is the last way to solve human problems.

The Spectator

Novel Combines Text And Outside Reading

(Today's Spectator is by Anna Papagali)

OFTENTIMES a student will have severe qualms of conscience when he picks up a novel because he knows that once the cover of his story is opened, the cover of his textbook will close.

Irving Stone, the acknowledged master of the biographical novel form, has recently published a thoroughly remarkable book, The Agony And The Ecstasy, which is a study in the guilt feelings of students who crave "outside" reading by including in its pages a wealth of knowledge that is applicable to any classroom.

The novel portrays the life of one of the greatest geniuses the world has produced, Michelangelo Buonarroti, sculptor, painter, poet, architect and engineer.

First of all, the book is wonderfully entertaining. Michelangelo's personal life story, told as a novel, constitutes as forceful a tale of conflict and dedication as his appetites as well as in his humor.

But more than entertainment, the history student will find an account of the transition from the terror of the Dark Ages to the modern era of the Golden Renaissance. Europe's leaders and their problems all make their appearance in this book.

The governmental structures in Europe, particularly the Italian city states, are represented for the political science major.

The geologist will read an account of the form and composition of marble, how it was mined and treated in Florence during the 1470's. There are also descriptions of the stones that paved streets and composed buildings of 15th century Italy.

Philosophy students will see new ideas conflicting with the Church, and the dialogue is sprinkled with Italian words and phrases that the language major can use in his classroom.

For the artist there are detailed descriptions and critiques of classic masterpieces in sculpture, painting and fresco as well as discussions on technique. Especially interesting for the present day student is the manner in which brushes and paint were made.

Humanist scholars, poets and writers, now studied in English classes, are all part of Michelangelo's story. Architects and engineers will see the grandeur of Rome take shape.

Class structure is represented for the sociology student, and Michelangelo's personality makeup provides a case study for the psychologist.

Irving Stone has taken for his own canvas all of the revolutionary turmoil and pagantry of this turbulent era, and it is against a panorama of giants that Michelangelo's life unfolds in a novel that is as exciting, dramatic and unusual as the masterpieces he created.

Russian Born Student Doubles In Football And Art Here

Knatz's Knack On Exhibit In Gynmasium

By Herman Kligerman

Prowess in football and accomplishment in art may be a rare combination of abilities for one person but Russian-born Nick Knatz, a student here, possesses both.

According to the 6-foot 215-pound youth, art wasn't even in his mind during childhood. Through his father he managed to pick up some ability in that field.

While enrolled at Lowell High School between 1955 and 1959, Knatz designed the school's student body card and their book covers which are currently being used. He also excelled in tennis there.

Presently in his fifth semester here, Knatz has already displayed his fine football ability in addition to artistry. He played guard on the Rams for the past two years, and if it weren't for the ruling that limits a junior college player to two years on a grid team he might have played again this semester.

"The best coach a guy could ever have" is his feeling toward Alex Schwarz, football line coach here, who gave him his initial start in football.

Between his graduation from high school and enrollment here Knatz attended San Francisco State for a semester, excelling in the sport of tennis.

Born in a small village in Russia just before the outbreak of the Second World War, Knatz and his family—mother, father, brother and sister—spent the war years in their homeland and Germany.

In 1942 he and his family were captured by the enemy and committed to a Bolshevik labor camp for three years. Knatz and his mother were the only ones to survive this ordeal.

On the Displaced Persons Visa of 1949 Knatz, aged 9, and his mother came to the United States to live. Their first residence was in New York until, in 1951, they decided to move west, finally settling in San Francisco.

After getting acquainted with the new surroundings and environment Knatz enrolled in public school here in the city.

Examples of his art are displayed near the main entrance to the men's gymnasium in full color. Two of his pictures appeared on the sports page of The Guardsman last semester.

Just A Leak

But Curiosity Runs Wild

Speculation has arisen among students here concerning the two ominous-looking pits in the front lawn of Science Hall.

One young man said "that he thought the gardeners were digging for gold. A coed here said that they were graves for a couple of giant turtles."

Still another really let his imagination run wild. He told of driving by the college one night last week and seeing giant mutant ants emerging from the depths of the two curious indentations.

But, here is the real corker. One bomb-conscientious individual swore up and down that the college was building two air raid shelters for use in case of an attack from outer space.

After hearing all of these fantastic explanations one might wonder where the real truth of the matter lies. Well, after consulting with a member of the maintenance department here, the real facts are now open to the public.

There is no gold. There are no giant mutant ants or air raid shelter plans. The screen is brilliant with comedy as the two police officers bungle through even the simplest of assignments. This is one show that will receive top billing again next season.

These two examples prove that if the viewer changes channels every hour or so he won't have to watch one miserable cowboy shoot-'em-up. This was one thing next to impossible last season.

But maybe, it's just possible that...

ARTIST-FOOTBALL PLAYER NICK KNATZ cartoons assistant football coach Alex Schwarz controlling the massive strength of two of his best linemen, Dave Urrea (69) and Jim Baffio (75). Two other sports cartoons by Knatz were published in The Guardsman last semester.

Foresight Changing TV Trends 'Outgun' Westerns

By John Muller

TELEVISION PROGRAMMING has reached the highest point in many years as there is something besides third rate rerun Westerns filling the bill on each channel this season.

Two of the better shows that premiered this fall are Follow The Sun and Car 54, Where Are You?

Adventure, which peaked up last fall's programming with such Alas, Alack, A Shack!

No Longer Is Lounge Site Dark Secret

Many students here don't know there is a student lounge located behind Cloud Hall in bungalows 3 and 4, while others know about it—and are keeping it a secret.

Since the student lounge was designed to be an informal meeting place, and the men and women who patronized it before acted informally, a suitable name had to be found.

The name, Shack, was chosen for its casualness and for its lack of coldness and formality which its former name suggested. Thus its existence should be a secret no longer.

With the addition of a new name, one of the two signs scheduled by Alpha Phi Omega and Alpha Kappa Rho is completed, so more and more students can find it.

The Shack is picking up business this semester, and it is hoped that this casual meeting and eating place will eventually become a permanent part in campus life.

It offers, much to the students, it is the only place on campus a student may relax, socialize and eat without being disturbed.

It gets away from the congestion of the cafeteria, and could be described as a cross between a study hall and a lunch room.

Although Paul Steiner and George Cook, student co-ordinators of the union, have yet to arrange to have sandwiches brought to the union, it does provide cigarettes, coffee, chocolate, Coca Cola, candy bars and the five-cent doughnut.

Cook and Steiner, who have always felt strongly that the union must offer students something to be successful, feel the lounge offers much to the student, but that it takes time for them to be aware of it.

The union has been fairly successful. It is filled nearly to its capacity of 125 people on most days between 12 noon and 2 p.m.

The project of hooking up with KCSF, the campus broadcasting station, is still being worked on.

The union is open every day between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Tricky Titles Answer Five W's-And How!

By Dick Dragovan

BOOKS are often said to be the key to learning, but it is not often realized to what extent this is true.

From the journalistic viewpoint there are hundreds of books written to satisfy the five W's, who, what, when, where and why and sometimes how.

A sampling of the Cumulative Book Index of January to July 1959 shows that there are volumes telling Who's Who in Turkey, Austria, World Aviation And Astronautics, and also Who's Running This Expedition!

One can discover What—Ballet Is About, Dr. Spock Didn't Tell Us and Is Africa. Anyone who may still have doubts may find out, through reading, What A Policeman Does.

To keep everyone on even ground, books are prepared describing What Every Supervisor Should Know, and What Every Taxpayer Should Know.

To answer those questions which inevitably arise in sophisticated group discussions, and to which no one seems to know the answers, tomes are available to explain What Happened To Whimpy, and What Has Four Wheels And Flies.

The answers to What Is A Turtle, Life, Love, Cybernetics, The Nature Of Man are listed besides, What Is Your Problem, Mother?

The curious and the scholars may wind up with What We Are For and What You Can Do For Aigina Peoria And Coronary Occlusion.

Powerful climaxes sound imminent When—Danger Threatens, One Third Of A City Block Moves To The Suburbs, and We Dead Awoke.

What happens next is anybody's guess When—My Ship Comes Home, St. Nicholas Got Back, or You Preach. To get the opposite of two extremes one may peruse Where Love Is, then Where No Love Is, and also Where Rivers Meet, and Where No Mains Flow.

In case anyone wonders Where Is Mary Bostwick, well, Where Else But Pittsburgh, Where The White Sands, Rooms, and Where There's Smoke.

Industrious readers will find Why—Men Confess, Was Lincoln Murdered, You Are You, and Why So Angry?

A wealth of information is under How—I Turned $1000 Into A Million In Real Estate, Much Is A $, Many Angles?, and Not To Play Chess.

Prospective bill collectors can learn the ultimate of their trade in How To Make Earthworms Pay.

Unromantic readers will help themselves by reading How To Protect Your Heart. If this falls, however, a second volume is available, How To Survive Matrimony.

How To Take Better Pictures was apparently studied to good advantage by an art thief this summer who got away with a few priceless originals.

Students who wish to begin studying at the basic beginnings may pick up any of these, How—To Watch A Parade, Remove The Cotton From A Bottle Of Aspirin, Read A Page, or Come—It's Called That?

The final book which seems as though it should be required reading for everybody in this age is How To Do Nothing With Nobody All Alone By Yourself.

AGS Volunteers Double As Tutors

Tutoring services are currently being offered by Alpha Gamma Sigma, scholastic honor society, volunteers. William Richardson, adviser to this organization, states that the service is open to college, high school and junior high school students requesting help.

The idea of starting a coaching service was initiated when students began calling members of the society, asking for help in generally required subjects.

Students who carried B averages or better last semester are eligible to join this organization.

Students with final grades of D are ineligible for membership in the honor society. Anyone interested in joining is asked to consult Richardson in S-155.

and graphic arts departments assisted Betty Rice with her work on the program committee.

Suzanne Murphy, AWS vice president, Hella Furgis, women's physical education instructor, Tina Drescher and Joan Collingean of the merchandising department comprise the board of judges for the models.

Models included in the final selection from the college at large are Diane Lühr, Wendy Dickson, Bonnie Black, Paulette Walli, Marlene Cortopassi, Pamela Washburn and Connie Willis.

Also participating in model sportswear, cocktail dresses and formal are Diane O'Neill, Carol Ann Henton, Rosie Fang, Pamela Chandler, Barbara Preston, Diane Perrine and Carol Ferro.

Probably the only men students formally invited to the event are the selected models. Those assisting the models include Bob Perkins, Greg Monk, Paul Steiner, Bill Reichert, Dan Collins, Stan Burford and Fred Chernias.

Other committees include decorations composed of Barbara Sperring, Sherry Spindel and Jeri Crivelli.

Entertainment—Chairman Sharon Hawley has arranged for Shirley Thornton, alto, to sing a few popular songs for the show. International Relations Club is sending two representatives, Elvin Pantoja and Benjamin Villian, to perform a Mexican dance to the tune of La Bamba.

Inter-Sorority Council is having a representative from each sorority form a group and present a pantomime of I'm Gonna Wash That Man Right Out Of My Hair, from the show, South Pacific.

The food committee, chairman, Lana Holliday, has arranged with the hotel and restaurant department for brownies, cookies, cream puffs, petit fours, Danish pastries, tea, orange juice and granadine to be served.

Hostesses, numbering 45 and under the direction of Jerilyn Scultto, will serve the provided food.

Carole Mar, chairman of the set-up committee, and a staff composed of seven members of the Chinese Students Club will have the task of placing dishes, cups, saucers, napkins and silverware.

Sorority pledges under the direction of Kathy Hallock, ISC president, will help with serving and cleaning.

Coats will be checked by members of the Recreation Association with an assist from Maxine Hickman, head of the coat check committee.

An official cameraman, arranged for by AWS Historian Maureen Farley, will be present to photograph models. Some of the photographs may appear in next semester's college handbook.

One of the highlights of the show, presentation of the ISC award, was started last semester. A perpetual award, it is presented to the low freshman woman student with the highest grade point average for the first midterm.

Last semester's winner was Marina Popoff, who maintained 16½ units with a 3.4 average.

Students Face Facts In USA, '62

Top Scholars Register Early

Transfers Get Navy 'Break'

Grades, Units OK Deferments

Students who had a high grade point average last semester and filled out the preregistration cards have gotten the early registration numbers for Spring 1962, Walter McCloud, counselor here, said yesterday.

Concurrently, men were advised to consider their status in relation to eligibility for deferment.

Postcards, which were sent out starting one month ago to inform students of appointments with their counselors, will continue to be sent to all students who filled out preregistration forms.

As in the past many students have neglected filling the preregistration forms, and they will receive a number behind everyone else, McCloud explained.

Students in the top class with a low scholastic average will still receive higher registration numbers than the approximately 2500 new students.

New students, who are classified as such in their first year at the college or transfers from other colleges, received their counseling appointments according to first midterm grades.

They will start receiving postcards sometime at the end of November and should be completed prior to Christmas, when the programming of high school seniors will begin.

McCloud emphasized that if a student for some reason is unable to meet his counseling appointment he should immediately notify his counselor or professional adviser to make a new appointment and avoid losing his number.

Next spring's registration days will be posted just before November 23.

McCloud wished all students would have their programs tentatively mapped out before talking with their counselor, thus saving time.

Brussels Exposition Photos On Display

Photographs that were submitted to the Exposition Internationale des Ecoles de Photographie in Brussels last year are now on display on the main floor of Science Hall.

Remembrance, the acclaimed print which won international recognition at the World's Fair in Brussels, is included.

Transfers to a university offering a Naval training program will be getting a break beginning next year.

The Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps will offer to junior college men a nine-week summer course. It enables those students on completion of the course to enroll in any of the 52 Naval Reserve accredited colleges and universities.

Upon registration as a junior, students will continue to participate in the reserve program on the same level as those who registered for the full four years.

Prior to the summer course students will be enlisted in the Naval Reserve and receive an allotted pay during the period. Tuition and instructional supplies will also be provided by the Reserve.

Subjects included on the summer training program include naval orientation, evolution of seapower, naval weapons and psychology, both personal and social adjustments.

After completion at one of the NROTC universities or colleges students will receive pay and also participate in a summer training cruise between their junior and senior years.

On graduation from college he can be commissioned as an ensign in the Reserve of the Navy or a second lieutenant in the Reserve of the Marine Corps.

Additional information will be available next month when the college will be visited by Naval officers.

Rally Friday To Precede Modesto Football Game

To bolster spirit for this Friday's football game against the Modesto Pirates a rally has been scheduled for College Hour at the Redwood Ram, Stan Burford, rally chairman, announced today.

Preparations are now being made by Burford and his 13-man committee to make the rally entertaining and spirited.

He also revealed that there is a possibility of a general purpose rally later this month.

Burford also urged again that students take an active part in these special assemblies and participate in the semester's social and athletic activities.

The number of units carried and the grades a student obtains are the factors governing his eligibility for a draft deferment. John Brady, co-ordinator of student welfare here, said last week.

To meet the draft board requirements a student must complete approximately 30 units in one year.

This would be his college year, not necessarily the college academic year. Thus, if a student began his course in February his year would end in January; if he began in September it would end in June, Brady explained.

If a full-time summer course is pursued then the academic year for the September-June student could be extended until the end of the summer session.

A full-time summer course consists of six units.

Students meeting the above requirements are then entitled to a statutory deferment until the end of their academic year. If they receive their induction notice.

Brady advised students seeking further information on obtaining deferment to visit his office in S-132.

Oriental Student Counselor Speaks During C-Hour

Helping Oriental college students to become situated in an American college and way of life, Dr. William Sung, their current counselor, will lecture in S-100 during College Hour this Friday, Katherine Pedley of the library staff here, stated today.

His topic will be Problems Of Asiatic Students in the United States.

Dr. Sung attended the University of Shanghai, where he later became president. The university was liquidated by the Chinese Communists, and Dr. Sung, since China has been a prisoner of the Communists, came to America.

Also the minister of an Episcopal church, he is a frequent lecturer. He generally uses his own experiences to illustrate his points, according to Mrs. Pedley.

By traveling from Seattle to San Diego he, in order to welcome the Oriental college students due for arrival, meets all the ships scheduled to come to the California coast.

Dr. Sung's personal knowledge of difficulties confronting immigrants, when he was faced with the problem of being unable to return to his mother country and had to adopt different living standards and customs, was a factor in his attainment of the counselor position.

RAMBLINGS

By Ivan Temes

IF THE CITY of Oakland wants to remain bush league in its athletic endeavors that's up to them, but endangering the life and health of athletes should not be one of their prerogatives.

Football is dangerous enough without teams having to contend with the field conditions the Rams faced when they routed the Thunderbirds at antiquated Bushrod Park.

Because of this Ram halfback Bob Taylor has to suffer for several months with the shattered right foot he suffered during the game. Was Taylor tackled hard? Did he fall wrong? No, he stepped in one of the numerous holes which dotted the field.

"This not only ends the speedy star's football and track career for at least the next year and severely hampers the chances of a spirited football club still fighting for the second spot—most important of all, it puts Taylor well behind in his academic studies."

It somehow bordered on the comic tragedy as the ambulance rushing off with Oakland halfback Eddie Titus, who suffered a severely dislocated ankle, had to be flung down to return for Taylor.

One can see now why a weak Oakland squad playing on a so-called field which houses up to three teams at the same time has had as many as nine footballers out with injuries at the same time.

Ram pilot Grover Klemmer was vehement as he declared, "That injury wasn't necessary. It was a direct result of the condition of the field. I've never seen nor even heard of a place in such terrible condition."

"There isn't a decent place to play football in that city."

The "field" referred to was like a dirt patch with weeds instead of grass and full of holes. Why the weeds, unmowed, were as high as four or five inches in spots.

Oakland City College officials, who wish to remain anonymous, say repeated efforts for a season from the park and recreation department, which rents the field, have been met with complete apathy, and that "there will be no improvement in the near future."

This was a site recommended for the Oakland Raiders, and if they were to play there they would be laughed out of pro football.

All the coaches in the Big Eight have complained, and unless the league takes a definite stand to alleviate the condition there is, unfortunately, no doubt that more injuries will be forthcoming because of Bushrod Park.

Height Main Forte Of 1961-62 Cagers

If the 1961-62 Ram basketball team doesn't have anything else, it should have board strength.

There are only four returning veterans, but three of them are sky-scrappers. Jess Artterberry, 6-6 center and the only returning starter; Brad Duggan, 6-2 forward and former SAC; and Charles Cunningham, 6-8, are expected to see much action. Dave Roberts, a guard, is the other returnee.

Melvin Tom, a 6-4, 225-pounder, will not become eligible until mid-season.

Forwards Eli Horn (Mission), Bob Mulerey (St. Ignace), guards Doug Johnson (Washington), Bill Nocetti (Sacred Heart), John Neal (Polytechnic) are all potential starters.

Gridmen Face 'Blitz' On Friday

Panthers Edge Rams In Final Minutes, 20-14

After seeing their two touchdowns lead melt away, the Sacramento Panthers had to rally in the waning minutes of the game to defeat the Ram gridgers, 20-14, Saturday at Hughes Stadium.

The upset left both teams with 4-2 marks in the Big Eight, tying them for second place in the Big Eight behind unbeaten San Mateo.

In the opening quarter it looked as if the Panthers, who eventually ran off 12 rushing plays to 37 for the losers, would run the Rams right off the field as they scored the first two times they got their hands on the pigskin.

After a short punt by Jim Baffico, it took the hosts, celebrating Homecoming, only four plays to score. Fleet halfback Hank Reynolds, after eluding Jack Burger's tackle behind the line, raced 42 yards down the sidelines for a touchdown.

Faced with a fourth down on the Ram 7-yard line, Sacramento tallied again when Hank Minamide, who carried 28 times for 123 yards, took a lateral on the option play and sped around left end with Joe Latona converting for 14-0.

Except for a Panther drive to the Ram 10, neither team again threatened in the opening half.

Hurt by the loss of halfback Ron Coleman, who was ejected along with Sacramento's Vic Cima for fighting, the Rams needed a big play to wake the offense from its slump, and Tom Pigeze provided the explosion midway through the third period.

The All-Conference star, who picked up 129 yards rushing, burst between left guard and tackle and, aided by Terry Fischer's key block, sped 71 yards for the college's longest scoring play this year.

Led by hard-charging Dave Urrea and Jim Baffico, the defense stopped the hosts cold and the Rams escaped disaster when Reynolds let an easy interception slip through his arms.

On fourth down, quarterback Ben Winslow, playing the best game of his career, "rode" George Benkie, Dennis Drucker and Urrea to a first down on the Panther 16 after which Pigeze carried six straight times.

However, it took a quick five-yard fourth down pass from Winslow to Fischer to ram the ball across the goal with elusive Al Raine using all his cunning to squeeze across with the tying extra-point after taking Winslow's pass in the flat.

Sacramento wouldn't settle for a tie and used a key third down pass and a controversial 15-yard penalty against the Rams for face-mask taping to advance the ball upfield with Minamide bulging across from one yard out with only 3:05 remaining to play.

Raine brought the crowd to its feet on the ensuing kickoff as he scooted through an enormous hole up the middle, cut to his left and looked to be long gone before the last defender hauled him down on the winners' 43-yard line.

Here the drive bogged down and Sacramento merely ran out the clock. —By I.T.

Booters Take It All!

By Vince Liu

BALBOA SOCCER STADIUM, Nov. 11.—It may well have happened two weeks too soon, but Coach Roy Diederichsen's soccer wonders brought home the biggest turkey for their Thanksgiving as they defeated University of San Francisco, 2-0, for the league title and became the only undefeated, united soccer team in City College history.

However, since it is not a four-year institution the college cannot participate in the NCAA tournament.

Reassembling a perfect 6-0 conference record, the first place booters will take on University of British Columbia from Canada in an exhibition game this Saturday at Balboa Soccer Stadium. The contest, which precedes the NCAA western regional game between USF and St. Louis University, is slated for 11 a.m.

A tremendous defense, an opportunistic offense, and a display of sheer courage and determination by 11 men spelled championship for the Red and White in a thriller witnessed by an enthusiastic, shouting crowd.

Sporting four injured legs in the lineup as the result of the rough Stanford contest three days ago won by the locals, 3-1, the fired-up Rams, though outweighed by a bigger and tailer Don eleven, were never out-hustled as they charged onto the field with bad knees, ankles, muscles and all.

Scoring both of its goals in the first half, the Phelan Avenue crew staged a magnificent defensive battle in the last quarter to stave off the onrushing Hilltoppers.

With seven minutes gone in the 90, Flavio Valente, the versatile veteran who fares well on both offense and defense, took a pass from offensive standout Ivan Bermudez and pushed across the winning goal.

Al Korbus, whose league leading 21 tallies include all three against Stanford, scored the all-important second goal with eight minutes elapsed in the second stanza after taking a pass from scrappy Juan Garay.

The defense, meantime, was absolutely superb. Halfbacks Dave Fromer, Dennis Mingo, Caesar Pina, and fullbacks Hugo Olaya and Roberto Salazar with help from wings Louis Chung and Vince Liu, bogged down numerous drives with a crowding up-the-middle defense that left no room for a clear shot from the Don booters.

However, the man who made the Rams' third shutout of the season possible was Gary DeLong. Battered and knuckled down and over repeatedly by the hard-charging Don forwards, the sensational goalie kept his poise and grabbed everything within his reach.

Elated over the big win, the all-smiling Diederichsen didn't single out any one player. "It was strictly a team victory," declared the successful mentor, who has done a king-size job in molding a young and inexperienced freshmen-dominated team into a champion.

The Shotgun, sometimes referred to as the spread, was made popular by the San Francisco 49ers. It stations the quarterback five to six yards behind the center and moves the backs near the line with the ends.

When Santa Rosa pulled the formation on October 20 the Rams showed the shot right back up the gun, winning 19-6. Fourteen times the Bear Cubs passed, completing only two and had three intercepted.

"We scouted Santa Rosa early in the season and knew that they were going to use the formation," Klemmer said. "We were set for it. As a matter of fact we beat the Chicago Bears by one week on the defense of it." (The Bears muffed the shotgun, 31-0.)

"We did exactly as the Bears and Pittsburgh Steelers did to stop it—used a five-man line with the fifth man bumping head-on with the center," Klemmer added.

Modesto's variation of the offense moves the quarterback up to take a direct snap from the center. It is a basic double wing T-formation.

The Blitz hasn't brought Modesto much success. The Pirates' first league win was an upset victory over Stockton, its second over Oakland. They forfeited its game to Beta Tau when the team did not show up at the assigned time.

Last night The Guardsman met the Kane team, the Hotel and Restaurant battled with the Alii, the Untouchables took on the Electroneers and the Believers played the Newman Club.

Pirate problems are based on their inability to hold on to the football. In an earlier loss to Contra Costa, Modesto fumbled the ball away four times.

Encountering Sacramento, Fresno and Foothill colleges in the Northern California championship meet this Friday, the Ram cross-country team presently stands with a record of seven wins and one loss.

The final league standings are not determined until after the conference meet at the end of the season.

The harriers were defeated by Sacramento 25-20 but won against San Mateo 25-34 in a dual meet November 3.

Coach Lou Vasquez expects to place within the top four teams. His opinion includes the hope that his team members will be in top physical shape.

Top runners for the college are John Weidinger, Andy Loobey, Steve Jackson, Roger Ritchey, George Varma and Jose Valle. Because of an injury suffered in the last league meet Ritchey was a doubtful starter this week.

Weidinger led the Red and White squad with a 15:49 fourth place. Jackson and Loobey came next in seventh and eighth places with 15:57 and 15:58 times, respectively. Ritchey came in ninth with a 16:01.

Second Place Rams End Competition In Big Eight

When the second place Rams meet the Modesto Pirates in the season finale Friday in City College stadium, head coach Grover Klemmer's big problem will be defense against Modesto's version of the Shotgun—the Blitz.

Because of the realignment of the Big Eight set for next year, this is the final meeting of the two clubs and the Rams' last contest in their present league.

Having successfully defended against the Shotgun three weeks ago by stopping the Santa Rosa Bear Cubs, Klemmer will be scheming to half Modesto and give the Rams a chance for the Big Eight Conference title.

The Shotgun, sometimes referred to as the spread, was made popular by the San Francisco 49ers. It stations the quarterback five to six yards behind the center and moves the backs near the line with the ends.

Thanksgiving: For Past And Present Man Is Grateful

ALTHOUGH Thanksgiving as we celebrate it today is a distinctly American holiday, it is not generally realized that its origin stretches much farther back in time to the numerous harvest festivals customarily held in many nations.

Mention is made in various Books of the Bible of rejoicing when "the fruit of the land" had been gathered in, and since these beginnings, records are available of harvest celebrations from cities in Greece and ancient Rome.

Descriptions are abundant of the English Harvest Home, and in some parts of England the holiday is still celebrated.

It is no wonder then that after a bountiful harvest in 1821 Governor Bradford ordered a three-day feast and celebration for the settlers in the Plymouth colony.

This was not, however, the beginning of the annual holiday which we celebrate, for in 1822 and in a number of the following 30 years there was no celebration at all.

In those years when festivals were held they were set on dates ranging any time from July 30 to February 22, and apparently only when the Pilgrims felt that they had something for which to be thankful.

It wasn't until 1868 that Thanksgiving began to be proclaimed by various governors with regularity, although it was still only a New England celebration.

Thanksgiving was held each year during the Revolutionary War by proclamation of the Continental Congress, but after the war ended the practice was discontinued until 1789.

This was the year when George Washington issued the first presidential Thanksgiving proclamation. Succeeding presidents only occasionally followed Washington's example, but in 1864 Lincoln set the fourth Thursday of November as Thanksgiving with the intention of making this an annual practice.

Since that time Americans as a nation have regularly celebrated this holiday as a day when relatives gather together for a day of feasting. And they haven't yet seemed to run out of things for which to be thankful.

ISC Presents Set For Smith Hall On December 1

Winter Mist, which was selected as the theme by the Inter-Sorority Council for Presents this semester, will take place Friday, December 1, in Smith Hall, according to Mary Goding, dean of women.

Dancing at the semiformal affair will be to the music of Steve Paul and his orchestra from 9 p.m. to midnight.

Presents, which is one of the main activities of the sorority program, will be limited to sorority women, pledges and their dates. As in the past, presents will also be invited, but this semester admission will be strictly by invitation.

The traditional high point of the evening will be the presentation of the new sorority members.

Kathy Hallock, ISC president, will preside over the program as mistress of ceremonies, and each sorority present will introduce her new sisters.

A new practice will be initiated at Presents this semester, when each pledge will be sponsored by a sister of her newly chosen sorority.

"Committees are already hard at work endeavoring to make Presents as successful as it has been in the past," Dean Goding stated.

Kappa Phi is in charge of the band decorations and clean-up, Delta Sigma Tau invitations and tallies, Theta Tau pledge lineup, and Gamma Kappa Beta refreshments and photography.

ANOTHER fraternity Pledge Week has come and gone again. Now that the frenzy and frolic have subsided and the spectacle of uniforms and rituals has vanished, the time is appropriate for a sober account of fraternities in general and the ones at City College in particular.

Ever since the enforcement of the State anti-hazing law in 1959 fraternities in general have lost face in the public eye. What helped to bring about this statute of restriction were two tragic fatalities, the result of oversight and overindulgence.

These fraternities involved can never be forgiven for the severity and stupidity displayed when they had forsaken thinking right for a thoughtless rite.

But all humans are apt to overlook and overact the parts they play in everyday life. Malicious and sadistic crimes, both critical and fatal, splatter the front pages of the American press almost daily. Yet the offenders are not totally banned from society; instead they are often temporarily confined with a prison sentence.

These fraternities involved can never be forgiven for the severity and stupidity displayed when they had forsaken thinking right for a thoughtless rite.

Why, then, must fraternity pranks be banned from society (in this case, California) as they have been? Because of two isolated incidents in which a handful of collegians overstepped their bounds, hundreds, thousands of well-defined and well-directed fraternities have been restricted and therefore ridiculed. Is this justice?

We say, NO!

If two fatal injuries can provoke the passage of such a State law, what about the unforfeitable number of football deaths registered on many autumn weekends, which, by the season's end, reach a staggering total. Somehow the "King of Fall Festivities" seems to have many patrons and protectors, and the great gridiron machine relentlessly rolls on, unhampered by State laws or apparent public scorn.

Whenever fraternity destructiveness takes place, it's either played down, or not mentioned at all.

At City College this semester, and especially last week, fraternities and sororities sponsored many purposeful projects, which certainly deserved merit and recognition.

(1) During Homecoming Week here there were eight entries in the car parade—FIVE of these were from fraternities, THREE of which finished in FIRST, SECOND and THIRD places.

(2) Also during Homecoming 13 candidates ran for Homecoming Queen—NINE of these contestants were sponsored by fraternities. The winner of the crown was sponsored by Alpha Sigma Delta, who also won the Homecoming spirit trophy.

(3) Under the direction of George Cook, student union comanager, as a Pledge Week project last week fraternities improved the landscape around the building and painted the archways and the porch of the union. They also installed curtain hooks and wires for curtains which the college sororities are making this week.

(4) Alpha Sigma Delta fraternity has offered to clean and repaint the blemished Redwood Ram.

(5) The At Last dance in the Empire Room of the Sir Francis Drake Hotel last Friday night marked the first time the Inter-Fraternity Council sponsored a semiformal affair to culminate Pledge Week events. This puts IFC's efforts on a par with the Frosh and Soph Balls.

(6) The Inter-Sorority Council is spearheading a fashion magazine drive which started Monday and ends today. All periodicals which are brought to the Silver Pole will be given to the Red Cross at Sonoma State Hospital.

(7) Sororities also visit many wards of local hospitals and give assistance to blood banks here.

(8) Of course, Tau Chi Sigma's Blood Drive, held every spring, which has broken a West Coast record for all college donation drives, deserves the utmost praise.

The Spectator

(Today's Spectator is by Anna Papagni.)

ANTONIO SANTAN's advice to any young person who would like to see his dream become a reality is "Don't listen when they tell you it can't be done." Without experience or money, young Santan wrote and directed the movie, The Glass Cage, which was selected to represent the United States in the San Francisco International Film Festival, which ended November 14. He did the job with two tools, desire and perseverance.

Out of the service and just 23 years ago, Santan wrote a play while the ink was still wet on college transcripts, which indicated poor English grades. When the script was finished he decided to turn it into a movie. Movies, however, are not made with magic. They are made with money. He pedaled his play everywhere, but when he found an interested listener the question of who would direct it invariably arose.

For Santan there was only one answer. He would direct. But because he had absolutely no experience in the field, this seemed preposterous to anyone who would consider financing the production.

A director is of prime importance in film making; the man who fills this position makes or breaks a show.

Unable to interest a financial backer, his alternative was to begin the movie himself with what little money he could scrape together and then to see what the future would provide.

The experience of being denied the chance to prove himself prompted Santan to give all who came to him for a part a fair opportunity. Consequently, most of the cast were young performers who are now well on their way up as a result of the movie.

Hobby To Job

Huntley Gives Technical Aid To Thespians

A tall, silent type—Chuck Huntley, the technical assistant in the drama department here, is one of few men who is fortunate enough to have had a hobby that eventually became a full-time paying job.

As early as his high school days, Huntley's interest in electronics led him to the Washington Street little theater, now occupied by the Contemporary Dancers Center, where he began to use his knowledge in the technical aspects of theater production.

Never intending to earn a living through his hobby, Huntley enrolled at this college for one semester and then went on to Oakland City College, where he studied printing.

After graduating he worked in lithography and with letterpress, which later qualified him to manage the duplicating department of the San Francisco Stock Exchange.

Never forgetting his short stay at this college, Huntley visited the campus one day and poked his head into the old theater, which was then located in the basement of Science Hall.

Just as he had set foot inside the small lobby, Michael Griffin, drama director, busy with preparing a show, handed Huntley a hammer which he seldom stops using.

He began spending all his evenings as well as Saturdays building sets, doing the electrical work for lighting and wiring sound. Since evenings and weekends did not allow enough time to really do justice to his hobby, Huntley quit his job and enrolled as a full-time student.

During this time the prospect of a new theater was introduced and Huntley worked side by side with Griffin to plan the structure.

He saw his ideas take shape as the latest technical equipment was installed to make the theater one of the most advanced in the country.

But since he couldn't live on love for his hobby, Huntley applied for the position of lab assistant in the drama department, which he now holds so that he can earn a living.

For the future Huntley hopes to work into a permanent civil service position in the department. His only problem is that he no longer has a hobby.

Foresight

IT'S NOT HARD TO CAMOUFLAGE weaknesses or flaws with gimmicks in a filmed act which is to be broadcast on television, but it's next to impossible to lean on a crutch such as an echo chamber or any other device while on a bare stage facing a live audience.

But The Interludes, a Negro quartet from KPBC, proved a week ago that there's still talent that can perform equally well off tele-vision at a benefit performance for the American Legion in Nourse Auditorium with numerous other acts, including several from City College.

With such oldies but goodies as Old Man River and an interpretation of Old Black Magic, The Interludes were a smashing success.

Despite a few excellent acts, however, the whole show would have been a dismal flop had it not been for the obvious good spirit of the audience, who by attending were aiding disabled veterans and who, consequently, didn't expect perfection and laughed at the obvious mistakes.

Lack of preparation by the American Legion, beginning with no programs and ending with poor timing which resulted in cutting six acts in half, robbed some performers of much of their confidence.

The City College groups, namely the Hawaiian and Filipino Clubs, had their routines out, and went through what might be called an ordeal. The Hawaiian Club sang traditional Sweet Lullaby and some catchy songs such as Holo Holo Kaa (let's go visiting in a taxi).

Although Allen inserted the gems of humor that he is so famous for during the conference, he showed himself to be a well-composed, warm and an inquisitive person.

He is genuinely concerned with communication and interested in semantics. He feels that the most important phrase in the English language is "It seems to me."

"The ability to make people laugh is part of your basic equipment. I feel I have a missionary zeal to make people think rather than laugh," Allen stated in reference to his particular brand of humor. He likes to, whenever possible, combine the two although he realizes that there are two entirely different fields involved.

He is most interested in educational television and has volunteered his services to the National Television Education Agency because he believes that once a performer has attained success he owes "a certain amount of himself and his time back to the society that has nurtured him."

Earlier in the day, during rehearsal, Bill Dana, head writer on the show and the other person who shares the body known widely as Jose Himmner, wandered in and out whistling Allen's sponsor's theme song with a camera bag over one shoulder and club in the other.

It's sort of like jumping rope, only this way if a person misses he might have an ankle fractured. The most notable thing about the acts of the two clubs was that they added a well-balanced international flavor to the show.

All in all it was a terrible show, which had the unique quality of making the audience laugh along with its mistakes, plus an adept Iranian master of ceremonies, Abdullah Charib, a student here last semester who ad libbed freely to keep everyone but the perfectionist entertained.

The show, taped later in the afternoon, was unfortunately not up to Allen's standard. It seemed to reach a little bit too much for its humor, but it may be more offensive when seen over TV this evening.

Requirements for entering Special Services, Miss Cotton said, deal primarily with the entertainment field; however, a practical background in the organization of shows will serve in lieu of much of the preparation required in college.

Complete information concerning Special Services may be obtained in the office of Beverly Galliard, Director of Special Services for the Sixth Army at the Presidio.

Miss Cotton occasionally visits the college theater to study the Theater In The Round techniques employed here, an entertainment method used more and more frequently in military entertainment.

'Pointless' Letter Food For Thought

By Dick Dragovan

AT THIS TIME of the year readers are deluged with newspaper and magazine articles explaining exactly what there is for which they may be thankful.

Readers of this column, then, may be thankful to note that this is one article dealing with Thanksgiving which will not point out anything.

Reprinted here are excerpts from a letter mailed in 1979 from a young lady to her cousin. It is a description of her Thanksgiving dinner just three years after the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

The letter was taken from a collection of Thanksgiving poems, plays and histories entitled Our American Holidays—Thanksgiving.

"When Thanksgiving Day was approaching, our dear Grandmother Smith, who is sometimes a little desponding of spirit as you well know, did her best to persuade us that it would be better to make it a Day of Fasting & Prayer in view of the Week-ness of our Friends & the Vileness of our Enemies. I am sure you will hear Grandmother say that and shake her cap border."

"But indeed there was some occasion for her remarks, for our resistance to an unjust Authority has cost our beautiful Coast Towns very dear the last year & all of us have had much to suffer."

"All the baking of pies & the cakes was done at our house & we had the big oven heated & filled twice each day for three days before it was all done, & everything was GOOD, though we did have to do without some things that ought to be used."

"Neither Love nor Money could buy Raisins, but our good red cherries dried without the pits, did almost as well & happily Uncle Simcoe still had some Spices in store."

"Of course we could have no Roast Beef. None of us have tasted Beef this three years back as it all must go to the Army, & too little they get, poor fellows."

"But Naquittymaw's hunters were able to get a fine red Deer, so that we had a good haul of Venison on each Table. These were balanced by huge Chines of Roast Pork at the other ends of the Tables."

"Then there was on one big Roast Turkey & on the other a Goose, & two pigeon pasties. Then there was an abundance of good Vegetables of all sorts & one which I do not believe you have yet seen."

"Uncle Simcoe had imported the Seede (sic) from England just before the War began & only this Year was there enough for Table use. It is called Sallery (sic) & you eat it without cooking."

"Our Mince Pies were good although we have to use dried cherries as I told you, & the meat was about the Venison, instead of Beef. The Pumpkin Pies, Apple Tarts & Big Indian Puddings lacked for nothing save Appetite by the time we had got round to them."

"Of course we had no Wine. Uncle Simcoe has still a cask or two, but it must all be saved for the sick, & indeed, for those who are well good Cider is a sufficient Substitute."

"There was no Plum Pudding, but a boiled Sweet Pudding, stirred thick with dried Plumbs & Cherries, was called by the old Name & answered the purpose."

"All the other spice had been used in the Mince Pies, so for this pudding we used a jar of West India preserved Ginger which chanced to be left of the last shipment which Uncle Simcoe had from there, we chopped the Ginger small & stirred it through with the Plumbs and Cherries. It was extraordinary goods."

"We did not rise from the Table until it was quite dark, & then when the dishes had been cleared away we all got round the fire as close as we could, & cracked nuts, & sang songs & told stories."

"Brother Jack, who did not reach here until late on Wednesday though he had left College very early on Monday Morning & rode with all due diligence considering the snow, brought an orange to each of the Grandmothers but Algi they were frozen in his saddle bags."

"We soaked the frost out in cold water, but I guess they wasn't as good as they should have been?"

Two College Hour Rallies Highlight Christmas Events

Eleventh College Hour of the semester will continue the chain of activities with the schedule of a general purpose rally, to be held Friday, December 1, at the entrance to the Shack, bungalows 3 and 4, according to Stan Burford, Rally Committee chairman.

Because of the Thanksgiving holiday tomorrow and Friday the December 1 rally is the next College Hour scheduled.

Preparations are being made by Burford and his committee to obtain an array of entertainment to supplement the speeches and formality and general interest of the rally.

The scene of the rally will be outside the Shack, where there is ample surroundings for students to lounge on the grass or stand about and enjoy a fine showing of student organization and spirit.

This rally is under the guidance of the Club Activities Board, the Council of Organizations, and the Rally Committee. The CAB, according to Burford, is the major sponsor of the rally, although the Rally Committee will set up the entertainment.

'G' Thanks!

Editor, The Guardsman:

As a student vitally interested in the many different organizations on campus which are supported by the Student funds, I would like to take this opportunity to compliment the staff of The Guardsman on their combined efforts to assemble the very fine issue of November 15.

The issue was fine in that it included a more complete coverage of campus activities than did issues in the past.

It is hoped that the future will bring many more publications of this kind together. I am sure your other readers join me in expressing this praise.

Sincerely,

G. M.

Programming Starts For High Freshmen

Programming of students who are entering their second semester here this spring will start this week, now that programming of the old students has concluded, Walter McClellan, counselor here, reported yesterday.

Seniority in registration numbers was based on the new students' first mid-term grades and were compiled last week by the IBM machines.

Programming of old students was completed last week with the exception of the students who failed to fill out a preregistration form. They may lose a possible high registration number.

Students here know, or at least they should know, that each class has a student must fill out a postcard which would later be returned with the time and date for a counseling appointment.

Not long after the stories he had written had been run he received his own card. Hardly bothering to read it, he stored it away for future reference.

The time, the date, the counseling appointment; they were forgotten. The rule that if a student does not see his counselor on the date set he will receive a later registration number; it is very well remembered.

Denman Heads Scholarship Awards; Deadline Dec. 1

By Edy Grant

Carrying the stipend of approximately $600, six scholarships are available in the spring semester to students who submit letters of application stating their qualifications by December 1, Mary Golding, dean of women here, announced today.

Originated by the late Judge William Denman and his sister, Mary Denman Cheatham, in memory of their father, James Denman, a San Francisco Public School Superintendent and president of the Board of Education, the Denman scholarship awards two women with $150 each.

To be eligible for the scholarship a student must have an outstanding record shown by at least 12 units of college work, and must also be a San Francisco public high school graduate.

The award was first set up as a yearly medal presented to a girl graduating from the eighth grade, pre-parator to attending high school. Discontinued in 1919, the award was presented again in 1939, this time to a woman student at this college.

The fund is now provided from the estate of Judge Denman, who died in 1958. Because of delays in settling the inheritance of the estate, the award was stopped temporarily, but was re-established last semester.

Two or three foreign students will receive scholarships from the International Relations Club, the sum of which will be determined by how much money was made at the fair.

Hello Out There and Hairy Ape will be presented today, Sorry Wrong Number is slated for Monday, November 27, and will be followed by Box And Cox, Wednesday, November 29.

Although Magistretti's play, Bells Of Stigma Enigma, will be performed December 1, Griffin intends to follow with his regular noon show on the same day with Pierre Patalin.

Council Passes Final Budget; Allocations Total $36,855.96

By Bob Hacker

Student Council completed its main order of business last week when it passed the final budget of the semester, thus giving a total allocation of $36,855.96 for Associated Student activities. A total of 26 budgets was passed in a relatively short period of time.

In comparing this semester's budget with the budget of Fall 1960 a slight increase can be noted. The total for the 1960 budgets was $32,388.07.

Although $1000 may not seem slight to some students, it is, when they consider that according to Gary Wilkerson, Associated Student president, the college is trying to run a $60,000 program with little more than $30,000.

Council members cut requests for money whenever possible, much to the disdain of the persons seeking the allocations.

It can be noted that in many cases more funds were given for activities last year than were allocated this semester.

One outstanding case is KCSF. Last year it was granted $18,000; but this semester, after requesting $14,000, it received only $12,000.

It is true that a few of the budgets have increased slightly over last year but this is due mainly to rising costs and to the larger enrollment at the college.

Council also passed a resolution honoring the soccer team last week for their efforts in winning the Northern California Intercollegiate championship.

The resolution reads as follows: "Whereas, the City College of San Francisco soccer team won the championship of the Northern California Intercollegiate Soccer Conference, and

"Whereas, the soccer team is undefeated and untied; and, "Whereas, five members of the soccer team received All-Conference honors,

"Therefore, be it resolved that the Student Council congratulate the soccer team for its outstanding success in representing City College of San Francisco and the Associated Student Council will do its best to let it be known that the soccer team is the best collegiate team on the Pacific Coast and that it is probably the best team in the United States."

Ralph O. Hillman, dean of men, added to the praise when he stated that the soccer team "did an outstanding job with a maximum of effort with interest directed to the college."

Wilkinson heaped more congratulatory remarks upon the team when he stated, "If they beat British Columbia, they might well be the best soccer team in North America."

Club Cavalcade Groups Halt Activities During Thanksgiving

BECAUSE of the Thanksgiving holiday this week, activities of college organizations will come to a temporary halt.

Cauterbury, an Episcopalian club which meets jointly with the San Francisco State College chapter of the same name, will present a dinner at 30 cents a plate Sunday, December 3, at St. Francis Episcopal Church, Ocean and San Fernando avenues.

After the dinner a speaker will be introduced to talk on Church Architecture. The club also meets every Friday morning at 7 a.m. for communion and breakfast.

Plans for the upcoming all-male fashion show will be discussed at the next meeting of the Merchandising Club during College Hour next Friday.

A field trip is now planned for the Piek and Hammer Society. Destination is Mirabel Springs in Lake County. An estimated 15 students are attending the expedition to be held this weekend.

Every Friday during College Hour the KCSF Broadcasters meet at the television broadcasting studio located in A-145.

Each month the Collegiate Christian Fellowship has been sending newsletters to all members and students who have come to one or more meetings.

Rams Play In Lettuce Bowl Tomorrow

Guardsman SPORTS
Wednesday, Nov. 22, 1961 Page 4

Piggee's Romps Scuttle Pirate 'Blitz' 28-13

By Ivan Tames
The "Blitz" really worked Friday.

Only this time it wasn't the heralded Modesto offense.

Instead, it turned out to be the Rams' All-American candidate, Tom Piggee, who put on the greatest running exhibition of his career. All the high-stepping fullback, an All-Conference halfback last year, did was carry the pigskin 13 times for 211 yards rushing, including touchdown jaunts of 20, 25, 35 and 20 yards, catch two passes for 31 yards plus another for a two-point conversion, and recover Modesto's fumble of the opening kickoff.

Add to this the Lettuce Bowl-bound college's best blocking and tackling of the year, and the Pirates are reeling to a 28-13 defeat.

Unbent on their home field this year, Coach Grover Klemmer's crew about their regular season with a 7-2 overall mark and a 5-2 Big Eight record, good enough for second place behind San Mateo.

However, in their last football contest in the Big Eight competition the Rams ran up against an offense unlike any which they had faced all year.

A typical play dreamed up by Coach Stautz, whose squad numbered only 26 men, might find a tailback and fullback in the backfield with both fullbacks and ends flanked to the left side and a lone guard to the right of the center.

All this nonsense by the Pirates coming off consecutive wins over Stockton and Oakland, didn't work as they were rocked on their heels by a rugged Ram defense for minus 20 yards rushing in the opening half.

On their first series after losing the kickoff, Modesto threw a scare into the Rams, unable to defend the Blitz's initial thrust, as they marched 68 yards to score with passes from tailback Russ Pinching eating up most of the yardage.

A 9-yard loss from fullback Cliff Kinney to tackle Ed Kaiser placed the ball one yard from the goal, and on third down Kinney crunched over for the score with Pinching converting.

That's when the Rams went to work with tackles Jim Baffico and Jack Burgett, ends Ray Greagains and Terry Fischer, guards Alex Darnes, Dave Urrea and Dennis Drucker and centers Cliff Valtoun and George Benkie showing the losers around.

With vastly improved Ben Winslow engineering the plays and versatile Ron Coleman doing some great backfield blocking the Rams, aided by a crucial 15-yard penalty, scored on Piggee's 26-yard sprint up the middle after Fischer had hooked on to an 8-yard Winslow aerial, and the quarterback passed to Piggee for the conversion.

On their next series the winners drove 72 yards mainly on runs by Coleman and a 24-yard Winslow-Piggee screen pass on which Burgett and Urrea laid low tacklers, before Piggee circled left end for 20 yards and another score.

Midway through the second quarter Modesto drove to the Ram seven after a pass interception but Urrea threw Kinney for a huge loss and Fischer blocked Pinching's pass attempt on fourth down.

On the fourth scrimmage play in the second half, Mr. Touchdown took Winslow's pitchout, was hit once, but the line blocking ended all defenders as he raced around left end for an 85-yard score, the Rams' longest of the year, and Fischer grabbed Winslow's toss for two points.

Unable to cross the goal after Darnes' interception, the winners used key plays by Chuck Oushani to set up Piggee's final tally on the opening play of the last period, and from there the subs took over, giving up a lone touchdown as Al Raine had a long interception-score nullified.

Ironically, the contest ended on the same note on which it started as John Jacobson fell on a Modesto fumble.

Rams Tie British Columbia As Korbus Scores With 0:53 Left

With his team's unbeaten record hanging in the balance, sensational center-forward Al Korbus took a perfectly placed pass from Caesar Pina and crashed home a 12-yard goal with only 53 seconds remaining to play to give the Rams a 1-1 deadlock with the powerful University of British Columbia Lions Saturday at Balboa Soccer Stadium.

However, the title-holding booters, ineligible for the NCAA regional because of the college's two-year status could only look on along with some 2500 soccer enthusiasts as the University of British Columbia, 2-0 losers to the Rams the previous week, grudgingly bowed to national champion St. Louis, 1-0.

Many observers, including California Coach Bob DiGrazia, felt the Rams might very well have topped St. Louis if given the chance. In their own contest the Rams had to use their highly rated defense, headed by goalie Gary DeLong, to stave off the Canadians, who scored their lone goal on a five-yard shot by wing Russell Kidd with 3:45 to play in the third quarter.

As usual, Dave Fromer, Hugo Olajay, Dennis Minga, Ivan Bermudez, Flavio Valiente and Pina were invaluable on defense but the offense, hurtling at the wing positions, couldn't generate a really sustained attack. Several shots by Korbus, a head shot by Valiente, and a spectacular 25-yard shot from the corner by Lee Wertenburg barely missed crossing the UBC goal.

Though he naturally would have preferred a victory, Coach Roy Dieckman, who had an excellent job of molding together a freshman dominated team this year, was pleased at the way his men averted defeat. Earlier in the week, the Rams learned that five of their stars grabbed berths on the Northern California Intercollegiate Soccer Conference first team. Headed by Korbus, who broke the six-game scoring record with 21 goals, the list also included DeLong, Pina, Valiente and Fromer.

Last week the first place Untouchables swamped the Electroneers by the score of 56-24. High man for the Untouchables was Bob Sprue with 16 points, while Charlie Fowler dunked 8 in a losing effort.

The Guardians outplayed the Kane 52-48 with Larry Stewart hitting 26. The Believers overran the Newman Club 33-10.

Alli outgunned the Hotel and Restaurant team 36-24, Melvin Tom sunk 16 for the Allis, and Mike Miggee scored 8 for the H&R.

Alpha Phi Epsilon continued its unbeaten ways last week by completely overrunning Beta Tau 60-17. Zeta Phi Sigma beat Alpha Sigma Delta 43-27. Ron Beveniste garnered 12 points for the Zetas and John Cate hit for 9 for the Alphas.

Gridmen Face Monterey In Post Season Clash

After enjoying a top year, the Ram footballers will meet Monterey Peninsula College, the Coast Conference champion with a 7-2 record, in the first annual Lettuce Bowl game at Salinas tomorrow in the Salinas High School stadium.

Monterey Peninsula edged Hartnell, 14-12, Saturday night before a packed house to become Coast Conference champion.

The Rams, who have not participated in a postseason game since the 1948 days of Ollie Matson, will play the contest in a charity game to benefit the crippled children of Salinas Valley. The Rams have a 7-2 mark.

An added invitation has been extended to the Rams' championship soccer team to put on a half-time exhibition show before the expected capacity crowd of 7500 at the high school stadium.

The game's conclusion awards will be presented to the outstanding lineman, outstanding back, and outstanding player.

BULLETIN: In the Northern California championship cross-country meet held Friday, the Rams were edged by Fresno, 78-25, for the title with Jose Valle taking fifth place.

Led by Steve Jackson, who ran his best race of the year, the Rams took their second straight Big Eight Conference cross-country championship November 10 at Santa Rosa.

The freshman sprinter, running the three-mile course, finished second with a time of 16:08, only six seconds behind Ralph Lee of San Mateo who took first with 16:03. Jackson had run third and fourth all year.

The Rams finished with 41 points, 23 points ahead of Sacramento's 64. Modesto with 73, San Mateo with 76, Santa Rosa with 120 and Oakland with 130 followed.

Although one of the Rams' top men, Rich Byers, out with an injured hip, did not run and another, Roger Ritchey, a one and two-miler on the track team, ran with a sore ankle, team depth came through to win the meet.

In comparing this year's championship squad against last year's, Vasquez revealed that the 1960 squad had better individual men but less depth.

Andy Loobey, a former Polytechnic runner who was one of the best prep one-milers in the state, placed fifth with 16:23.

Running two seconds behind Loobey was John Weidinger, a freshman who ran his prep races at Balboa High.

A former Abraham Lincoln harrier, Jose Valle, who doubles at the one and two-mile races during track season, placed 11th with a time of 16:44.

Placing 20th was Ritchey with a time of 17:10, and John Arberry, another former Polytechnic athlete, placed 24th with 17:24.

The championship was especially sweet to mentor Vasquez, who was twice defeated by Sacramento in earlier seasonal meets.

Students wishing to drive down to the game may purchase tickets, which would normally sell for $3, at a reduced student rate of $2.

In the 1948 contest, the only postseason game in the college's history, the Rams defeated Chaffee, 20-7, in the Gold Dust Bowl at Vallejo.

The brilliant running of speedster Tom Piggee, who has piled up well over 800 yards, and the passing of Ben Winslow, a second stringer for two-thirds of the season, will give the Rams a well-balanced attack on the ground and air.

Once the total of $50,000 is made, construction will begin with room space planned similar to S-100 and S-136, which can seat up to 200 students.

A brochure is now being prepared by the college's graphic arts, photography and art departments, in an effort to inform the public fully on the subject.

"Once these pamphlets are ready the campaign will get into full swing," Batmale said. —By D.G.

Cracknell revealed that practically all of the 7000 seats were sold out.

Northern California has long needed a postseason skirmish to match its own strong teams since the Northerners, no matter how strong, are rarely invited to the lucrative Southern California title, paced by the Junior Rose at Pasadena and Potato at Bakersfield.

If the solid planning that has gone into tomorrow's encounter sets the desired results, the Lettuce Bowl could become the "prestige" game that the North has long awaited.

Though the Rams and Monterey have had no common opponents this year, the college should fare well if only because of its tough defensive line and swift backfield, which have been the core of the team all year.

Colleges in the Salinas area are known for the tough brand of football they play, using big, speedy backs as their forte.

Nevertheless, not many backs have been able to penetrate the likes of Jim Baffico, Dave Urrea, Alex Darnes and Terry Fischer, and there's no reason why Monterey should tomorrow.

Tom Piggee and Ron Coleman always run well, and if the improving Ben Winslow comes through at quarterback, a win is in store for the college.

Building Fund, $30,000 Scholarship Up Prestige

State Sum Expands Statler H&R Gift

Coinciding with present building plans for a wing to Smith Hall through the Statler grant, an additional allocation from the state is expected not only to add prestige to the campus but also to provide for a composite structure for hotel and restaurant classes and a student center, President Louis G. Conlan stated today.

The state allocated $200,000 during the last legislative session, use of which depends on the local Board of Education's approval.

Total cost of the proposed structure is about $250,000. This two-story building will house a new lecture-demonstration room, a demonstration kitchen on the second floor and a student center for informal studying and gathering on the ground level.

"The purpose of the student center is two-fold," Conlan disclosed, "to relieve the overcrowding of the cafeteria and, on the other hand, to be easily adaptable to student activities."

The new wing will be as large as the present cafeteria, and will be attached to the eastern face of Smith Hall. It will contain separate heating apparatus and an appropriate interior design, both facilitating student evening affairs.

"If everything runs smoothly, the new wing will be finished and ready for student use during September, 1962," Conlan said.

Meanwhile, steady progress is being made by Louis Batmale, dean of instruction here, to insure the Statler Foundation's grant of $100,000 to the hotel and restaurant department.

Fifty thousand dollars has to be raised by the college to supplement the grant. Already the H&R Alumni Association has pledged full support, since that department will benefit from this award.

Once the total of $50,000 is made, construction will begin with room space planned similar to S-100 and S-136, which can seat up to 200 students.

A brochure is now being prepared by the college's graphic arts, photography and art departments, in an effort to inform the public fully on the subject.

Two Men Yearly In Line For Awards

A scholarship fund totalling $30,000 for men students here has been presented to City College. Named in memory of Lucille Lesser, the scholarship will be expended over a period of 10 years beginning next year at the rate of $3000 per year, $1500 each for two men annually.

Major requirements for the scholarship, announced today by Dean Mary Golding, stipulate that men applying are planning to enroll at City College and in two years transfer for further study to complete a four-year course leading to the bachelor's degree.

The winning students will not receive the full amount at once; $500 will be awarded to them when they enter City College and the rest when they are juniors and enrolled at a four-year college.

Entrants must be United States citizens, graduated from a San Francisco high school with at least a B average, and have attended San Francisco schools for four years, three of which were in high school.

Candidates are expected to submit three letters of recommendation certifying good citizenship, one each from a high school registry teacher or counselor, a parent and an out-of-school contact, such as an employer.

By submitting a letter of application and a biographical summary, applicants will familiarize the Faculty Loan Committee, the judges of the candidates, with their personal data.

Included in the report of employment experience should be the nature of each job held, the duration of each and the extent to which they helped to finance previous education, Dean Golding said.

A clear and concise objective statement explaining why student wishes to attend college, and their professional or occupational preferences, help the committee to decide upon the intentions of the applicants, she added.

The final step for the contestants is to appear for an interview before two members of the Faculty Loan Committee.

Members of this group include Dean Golding, Dean Ralph Hillsman, Margaret Ancker, Roy Burkhead, Fred Foults and Verrell Weber of the Faculty.

Not all students will have complete leisure. The Guardsman staff will spend its "yuletide break" gathering the contents of its next issue, which won't be out until January 4, 1962, the only Thursday publication date this semester.

Assignments, including term papers and the reading of books, will keep some students busy, while others may take trips to snow-filled areas for a really white Christmas.

Ayalin Plans Slogan Contest For AS Voting

Associated Student Elections To Be Held January 4 And 5

Dates of the Associated Student elections have been changed again, this time moved to Thursday, January 4, and Friday, January 5, according to Ed Ayalin, Election Commissioner.

The change is due to the fact that the previously announced dates of January 8 and 9 would make the organizational announcements of the results impossible.

In the past, the names of the new officers have been publicly announced at the Associated Women Student Feminine Fling, which is scheduled for January 5. In addition, the new officers are honored at the Student Council dinner, which this semester will take place on January 9.

The dates of these two events made the previously announced election days impossible.

The deadline for petitions is 1 p.m. this Friday. Ayalin emphasized the importance of candidates familiarizing themselves with the AS constitution and understanding the requirements of the offices for which they are aspiring.

Party nominating conventions will take place tonight and tomorrow night. This evening, the Student's Representative Party will convene at 7:30 p.m. at Smith Hall. The United Student's Party will meet at 2 p.m. tomorrow in the Shack.

On the election-days voting machines will be situated at the silver pole in Science Hall, the bookstore, the entrance to the library and the arts building.

Students who are interested in working on the election committee can inform Ayalin at the AS office. Their duties would entail working at the voting machines and helping to tabulate the results of the election.

Officers to be filled are those of President, Vice President, AMS and AWS Presidents, Sophomore and Freshman Class Presidents and 14 Student Council posts.

Entries Due This Friday

A slogan contest was announced last week by Ed Ayalin, Election Commissioner, to emphasize the importance of better student government through better elections.

Ayalin said that it would be a tremendous boost to student government if the clubs and organizations on campus would promote this contest with the idea of its purpose mentioned above.

The contest is open only to clubs and organizations and only one slogan will be accepted from each. The entries are limited to a maximum of 12 words and must pertain to the purpose of the contest. The slogans must be devoid of the college political party names or labels, so as to eliminate bias, the rules state.

Entries may be turned in at the dean of men's office before 3 p.m. this Friday, and they must be typewritten and indicate the name of the organization which submitted it.

Faculty members will act as judges.

Presentation Of New Plaque To Outstanding Sophomore Athlete Tops Class Part In CAB Rally

Presentation by the Sophomore Class of an Olympic plaque will play a major part in the Club Activities Board benefit drive rally to be held this Friday during a double College Hour starting at 10 a.m. in the men's gymnasium, Dan Collins, Sophomore Class president, explained today.

The Olympic plaque, started this semester and expected to be a perpetual trophy, will be awarded to a sophomore athlete in each of three sports, football, soccer and cross-country.

The head coaches in each of these sports will name a team member who is most deserving of the award on the basis of spirit, sportsmanship and scholarship, in that order, Collins said, and the name of each winner will then be engraved on the plaque.

The award will next be placed on display throughout the year in the trophy case located in Smith Hall.

Each man will also receive an Olympic type medal as a token trophy for his outstanding ability.

This Friday during College Hour the three athletes will be introduced to the student body at the rally.

The sophomore event for next month is the semiannual Ball, with music provided by the Ray Hackett orchestra. The theme, Winter Rhapsody, will be carried out by the semi-formal attire and the entertainment of The Travelers, a local instrumental and vocal group.

The dance is set for Friday, January 12, 1962, at 10 p.m. (Continued on Page 3, Column 5)

PRESENTATION of the Olympic trophy this Friday and preparation for the Soph Ball on January 12 will keep Dan Collins, class president, hopping through the holidays.

Double C-Hour Rally Friday To Climax Christmas Benefit Drive

In an attempt to push the annual Christmas charity drive, due to reach its climax Friday, past the $800 goal, a cake sale has been initiated this week in the student lounge, also known as the Shack, George Woo, president of Club Activities Board, announced Monday. A Latin American combo will perform Friday during a double College Hour rally in the men's gymnasium. There will be no 10 a.m. class Friday.

CAB is sponsoring the cake sale and the entire drive but it has been the sororities, having baked a majority of the cakes, who have made the first cake sale in the history of the drive successful.

Most of the $800 is expected to come from student contributions. Woo hopes each student will donate what he can afford, but stated the real goal is to get every student to "contribute at least 10 cents which would bring us near the goal."

The money collected during the drive, which culminates at the rally, will go to a needy family or families in the form of food orders.

Finding the needy family or families to distribute the donations to is the responsibility of the research committee members. They consult Red Cross, churches, synagogues, other organizations and use private information for the selection. Alice Hermle leads the committee in charge of this project.

All of the campus organizations have aided in the collection of contributions. They have been given four or five cans in which to collect the donations.

Private organization projects on the side to add to the potential $800 have been advertised by Woo.

The finance committee handles the collection of money and takes care of the food order purchase. Judy Crivelli and Pam Chandler are co-chairmen of the group.

Happy Holidays

'G' To See You January 4, '62

After the tension of second midterms, many students are relieved that the two-week Christmas vacation will begin on December 11, and end December 25. This festive holiday will include visions of Christmas trees, Santa Claus and jingle bells to lighten up the season.

There has already been a mad scuffling, downtown and at other shopping centers for the hunting of Christmas presents. The stores have hired a number of college students to help out during these hectic weeks.

Not all students will have complete leisure. The Guardsman staff will spend its "yuletide break" gathering the contents of its next issue, which won't be out until January 4, 1962, the only Thursday publication date this semester.

Assignments, including term papers and the reading of books, will keep some students busy, while others may take trips to snow-filled areas for a really white Christmas.

Beta Tau's Mistletoe Mingle Set This Friday Night In Smith Hall

Mistletoe Mingle is the title of the annual Beta Tau Christmas dance Friday evening in Smith Hall.

Approximately 150 couples are expected to dance to the music of Sal Vance and his orchestra, one of the top bands in the area; between 9 p.m. and the 14th dance of the same name held since 1947.

Alpha Phi Omega, the service fraternity here, is aiding by purchasing the refreshments.

Members of Beta Tau working on the dance are President Jack Harrison, Vice President Jack Kyle, Treasurer Keith Poulsen, Recording Secretary Bruce Wilson and Corresponding Secretary Dave Dimond.

Members of the fraternity's alumni and faculty have also been invited.

Christmas Is Here; But How Many Remember Its Significance

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article was published three years ago, December 12, 1958, by Linsey Freeman who was then Editor-in-Chief of the Abraham Lincoln High School newspaper, the Lincoln Log. Although written at an high school age, it shows the spirit and insight of a much more mature person. We believe this cogent and critical essay deserves the attention of all, because it is both timely and timeless. Freeman is now attending the University of California.

THE TIME doesn't matter—this has happened before in the countless eons that make up our universe—An interstellar ship speeds across the sky to its hitherto unexplored destination. In this ship stands a small green tree covered with cheery ornaments; it is the crew's sole reminder of an event dear to their world—an event that brings them joy, strength, and hope, even in the darkness of space.

They enter the atmosphere of their destination, a planet supposed to be nearly identical in construction to their own; the ship settles slowly to the ground. The chosen members of the crew disembark and enter what appears to be a city. The streets of the city are crowded and gaily decorated.

The inhabitants are pushing, bumping, running and crushing one another in a frenzied attempt to enter and move around in what appears to be their places of business. Their emotion is mixed—confusion, anger, frustration and worry seem predominant.

One thing is certain; there is little happiness. The planet's banks are crowded with people withdrawing money—their expressions are worried, tense, unhappy. The cause of the anguish seems to be that this is their time for gift giving. Their communications devices blare announcements keyed to the time—all built around a figure the inhabitants have created; he gives gifts freely to their young—he is all happiness, all good, all important.

Suddenly, in the midst of the turmoil, torment and confusion, one of the explorers realizes a horrible truth. This is the planet's Christmas. The coming of their Saviour has been forgotten in the service of a non-existent figure of their imagination... their time for love and joy has been replaced by a senseless, headlong, sanguinary bedlam in a false spirit of good will. They are driven on by the subconscious hope that if they give more they will receive more. Christ has come, but His chosen again force Him away.

The explorers sadly leave the thrashing city. They leave the planet with the sincere prayer that this unspeakable fate will never befall their world.

Why has it befallen OURS?

SPORTING a title which one might expect to find in a monthly man's magazine, television's The Twentieth Century commemorated the 20th anniversary of Pearl Harbor last Sunday by featuring The Man Who Spied On Pearl Harbor.

During the half-hour program Takeo Yoshikawa told an incredible story of how he supplied the key information for the surprise attack on Pearl Harbor.

One of the important bits of information given by the spy, according to former Japanese Vice Admiral Suguru Suzuki, was in answer to the question of which day of the week the most ships would be in the harbor.

Yoshikawa's answer: "Sunday." And Pearl Harbor WAS attacked on December 7, 1941—a Sunday.

From the time when the possibility of the story was discovered almost a year ago to its actual filming in August, The Twentieth Century did an excellent job of weaving an accurate and engrossing story about Yoshikawa's little known job in the harbor.

Bridge's Mr. G Meets The 'G'

Goren's Aces Take The Trick

King Of Trump To Score On TV

By Vincent Liu
Having heard about Charles H. Goren so many times on television, in magazines and newspapers, one can easily draw the conclusion that he is one of the great bridge players alive today.

In an interview with this reporter, Goren displayed his remarkable playing skill and his mannerly appearance which so belies his impression status as a famed bridge celebrity.

Freely and unassuming, the bridge master speaks with authority and wit. Possessing a wonderful sense of humor, he has the knack of commanding attention with his conversations in a soft-spoken manner. Meeting him would remind one of the proverb, "Silent runs deep."

To compare him with Teddy Roosevelt's famous phrase, one would say that he speaks softly and carries a big stick—namely, his trump cards!

Pinning an old baseball saying, "Nice guys finish last," on Goren would certainly be unflattering. The bridge wizard has won countless tournament championships and accumulated more master-points (6400) than anybody else in the United States.

Now in Philadelphia and making his home now in New York and Miami, he has represented his country and led the United States national team to many championships in world competitions.

He gained world fame and recognition for inventing the Goren point-count system which, according to him and many agreeing bridge followers, is the easiest way to learn to play bridge correctly. The system, adaptable to anyone who can add and subtract, took 10 years of experimenting through trial and error methods.

The author of more than 36 books, which have sold over five million copies, and numerous other pamphlets on bridge fundamentals and tips, Goren will resume his television series, Championship Bridge, on January 6, 1962.

The 26-week series will introduce to the viewers top players all over the world and their different systems. When asked if bridge is strictly an adult's game Goren stated that more and more young people are getting into the game. He also felt that it would be a good idea to have bridge clubs on college or university campuses.

For the frustrated bridge players of this college the professor had some advice. "The best way to approach the game is simply by reading lots of books on the subject," he said. "After all, that's how I got started."

To this came the unanimous agreement from Helen Sobel, woman's leading woman bridge player; Richard Freyre, famed New York bridge columnist; Frank Jackson, San Francisco bridge expert; and Hattie Kwong, charming woman bridge figure of San Francisco.

The group of Goren, Mrs. Sobel and Freyre was passing through the West Coast on its way to Honolulu to participate in the Hawaii Regional Bridge Tournament.

They were wished good luck but that wasn't really necessary. Those experts don't need luck!

The Spectator

(Today's Spectator is by Sandy Sella)
THE OLD STORY of the upstart youngster challenging the old pro at what the latter knows best is one of the themes of an unusual moralistic film, The Hustler, showing now at neighborhood theaters.

Paul Newman as the hustler makes his role in Exodus seem like a part that requires character as well as talent.

A "hustler" is a professional pool shark (player adept at the game) who, when gambling on a game, hides his ability at first. Then, after raising the stakes, he plays to his full capability, wins, collects the cash and leaves town.

In the movie, Fast Eddie, the young hustler from Oakland, California, has worked his way east to the Pittsburgh area of Pennsylvania to challenge and win the title from Minnesota Fats, the acknowledged (by word of mouth) champion in the country.

Jackie Gleason, in a role tailor-made for him, portrays Fats with the ease of a proper gentleman. He is seen complete with starched shirt, vest, impeccable suit with carnation in the lapel.

He's cool, he's confident, and he is the champ. His young opponent is eager, swaggering, assertive and assured.

Who would ever think that the drama and excitement of a back room pool game would hold the interest of a mass audience? It can, and it does.

Fast Eddie, who by our standards is an elevated bum, meets Sarah, who by the same standards portrays what seems to be at first glance an elevated tramp.

Elevated because she attends college Tuesdays and Thursdays. On the rest of the days she drinks.

Piper Laurie, who once told a fan magazine reporter that the former's name had become synonymous with bad acting, has finally shown her true colors.

She is presented in the ambiguous role of a woman with strong moral fiber. In Sarah, this paradox is entirely possible. Without overacting or exaggeration Sarah lifts herself out of the void that trapped her and offers compassion to him who was afraid to receive it.

Watching Miss Laurie's sometimes obvious, sometimes subtle, sensitivity is in itself truly worth viewing the film.

Also worth mentioning is the background music. It's great. If, for some reason you don't care for pool, Paul Newman or carnations, just sit back, close the eyes and listen.

It braces you for the ending.

Counselors List Reg Times For Spring Semester

Registration dates for Spring 1962 are Monday, February 5, and Tuesday, February 6, according to the statement released by William McCloud, counselor, today.

On Monday the first of 4700 returning-students will register, and Tuesday new students will register. Old students returning on probation will enter at 1 p.m. Tuesday.

Programming for next spring is almost completed after two months. Under the new system of registration, based on the intramural championship game, students after they had completed the preregistration forms sent postcards one week before they were called in.

Honor students entering from high school, about 200 as estimated by McCloud, will register at 1 p.m. on February 5.

Registration times based on the numbers which appear on the student's yellow form are as follows: 1 to 799, 8 a.m., Monday, February 5; 800 to 1299, 8:30 a.m.; 1300 to 1999, 9 a.m.; 2000 to 2299, 9:30 a.m.; 2300 to 2899, 10 a.m.; 2900 to 3299, 10:30 a.m.; 3300 to 3499, 11 a.m.

Continuing registration after the lunch hour, the following times will prevail: 3500 to 3999 and high school honor society students at 1 p.m.; 4000 to 4299, 1:30 p.m.; and 4300 to 4999 at 2 p.m.

Smoker Set For Gymnasium

Semiannual Fling In Cafe

Sports contests and entertainment are promised by Paul Snowberg, Associated Men Student president, for the AMS Smoker to be held at 8 p.m. Thursday, January 4, in the men's gymnasium.

Admission to this semiannual event is free with an AS card, but a price of 50 cents has been set for non-cardholders.

The evening's entertainment will consist of the intramural championship game, boxing matches and non-sport entertainment.

The championship basketball game will climax this semester's intramural cage league, and various awards will be distributed to the participants of the tilt.

Ten boxing matches are scheduled to be fought. Medals will be awarded to the winners and to the runners-up. In addition, two trophies will be given, one to the outstanding boxer and one to the best fighter.

The non-sport entertainment will probably be furnished by the International Relations Club, Snowberg said. At present, specific acts were yet to be scheduled.

Free cokes and cigarettes will be available at the social event.

Music Department Presents Modern And Classical Program At Christmas Concert Friday

By Anna Pagnani
Emphasizing serious modern music and co-ordinating it with the classical tradition provides this year's theme for the annual Christmas program to be given by the music department during College Hour Friday, December 8, in the theater, Galen Marshall and Meyer Cahn, faculty directors, said last week.

Selections of Bartok, the late Vaughan Williams and the fast rising contemporary composer, Irving Fine, contribute to the modern portion of the program while Bach, Corelli and Henry Purcell represent the past.

The Treble Clef, a women's chorus recently reorganized by Richard Fennner, music instructor here, will sing three songs from Fine's Alice In Wonderland, one of which is the whimsical Beautiful Soup.

The Men's Glee Club has chosen Williams' The Mimmers Carol and the Cherry Tree Carol. Although both are based on old folk themes, the composer has adapted them interestingly to the modern style, Marshall, director of the vocal groups, explained.

Bartok was another one who received much inspiration from authentic folk music, Cahn, who directs the instrumental groups, added. Because his music appreciation classes are presently studying the works of this composer, he has designated Bartok's Romanian Dances as the selection to be played by the orchestra.

Cahn described the dances as strange and melodic with vital rhythmic qualities.

Complementing what is sometimes referred to as the new music, the program offers the work of the 17th century composer, Purcell, which will be presented along with the Bach music by the concert band.

In addition to Bartok the orchestra will play Corelli's Christmas Concerto.

Also in a traditional vein the Men's Glee Club will contribute an old English college song, and finally, the A Cappella Choir will sing four arrangements of customary carols one of which is the Coventry Carol that includes a violin solo by Mark Zimmerman.

Zimmerman is also featured in the Romanian Dances and is described by his instructors as an exceedingly fine musician. He has played with chamber groups throughout the city and with the State College orchestra.

Club Cavalcade
Groups Set Full Schedule As Yule Break Nears

PRECEDING the two-week Christmas break, activities of campus organizations will be going strong this week.

The Collierite Christian Fellowship will show a Moody Bible Institute science film in C-247 during College Hour this Friday.

That evening at Temple Baptist Church, the annual inter-varsity Collegiate Christian Fellowship Christmas potluck dinner will be held.

Tickets for the event are 75 cents each and are now available from any member of the group.

Delta Sigma Tau sorority is planning a dinner to welcome new members, Carmen King, Gwen Robinson, Maxine Hickman, Sherone Johnson, Gloria Witherspoon, Imogene Walker, Charlesetta Mitchell and Pat Bodie.

Engineering Society's future plans include a movie to be shown during College Hour, December 29 in S-200 on the World That Never Forgets.

Pledges of Delta Psi who were presented last Friday night at the Inter-Sorority Council Winter Mist were Barbara Preston, Jeannie Favole, Sue Fitzpatrick, Diane Ashton, Edith Grant, Rosalie Diggins and Pat Dunn.

Pledges were the traditional white feathered hats and long gloves with their semiformals.

A period of four months is required for officer classification. Two months are spent training for the team, while the other two are spent acquiring a classification.

The better a member scores in the matches the higher his rating goes.

Studies Start On AMS Suggestion Entries

Ideas submitted to the Associated Men Student suggestion box are currently being studied to select those feasible for adoption, according to George Cook, chairman of the student union.

An average of about ten per week have been dropped in the suggestion box located in the Shack.

Cook said that the suggestions are welcome. They may concern either student affairs or matters concerning the college itself.

The co-chairman stated that the former will be considered by himself while the latter will be forwarded to the proper faculty members.

Departing from the topic of suggestion box, Cook asked that students keep the Shack clean, since no provisions to insure this practice are being considered at present.

He also expressed hope that KCSF will soon be broadening in the student union.

In addition, sandwiches may soon be introduced. Slips of paper are now available on which a student may express his preference as to the kind that could be served.

GETTING IN HER TWO CENTS WORTH, a coed put her suggestion into the box located in the Shack in hopes that it will be used for the betterment of the college.

California Offers Aptitude Test For Scholarships

Students who are planning to attend the University of California in Spring 1962 or February 1963 are eligible for University and State of California scholarships, provided they take the Scholastic Aptitude Test of the College Entrance Examination Board, Mary Golding, dean of women here, stated today.

This week is the deadline for signing up for the aptitude test, which is scheduled for December 2 and January 13. Students can consult Dean Golding for information and applications.

The University of California awards students a $400 scholarship to cover one year, and the State of California scholarship presents $185 to students to cover tuition and fees.

The aptitude test is required of all applicants, but is only one factor in determining the winners. They are also judged on the basis of ability, need, character, activities and good citizenship.

Applicants must be a resident of California, under 24 years of age and a high school graduate by the summer of 1962.

Three forms, including the aptitude test score, the parents' confidential financial statement showing the actual need, and the application containing the student's biography are to be submitted by the applicant.

To apply for a State scholarship a student must mail his application, postmarked no later than January 5, 1962, to the State Scholarship Commission in Sacramento.

For the University of California scholarship students must apply for admission to the university by March 1, 1962.

True-Sound A Revolution In Hi Fi Racket

By Dick Dragovan

IT IS TIME that the public be brought up to date on the subject of hi fi, stereo and other various electronic listening devices which are offered to music loving buyers.

The old 78 revolution per minute records often sounded more like a buzz saw in a lumber mill and even the RCA Victor dog patiently listening for his master's voice must have often found it difficult to stay put while those scratchy sounds were played.

Hi fidelity recording cut down the scratchy noises and started a new cult of "purist" listeners. Playing a record more than once was not only a crime, it was absurd. Once a record was played, they said, it had scratched.

The only thing to do was to buy a tape recorder, record the brand new platter then put the disc away and listen to the tape.

When stereo entered the picture background noise was at a minimum, especially during the recording session. Emphasis was placed on the music alone.

Possible exceptions were the "bugs" of hi-fi sound systems so sensitive that they reproduced, loudly and clearly, the record hiss, the unavoidable sound of the needle riding in the groove.

However, someone noted in a concert hall the music was not perfect and in order to bring realism into their living room it was necessary to produce a slight echo in their speaker system to imitate the echo in a concert hall.

All this paved the way for revolutionary True-Sound, a system so new that the renders of this column are the first to hear of it.

True-Sound is the ultimate in realism by which all the noises of a concert hall are reproduced.

These include the late arrivals' apologies as they stumble their way to their seats in the second row center, orchestra.

The late arrivals will be balanced by a half dozen "shushers" performing in counterpoint.

Other new "artists" will include first and second sneezers (or coughers, depending on the season).

For chorale arrangements a special choir of page flippers will be required to simulate 1000 people following the text in their programs.

One or two early applauders will also be necessary to provide the proper touch in symphonies which have false endings.

Thus True-Sound will bring the concert hall illusion to the most meticulous listener, even though the company hopes the omission of certain more subtle sounds such as the adjusting of binoculars will go unnoticed.

ary 12, from 9 p.m. to 12 midnight, and the location is the Peacock Court and the Room of the Dons of the Mark Hopkins Hotel atop Nob Hill.

A prelude to the Ball is the Sophomore King and Queen contest. Petitions are due today in the Associated Student office, S-134, Collins emphasized.

An ongoing election can sponsor a king and queen or both, he said, urging those wishing to run but without a sponsor to apply directly to him.

The Most Valuable Player award in cross-country went to Weidinger for his consistent all-out efforts in the harriers' competition.

Others receiving cross-country blocks were Steve Jackson, Andrew Loobey, Esteban Valle and George Venanza.

RAMBLINGS

By Ivan Temes

Predictions Go Pfft With Club Records

IF EVERYTHING had run the way the newspapers said it would, what a banner year this would be for Bay Area sports.

The National Football League championship contest is slated for later this month and a few weeks ago the only question mark about it was what team the 49ers would be playing for the title.

After all, hadn't they just demolished the Lions 49-0 and the Rams 35-0? Wasn't the Shotgun an invincible offense dreamed up by the man who could do no wrong, Red Hickey?

What a great trade that was—getting rid of Y. A. Tittle for a young lineman, Lou Cordileone.

2 Unbeaten CAB Teams Clash For Playoff Berth

By Jerry Littrell

Tomorrow night will prove to be the most important night in the Club Activities Board league as the only two unbeaten teams in that league, the Collegiate Five and the Untouchables, meet at 8:15 o'clock in the women's gymnasium.

Winner of the game between these two teams will represent the CAB league in the championship playoffs against the titlists from the Inter-Fraternity league, Alpha Phi Epsilon.

With the CAB league nearing completion and the IFC league play completed as of last week, this fall's intramural basketball season is drawing to a close.

Alpha Kappa Rho aided the Alpha Phi Epsilon team by failing to show up for their game last Wednesday night, thereby forfeiting it 2-0 and giving Alpha Phi Epsilon an unbeaten season.

Tomorrow night, along with the contest between the two unbeaten CAB teams, The Guardsman plays the Hotel and Restaurant, the Newman Club meets the Kane, the Believers take on the Electro-nics while the Alls has a bye.

Last night the Alls met the Newman Club, the Untouchables clashed with the Believers, the Electro-nics battled the H&R while the Collegiate Five played the Kane.

In last week's competition The Guardsman swamped the Electro-nics 53-41 with Larry Stewart leading the victors with 19 points while Mike Jacobson sunk 18 for the losers.

The Untouchables outfigured the H&R 53-27. Harbie Briscoe hit for 22 points while Mike Migge scored 14 in a losing effort.

The Collegiate Five overpowered the Alls 47-25 as Stan Fuescher dropped in 21 for the Five while Mel Tom hit for 6.

The Believers beat the Kane 53-29. Beta Tau was trounced by Alpha Sigma Delta 39-10, and the Zeta Phi Sigma got by the Gammass 31-20.

The Fearsome Foursome—Ram Version

CULMINATING a season of inspired play which brought them an 8-2 overall mark, the Rams placed four men on the Big Eight Conference teams.

Coleman's Romp Edges Monterey In Lettuce Bowl

By Ivan Temes

Maybe the Lettuce Bowl game at Salinas on Thanksgiving Day in which the Ram gridlers topped Monterey Peninsula College, 22-14, wasn't the most heralded postseason contest, but it certainly was one of the most exciting ones.

Not until the final 1:32 of action when halfback Ron Coleman raced 12 yards around left end for the winning touchdown was City College assured of its first postseason victory since 1948.

It took a tremendous team effort, and a relieved Grover Klemmer summed it up when he praised his men for "their best blocking and tackling of the year."

The Ram pilot had reason to feel relieved, too. Only five minutes before the game's conclusion, with the score knotted at 14-14, Monterey took over after a punt and in seven plays had moved from their own 35-yard stripe to the Rams' 17.

Here, the defense which has shone all year muscled in and took the initiative. After a five-yard penalty against the Lobos, Neil Shea threw quarterback Skip Murry for a 13-yard loss, and then Dave Ureia and Tom Piggee teamed to stop flashy Jerry Collette for an eight-yard loss, and the Rams took over.

Piggee, then baited down a Gary Hixson pass, and end Terry Fischer downed Murry for an eight-yard loss, and the Rams took over.

Getting excellent blocking from Jim Baffico, Jack Burgett, Alex Darnes and Cliff Vattuone among others, and clutch running from Piggee and Al Raine, the Rams moved to the 12 setting up the score. Coleman skirted the end untouched, escorted by Ureia, Darnes and Ray Greggains, and Ben Winslow passed to Greggains for two points.

With neither club noted for its passing attack, the game started on an appropriate note as the teams traded interceptions. However, the Rams settled down and opened the scoring in the first quarter as Coleman burst off left tackle and raced 47 yards, and Winslow passed to Fischer for the extra points.

Monterey tallied in the second period on a 36-yard pass from Hixson to Len Newman but Raine, the game's Most Valuable Back, took the ensuing kickoff, cut inside Chuck Oushani's block on the Monterey 43, and finished off his 91-yard touchdown return.

The losers came back to tie the contest in the third period on Dick Austin's one-yard plunge and Collette's conversion around end.

They had a big chance after blocking a punt in the final period but Coleman grabbed off Collette's fumble on the ensuing play after the officials refused to acknowledge Baffico's plea for a time out.

Another Monterey threat was thwarted in the first period, halted on the Ram 21-yard line.

Little Ram halfback John Daigle sparked twice, just missing breaking loose on a 38-yard kickoff return and a 13-yard zig-zag run with an intercepted pass.

Big 8 Grid Selections Place Piggee, Baffico In Top Spots

By Dave Kleinberg

Tom Piggee, an All-Conference back last year and a former prep star at Polytechnic High, tied Modesto's Cliff Kenny for Back-of-the-Year honors to highlight the 1961 All-Big Eight Conference football selections.

The second place finishing Rams, winners of the Lettuce Bowl, also placed tackle Jim Baffico on the first team and put two men on the second squad.

San Mateo, conference champions for the second straight year, placed three men on the first squad, one on the second and had the Lineman-of-the-Year in Larry Hansen.

Terry Fischer, the Rams' aggressive veteran end, and Dave Ureia, a freshman All-City guard from Lowell High, placed on the second team.

Piggee's yardage total reached 956 yards in ten games and 742 in the seven conference contests. He caught seven passes for another 100 yards, and led the team in scoring with 70 points.

Because there were no heavy backs the 175-pound Piggee, normally a halfback, was switched to the fullback spot at the start of the year and showed the tenacity that could eventually earn him Junior College All-American honors before the year is out.

Against Modesto Piggee had his biggest day, scoring all four touchdowns on runs of 20, 20, 20 and 85 yards to roll up a fantastic 213 yards in 13 carries.

Baffico, the Leo Nomellini-type lineman, was in the opposition's backfield more often than on the Rams' field, it seemed.

Agile for his size, Baffico, with aid from Ureia, Dennis Drucker, Jack Burgett and Alex Darnes, led the Ram defense which held league opponents to less than nine points per game.

With the Rams' strong showing, there was cause for some legitimate concern behind the Rams' 1-2 star on defense and highly rated by scouts who carefully observed the Rams' contests, was not mentioned in the selections.

Klemmer, lamenting slightly, felt that Ureia not only should have made first team All-Conference, but that he was the "best guard in the league."

An All-City prop star at Polytechnic and a former teammate of Arterberry, Curcington possesses a deadly hook shot from in close, and can go high over the backboard.

Phelan will welcome the services of the rugged rebounding Melvin Tom, a muscularly built 6-3, 245-pounder, who becomes eligible at midseason.

Gene Batiste and Bill Nocetti, a pair of fine ball-handlers who both jump well for their height, have seen a good deal of action at guard.

Batiste, noted for his ball-handling while making All-City guard at Mission High, passes on target and hits well from the outside. Nocetti, formerly of Sacred Heart a few years back, can hit from outside.

Dewitt Demmer, All-City from Balboa High; Everett Adams, All-City from Washington High; Vince Courtney, Doug Johnson and John Neal will be in the lineup.

Forward position, on past records, looks strong. Veteran Brad Duggan, who goes 6-4, and Randy Simms, 6-3, appear to be in line for first string berths.

Simms, who received little recognition while being overshadowed by high-scoring Demmer at Balboa, has tremendous spring, and has looked sharp in game competition. Bill Mulcrevy has also looked good.

The five starters are definitely not settled. The season opener is still two months away, and last year Phelan sent his men through the exhibition season before he found the lineup that made the club click.

College of San Mateo last Saturday hosted this college's Recreation Association in a playday. Teams participating in the activity took part in bowling, badminton and volleyball.

Recently the fencing team participated in an unclassified foil event for first year fencers, and several placed in the semifinals.

Party Platforms Quote Principles In AS Elections

ED PAWLUS, backed by SRP, is running for Associated Men Student President, the highest position which is contested by both parties.

Students Representative Party...

In order for the Associated Students of City College to keep in step with the times, the STUDENTS' REPRESENTATIVE PARTY submits the following points as its program for the Spring semester, 1962.

I. To keep the students better informed, the AS President will hold a monthly press conference. He will be questioned by correspondents from The Guardsman and KCSF. The press conference will be televised over KCTV, a summary will be delivered over KCSF and its contents will appear in The Guardsman.

II. Panel discussions between members of the administration-faculty and student leaders will be held in order to discuss mutual problems. This will result in the development of ideas which will enable the student body to secure the greatest benefits from the work and the teaching of administration-faculty.

III. The financial system will be revitalized by the appointment of two members of Student Council to assist the Finance Chairman.

IV. Campus organizations will unite in working for the betterment of the student lounge and increased sales of AS cards.

Organized Independents' Party...

The days of a two-party system at City College are gone. The once infant party, now in power, has grown and outlived its purpose. This colossal, now divided, is quarreling among itself, leaving the Associated Students caught, as in the jaws of a vise, deprived of their welfare.

Individuals of the ORGANIZED INDEPENDENTS' PARTY platform have joined together to, fight machine politics.

The OIP candidates present no elaborate platform promises because, as a new party, we are willing to enter student government at the lower level and work for any and all projects designed to aid and benefit the students. Each candidate has been informed of and understands his duties in the AS Constitution.

The other party has selfishly put politics before the interests and benefits of the students; we would like a chance to put honesty back into student government.

We will not be bound by vague political promises nor strict party lines. Our only pledge is honesty and fairness in student government.

FRED CHERNISS, running on the OIP ticket, also seeks the AMS post. Cherniss is currently COO President and Vice President of IFC.

3 Women's Groups Join Forces To Present Oriental Flavored Feminine Fling Tomorrow

Titled Canton Capades, this semester's semiannual Feminine Fling will be presented by the Associated Women Students at 6:30 p.m. this Friday in Smith Hall, Barbara Sperring, AWS board member, revealed yesterday.

A women's award party, a light buffet supper and entertainment will be provided for all women students attending.

Major awards to be presented to women at the event include the AWS service award and the Inter-Sorority Council scholarship trophy given to the sorority with the highest overall grade point average.

Committees planning for the event include invitations, headed by Margaret Kretle, decorations by Priscilla Popin and Betty Rice and set-up handled by Margaret Kretle.

The supper, in keeping with the Oriental theme, will consist of Chinese food and fortune cookies. Working on this aspect of the affair are two committees, with serving conducted by Phi Beta Kappa sorority with Marlene Farley as head, and the food being handled by Nancy Brooks.

The inauguration of the new president for the three women's organizations at the college will also take place.

This semester's AWS president, Jan Doudiet, will relinquish her post to her successor, Kathy Holback who will also pass on her title of ISC president to the woman selected as her successor and the president of the Recreation Association will also step down to make room for the new leader.

The final item on the evening's agenda will be a special showing of Grant Avenue fashions. Oriental flavored dances will supply the entertainment.

AMS board members promise a successful Fling and hope that all women students here will attend.

Council Dinner Schedules Service Award Presentation

Presentation of two Outstanding Service awards and the installation of the newly elected Associated Student President and Vice President will highlight the Student Council dinner to be held at 6 p.m. next Tuesday in Smith Hall, Gary Wilkening, AS president, stated recently.

Previous to the dinner, members of the Student Council and cabinet hold a conference to determine the recipients of the service awards.

The purpose of the award is to credit one student and one faculty member who contribute outstanding service to the college.

The qualification involved is that no candidates may hold any elective office here. Other awards, in the form of Ram's head pins and guards, are given to council and cabinet members in recognition of the length of time they served in office.

Attending the event will be members of the faculty who have willingly given their time and service to the college, past and present council and cabinet members, and the presidents and vice presidents of both San Mateo and Foothill colleges.

The menu, prepared by the hotel and restaurant department, was revealed by AS Vice President Kathy Henderson. It consists of shrimp cocktail, roast sirloin of beef with sauce, baked potatoes and green vegetables, coffee, rolls and orange surprise will be served.

The registrar expressed regret that students must take leave, because their withdrawal creates both a time and financial waste for the college.

Voters Rush Polls!

Dan Collins, Sue Murphy Unopposed For Top Offices

By Kevin Curtis

The polls are open!

Voting for next semester's Associated Student officers and the 14 Student Council seats began at 8 a.m. this morning and will close at 2 p.m. tomorrow.

Voting machines are situated at the silver pole in Science Hall, the cafeteria, the entrance to the library and by the arts building.

Two significant developments mark the election. They are the emerging of a new party on campus and the unopposed races for the offices of AS President and Vice President, thus automatically making Dan Collins and Suzanne Murphy AS President and Vice President, respectively.

Emergence of a new party occurred when the United Students' Party dissolved following its convention. Established in the spring of 1959 as a result of the merger of the Inter-Fraternity Council and the Inter-Sorority Council's parties, the USP was forced to disband because of lack of qualified candidates and the absence of internal organization.

In lieu of the USP is the Organized Independent Party. Composed largely of aspirants from the several groups, the OIP is offering the minimum three candidates for the six major offices required of a party to be formed.

However, the contests for AS President and Vice President have only one candidate, who are both members of the Students' Representative Party, the OIP's competitor.

The two candidates running for Associated Men Student President are Ed Pawlus (SRP) and Fred Cherniss (OIP). Jackie Rommel (SRP) is unopposed for the office of Associated Women Student President.

Aspiring for Sophomore Class Presidency are Bob Andersen (SRP) and Bob Rauh (OIP), while the office of Freshman Class President is sought by Vince Contreras (SRP) and Imogene Walker (OIP).

Seven of the following nine candidates will be elected to the Sophomore seats on Student Council. They are Pam Chandler (SRP), Maureen Farley (OIP), Gail Margolin (SRP), Bill May (SRP), Greg Monk (SRP), Dave Otey (SRP), Herm Pearson (OIP), Andy Shamiyeh (SRP), and Otto Van Duyn (SRP).

For Freshman seats on council there are also nine candidates. They are Dianne Perrine (SRP), Marcia Devlin (SRP), Terry Foulkes (OIP), Judy Gerstle (SRP), Eli Kula (SRP), Charles Miller (SRP), Kris Peterson (OIP), John Thullen (SRP) and Jim Fuller (OIP).

Three propositions also appear on the ballot.

Proposition A concerns the changing of the qualifications for the offices of AS President, Vice President, AMS and AWS Presidents, Freshman President, Recording Secretary and Yell Leader.

Proposition B resolves that no student of the Associated Students shall hold more than one position (appointed or elected) in student government unless approved by Student Council.

Proposition C would approve power by the Student Council to dismiss the AS President by a three-fourths vote of the entire council with the consent of the faculty adviser and the dean of student activities.

AS cardholders are the only students eligible to vote. This semester they total a record 3000, and it is hoped that the past average of 25 per cent turnout will be greatly improved in this election.

Results of the voting will be tabulated immediately and may be announced at the Associated Women Student Feminine Fling tomorrow night in Smith Hall, according to Ed Ayala, election commissioner.

Exhibits located in the display cases of Science Hall and the library contain the candidate's pictures and the platforms of the parties.

Century Of US Progress Subject Of C-Hour Film

Our Pioneering Heritage will be shown during College Hour tomorrow in S-136. The film shows exhibits from the Smithsonian Institution that portray the progress and development of the United States during the past 100 years.

The forthcoming attraction on January 12 will be America's Automobile Age. It traces the history of the automobile from the early beginnings up to the present time, Madison Devlin, audio-visual aids instructor, explained.

Party Leaders Address Students

SRP...

The Students' Representative Party advocates the building of the spirit of unity within the Associated Students and the belief in making each student an active participant in student affairs.

An important procedure in promoting this program is to illustrate to incoming freshmen the importance and advantages of entering student activities and present such opportunities to them.

The SRP represents all the students. Its candidates come from 15 different organizations, and in addition, four are not members of any campus organization. This is evident of SRP being truly democratic and the spokesman of the student body.

Consentious and industrious, the SRP candidates are well experienced with the student government. Well chosen by the representatives of the campus organizations, they will do their utmost in providing the students with the proper representation.—Dan Collins.

OIP...

The Organized Independents' Party was formed when a number of people on campus was made aware of the undemocratic policies that are being played at this college. Not only are the policies undemocratic, but they are detrimental to the Associated Students.

The individuals who joined together under the OIP banner are both mature and sincere people who want very much, with your vote, to represent the Associated Students and are pledged to honesty and hard work.

As founder of the OIP, and after gaining experience in the student government as chairman of the Council of Organizations and vice president of the Inter-Fraternity Council, I have planned an orientation smoker for all incoming male freshmen in order to acquaint these students with the facilities offered here in such varied fields as athletics, peer relations and personal health.—Fred Cherniss.

Ex-Student Back As Technician

Radio-TV Gains
CBS Engineer

The task of radio-television technical director here is a busy and sometimes hectic one as it is presently experienced by Fred Muller, a newcomer to the radio-TV staff this semester.

No stranger to this field of endeavor, Muller came here directly from a job as broadcast engineer at Columbia Broadcasting System on the East Coast and in San Francisco. At CBS he worked in both radio and TV. Born and reared in the city by the Golden Gate, he attended Samuel Gompers Trade School (now O'Connell) and Heald's Engineering College.

Muller started his career as a ham radio operator but admits that since it is so time consuming he can't continue it nowadays.

He also was employed at radio station KYA and KEAR (then the good music station) as a transmitting engineer.

He worked as a television engineer on two stations in Fresno before coming to the college.

Muller Starts
Drama Telecast

During the early telecasts Muller studied here as a special student in Rev. Paquellotti's motion picture workshop and shot film for the college's first educational shows.

His specific job now is to coordinate the technical operation of the closed circuit TV system. He also instructs students in the correct use of the cameras.

Having high regard for the college's radio-TV equipment, Muller stated that the system here is equal to any professional setup anywhere except that a different camera tube is used here.

Muller came here at the beginning of the semester and has since been responsible for the recent closed circuit showings from the drama department. He also works with Henry Left, radio-TV instructor, in arranging the daily KCSF radio broadcasts.

Asked if his job was permanent here, he replied with a smile: "Today it is, but you never know what tomorrow will bring." He concluded by stating that he hoped to be around for quite a while, since he is keenly interested in both the college and its facilities, especially in the radio-TV department.

1961 Makes Dubious Foundation For Building Sound New Year

WITH 1961 done and the new year taking root in its fourth day, optimists are generously making resolutions at the same time that pessimists are cautiously predicting "the" fatal year.

But before 1961 becomes completely hodgepodge and hazy like last Monday morning's headache, a quick survey of '61 can be a helpful guide to '62, that is, if we want to reach its halfway mark.

The key word in 1961 was Science and its role in the technological struggle between the U. S. and Soviet Union. Astronauts Shepard and Grissom and cosmonauts Gargarin and Titov ascended to the threshold of space while the resumption of nuclear testing plummeted the rest of humanity to the depths of barbarism. Science in conflict with Society.

With such an omnipresent force threatening the entire globe even the power of politics seemed diminutive. Diplomacy received its most severe setback with the death of Dag Hammarskjold. And at home the House will never be the same without Mr. Sam.

President Kennedy's New Frontier had before it a swamp to clear, not a forest. Although its domestic legislation met substantial success and the '60 recession was curbed, the cauldron of international trouble hot spots bubbled over.

A baseball record was tied by Roger Maris, but the game lost a legend, Ty Cobb. The cinema's grief at the passing of Gary Cooper was shared by all America. And, Ernest Hemingway? He'll always be there. The works speak for the man.

The Santa Maria was hijacked by modern day pirates and set the pace for more of the same with Cuban and American airlines.

My Fair Lady made a total of $18 million on Broadway and $5½ million in Hollywood, both all-time records. George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart both died.

Robert Frost's poem at the inaugural started the year solemnly. Hurricane Carla whipped it up in the middle, and Henry Miller's re-released Tropic ended the year with a battle between obscenity and obscenity.

All in all, 1961 left much to be desired. The Troika failed. Has the Trinity?

The Spectator

(Today's Spectator is by Dave Kleinberg)

WILLIAM CASTLE, the movie producer who tries to find the way to the movie-goer's heart through the shocker, brought his latest gimmick to town last month—Mr. Sardonicus. The crudely produced picture reaches its peak when a malevolent Baron Sardonicus, played uncomfortably by Roland Lewis, is subject to what Castle calls a punishment poll. The audience participates by determining the star's fate with an arrow that is pointed one way for condemnation, the other for mercy.

But, unlike the Castle gimmicks of the past, the audience is actually left out. Instead of two endings as one might expect, just one is offered—and it is the same each performance. Leader of Hollywood's bunco artists, and flattered when told so, Castle's first weirdo was Macabre, released in 1958.

Castle Continues Rash Of Shockers And Gimmicks With Sardonicus

Insurance policies against death from fright were handed to each patron. When Castle approached Lloyds of London to insure his stunt, they were somewhat baffled by his request. They had no figures to go on. Finally Lloyds of London learned that eight persons die each year at motion pictures, even if the programs may be no more terrifying than Mickey Mouse.

In 1959 Castle released House On Haunted Hill, produced in San Francisco. He used the device which projected a plastic skeleton over the audience.

The Tinger in 1960 employed Percepto, a stunt that caused theater seats to shudder and shiver. In black and white film, another first was created when red fluid ran from both victims and water taps.

Later in 1960 he branded Emergo, in the 13 Ghosts. The audience was supplied with a card. If you looked through the upper panel of red you saw ghosts on the screen; if you looked through its lower panel of blue, the phantoms became invisible. Castle ordered 20 million ghost skeletons at the approximate cost of $250,000. The idea, he explained, came from a type of comic book he often saw as a kid which required two-colored glasses to read. Matching the colors on the film so that the illusion would work was extremely difficult, he said.

The four most important elements in a picture, the tall man with a somewhat pointed head and jutting, determined jaw said, are subject, title, production and star—in that order.

The real horror element of Castle's films is that, while America tries to show nations its good system, films have been dubbed in five different languages to be shown around the world.

Foresight

Adult Television Not For College Students

By John Muller

NIGHT OWLS sleepily greeted the new year in two indistinguishable groups last Monday: those who got burned with bad marks because they found it necessary to fool with midnight oil and those who watched "adult" television.

One requirement for watching adult programs this season is, namely, to be an adult, and an insomniac adult at that since a good many of the programs which are aimed at an audience with a mental age above that of a 12-year-old commence at 10 or even later in the night.

To quote a few examples, Sing Along With Mitch, Naked City, Ben Casey and Alcoa Presents are all post-10 p.m. programs, not to mention PM East. PM West or channel 7's late show with Jezebel Hosseloff presenting this month's oldies but goodies.

It seems as though early evening TV has nothing more to offer than morose programs like Alvin and the Squirrels, Mother Knows Best, The Price Ain't (it's in the dictionary now) Right and big (that he is), bad (that he is, too) John Midnight (it's a cryin' shame that he isn't scheduled at midnight).

To complete the list of imbecile shows would be unbearable. The old saying that small things annoy more than big things is never truer than when applied to early evening TV with the "small mind" level of too many of the shows.

This situation delights many viewers. It means that if they stay up late to watch a program which won't insult their intelligence, they'll have a full six or seven hours of sleep, if they're lucky, before arising seemingly with the chickens to rush to work or to make an eight o'clock class.

And that's not mentioning those students who have that one and only seven o'clock class.

Two suggestions present themselves. Students with foresight will take an afternoon or early evening nap after finishing their studies and thereby spare themselves the bulk of the junk shows.

Or, if they possess a rebellious strain they may follow what Karl Marx, once proclaimed, "workers arise" (students, too) and petition the Federal Communications Commission to make those d.n. networks reprogram their programming.

Mumbub?

Editor, The Guardsman:

I think this idea of letting the students out one week earlier for the Christmas holidays is a considerable move for the working students, but is it really necessary?

As I understand, City College is just about the only institution in Northern California that has this awkward, irregular holiday schedule. I'm sure that many students from other colleges, universities and high schools work during Christmas, too.

Before I could ask about the accommodations, however, he glanced up at me suspiciously and inquired, "How much did you say you wished to spend?"

When I explained that I thought the publicity he would gain would be well worth the fare, he made another suggestion on where I could go.

I was certain that he couldn't be serious, in spite of the set of his face, for I thought that the spot he named must certainly be jammed with commuters.

It seemed that the agent was beginning to tire of me for he said, "I only have one thing to say to you. You should go to work."

"Bureka!" I exclaimed. "That's it! Certainly that is the last place where I would find any Esteemed Colleagues!"

"On thinking it over, though, I realized that I wouldn't try it either, for the very same seemed to have an unpleasant ring to it."

I mulled the puzzle over in my mind on my way home and suddenly decided on the spot where I ultimately spent my vacation.

Fortunately, since returning, I lost my notes from which I had planned to write a descriptive column.

For I spent Christmas in vibrant, exotic Alameda.

Have Column—
Will Travel!

—But Where?

By Dick Dragovan

FOR A WRITER to join the ranks of San Francisco columnists as an Esteemed Colleague it is imperative that he write about his vacation.

Thus when the Christmas holidays rolled around, I commenced a search for a vacation spot which had not previously been covered in any of the local journals.

Hiccup myself to a travel agency downtown, I explained my quest to a gentleman behind the desk.

"The European jet tour was taken by my Esteemed Colleague, Herb," I said. "Esteemed Colleague Art made the handyman's home scene while Esteemed Colleague Dick batted off to Transylvania."

"Well," he began thumbing through folders, "Africa is pretty much untouched."

"Africa is out!" I stated firmly. "I saw a postcard which one of the Peace Corps girls had managed to get published. It described things pretty well. The place is loaded with writers."

I thought he was beginning to see the uniqueness of my problem because he muttered something about a trip to the moon.

Before I could ask about the accommodations, however, he glanced up at me suspiciously and inquired, "How much did you say you wished to spend?"

When I explained that I thought the publicity he would gain would be well worth the fare, he made another suggestion on where I could go.

I was certain that he couldn't be serious, in spite of the set of his face, for I thought that the spot he named must certainly be jammed with commuters.

It seemed that the agent was beginning to tire of me for he said, "I only have one thing to say to you. You should go to work."

"Bureka!" I exclaimed. "That's it! Certainly that is the last place where I would find any Esteemed Colleagues!"

"On thinking it over, though, I realized that I wouldn't try it either, for the very same seemed to have an unpleasant ring to it."

I mulled the puzzle over in my mind on my way home and suddenly decided on the spot where I ultimately spent my vacation.

Fortunately, since returning, I lost my notes from which I had planned to write a descriptive column.

For I spent Christmas in vibrant, exotic Alameda.

Santa Claus Was Here Cable Short Puts Gymnasiums In Freeze, Cancels Calisthenics

By Jerry Littrell

Any reports or rumors that have been circulating around the college stating that men's and women's gymnasiums are being converted into cold storage plants should be regarded as entirely untrue and without any factual basis—ALMOST.

However, it is true that the gymnasium heating systems were out of operation for four weeks. The boilers were off also, so there was no hot water for the shower rooms and most of the lights above the gymnasium floors left every one in the dark.

All this discomfite and trouble evolved from the fact that the underground electrical cables, which date back to the year when construction started here, in 1937, rotted away and shorted out one of the main lines and resulted in the loss of power.

This sudden cut-off caused the indoor temperature to drop to an icebox level, approximately 34 degrees, and it also caused the unexcused cut rate to rise to an all-time high.

Because of the prevailing situation the only discernible activity in either gymnasium was the hourly movement of the bundled-up, rosy-cheeked physical education instructors who ventured out to the unprecedented coolness of the locker rooms to call the roll of the few hardy souls who dared to come there.

After the token roll call each class was readily dismissed and the instructors migrated back into the office areas, where they huddled around the portable heater which gave off a faint indication of heat.

One of the biggest worries was that the upcoming Big Eight basketball contests would have to be rescheduled, so an emergency call went to proper city officials.

Fingers were kept crossed as time grew shorter and shorter and temperature went lower and lower. Fullerton College was to make an all-day trip to the Bay Area to play the Rams and there was no way to reach them at the last minute.

Finally, exactly three weeks and one day after the failure, power again surged into the field areas and everything returned somewhat to normal.

The job was completed in the nick of time, just 45 minutes before the scheduled game between Fullerton and San Francisco.

Unfortunately, the return of the heat failed to ignite the cagers as they lost their game in a "heated" contest, 46-45.

Hopkins Site Of Soph Ball

Penny-A-Vote
To Determine
Royal Couple

Voting for a Sophomore king and queen, to reign over the class semiannual ball at the Mark Hopkins Hotel on Friday, January 12, begins next Monday and will conclude the night of the dance, said President Dan Collins.

Competition will once again be conducted by the traditional penny-a-vote method. Each aspirant will have a container placed either at the silver pole in Science Hall or in Smith Hall. The candidates receiving the most pennies will be declared the winners.

Collins emphasized that students should donate to the campaign since all money collected will go directly into the Sophomore Class scholarship fund.

The final results of the voting will be announced during special intermission ceremonies at the ball. Trophies donated by Beta Tau fraternity and Theta Tau sorority will be inscribed with the winners' names and presented to them. This award will be displayed at the college.

The royal couple will receive tokens of appreciation from representatives of the Sophomore Class to keep. At the dance a plaque will be awarded to the sophomore with the highest grade point average.

The setting for the awards will be enlivened in the ball's theme, Winter Rhapsody, and in the music of Ray Hackett's orchestra. The Peacock Court and Room of the Dons in the Mark Hopkins Hotel will host the 9 p.m. to 12 midnight affair. Additional entertainment will be provided by the Talcmen, a group who performed here at the college during the Christmas rally.

Two rooms were reserved this semester to accommodate the 500 bid sellout of past Sophomore Balls, Collins said.

Members of the Sophomore Class will have priority in receiving bids Monday and Tuesday of next week. After that time, invitations may be secured by any Associated Student until the limited supply is exhausted.

Distribution point for the bids will be the silver pole in Science Hall between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m.

When securing their bid, students must present their current AS card and registration card, Collins emphasized.

Committees involved in the planning are the king and queen committee, bids committee and the floor committee. When asked what responsibility the floor committee had, Collins replied that it was a committee of strong men to help keep the program moving.

Club Cavalcade: Fashions, Movie, Luau Top Coming C-Hour Programs

DESPITE New Year's resolutions to study harder for final grades, students are finding time to attend the college's club activities.

A discussion of the annual luau will be the topic of the Hawaiian Club meeting this Friday during College Hour in C-258. Members of the club and all interested visitors are invited.

A men's fashion show, planned and prepared by the Merchandising Club, will be held during College Hour January 12. The theme, Man of '62, will be carried out by 14 men who are competing for the title of Man of '62. The winner will receive a complete wardrobe from Cable Car Clothing.

On Tuesday, January 9, the Pleading Heistards will be shown by the audio-visual department this Friday during College Hour in S-136. Those students wishing to see the movie are invited to attend.

The Christian Science Organization will hold its meeting at 7:45 p.m. tomorrow in Third Church of Christ Scientist, 1250 Haight street. This organization, which holds its meetings on the first and third Thursdays of every month, extends an invitation to all interested students, faculty, alumni and friends to attend.

Further information is available from club sponsor, Nina Tucker, of the hotel and restaurant department.

There was such an interest in Counselor Howard Schoon's lecture on Marriage Relations that he will again speak January 12 during College Hour to students here in a talk sponsored by the Collegiate Christian Fellowship.

The newly initiated pledges of Theta Tau received their pins recently at a formal pinning ceremony in the home of sponsor Vivian Ward. The ceremony preceded a pledge dinner held at the Hotel Claremont in Oakland, which was given by the sisters for the pledges and their dates.

Marilyn Butler, chairman of the affair, was assisted by Kathy Hallock, ISF president.

St. Francis Hotel Hosts H&R Students January 18

Operation St. Francis, an annual activity which 27 sophomores and a few top third semester students at this college attend, will be held Thursday, January 18, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the St. Francis Hotel.

The activity will give hotel and restaurant students some idea of the complex duties of the different positions in the hotel's personnel.

Council To Cite Faculty, Student Aid With Award

Twelve nominations for an award to be presented to the student and faculty member "who has contributed most to the Associated Students and the student government while receiving the least recognition," were made during last week's meeting of Student Council.

Students nominated this semester are Maureen Farley, Kathy Mansfield, Sandy Shaw, Laura Thurlwell and Bob Hacker.

The question of whether KCSF would go off the air was settled with a full report by Stan Burford, vice president of the KCSF Broadcasters Club, which was filed with Gary Wilkenson, Associated Student president.

A threat to that effect had been voiced following a cut in the KCSF budget. This threat was later withdrawn.

Jerry McCarthy, Campus Police chief, stated that the number of parking violations up to this time is about 1800. He expects the number to increase by the end of the semester.

Marine Officers To Recruit Here Wednesday

Opportunities for officer commissions in the United States Marine Corps will be outlined to interested students here next Wednesday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the Shuek, bungalows 3 and 4.

Conducting the interviews will be Capt. Greiner, Parthen and Captain R. D. Ross of the Marine Corps. Both aviation and line officer programs will be explained.

In an official press release sent here the fact is brought out that training is conducted during the summer at two six-week instruction periods, and no candidate will be commissioned until he has been graduated from college.

AMS Smoker To Stage Finals Of Cage, Glove Matches In Men's Gymnasium Tonight

Bringing the fall sports activities to an exciting conclusion, the semiannual Associated Men Student smoker will feature the championship intramural basketball game, nine boxing matches, and entertainment at 7 o'clock tonight at the men's gymnasium.

Admission is free for Associated Students and 50 cents otherwise.

Kicking off the program will be the basketball title contest which pits the high scoring Alpha Phi Epsilon, undefeated leader of the Interfraternity Council League, against the powerful Untouchables, winners of the Club Activities Board & Independent League and winner of last semester's intramural crown.

The Alpha five, who finished second in last semester's playoff game, are paced by Eli Horn and John Giles, while the Untouchables are led by Harbie Briscoe, Bob Soper, Vinie Courtney and Dave Towner.

A team trophy will be awarded to the winning squad after the game, and members of each team will receive medals, according to Paul Snowberg, AMS president.

Following the basketball tilt, championship boxing matches will feature nine pairs of boxers who, under the guidance of boxing coach Roy Diederichsen, have fought their way to the finals. Each represents his individual class, ranging from 126 pounds to heavyweight.

Starting the action will be the 126-pound division that schedules Robert Arevalo against Tony Olivera, while Gary Marble and Gary Rodriguez will battle for the 135-pound title.

Highlighting the third round of action will be Dennis Hoffman and Charles Brown for the 139-pound division, while Bill Walsh and Joe Smolen will square off for the 145-pound match.

Rich Callister and Roldin Randall will provide the fifth round action at the 152-pound scale while the 162-pound division bout will pit Mike Calderwood against Ralph Pappas.

Answering the bell for the seventh and eighth fight will be Harold Rosowski, Ted Sieder and Garry Bartolotti, William Pappas, respectively, for the 169 and 178-pound titles.

The last but not least round of action will be the featured heavyweight championship fight between Chuck Coese and Pete Downing.

Three rounds are scheduled for each bout at 1½ minutes per round, and the participants will wear headgear and use the 14-ounce gloves.

Gold and silver medals will be awarded to the winners and runners-up, while special trophies will be given to the outstanding boxer and the "fightingest fighter."

Netters Look To Siska To Absorb Graduation Loss

The addition of Bob Siska, one of the top tennis players ever to enroll here, is expected to compensate more than enough for the loss of Jack Brackon and Paul Barth, last year's number one and two men.

The 18-year-old Siska, who is rated nationally in the men's singles and has graduated from the United States Junior Davis Cup team, enrolled here after competing back east in the Forest Hill tournament.

The former Lincoln graduate was only 16 when he got through two rounds of the National Men's Singles and then faced Rod Laver, Australian Davis Cupper. It took the Aussie four sets to win.

Joining Siska is Rich Murray, a former Lincoln graduate and last year's number three man. Veterans Bob Silverstein from Washington and Tom Strauss from Lowell alternated as sixth and seventh seeds.

The incoming freshmen expected to help are Rich Anderson, the number two man at Lincoln High; John Keams, number one at Washington High, and Paul Baroway from Balboa High.

Coach Roy Diederichsen, who guided the Rams to a deadlock for second place last year, announced the first annual alumni-student tennis tournament.

The first one, to be held early in February, will bring together graduates Nick Schart '57, Bill Wright, Fred Waters '58, Fred Botsford '59 and Jack Hyman, an AAA champ in '51.

Ram Cagers End Pre-Season Play In Modesto Tournament

By Jerry Littrell

Slowly molding itself into a balanced basketball team, Coach Sid Phelan's charges head for the Modesto tournament today to battle highly rated Cerritos in the first round of the three-day tournament.

Posting a mediocre 4-5 preseason record, the hoopssters look forward to this 16-team tournament as their big chance to earn starting berths.

In last week's action the Rams were edged by Fullerton 46-45 Wednesday as the winner's class forward Bill Morris scored 27 points to far outdistance the rest of the scorers.

However, the Rams rebounded Friday on the home court with a come-from-behind 61-58 win over Chaffee. Bob Mulcreavy scored 15 points and Brad Duggan 16, but the big performance was by highly rated 6-7 center Elton McGriff, who tallied 9 points and grabbed 11 rebounds.

With the practice schedule rapidly drawing to a close and the tough Big Eight play in the not-to-distant future, Phelan is still as yet undecided as to his starting five.

About the only position that is definite at this time is the center spot, which will be held down by 6-4½ Charles Currington.

At guard, Phelan can choose from a wealth of talent headed by All-City guard Gene Battiste, returning veteran Dave Roberts, Bill Nocetti, Dewitt Demmer, John Neal, Everett "Goose" Adams and Dub Johnson.

Duggan, team leader in scoring and rebounds, along with Randy Simms, Mulcreavy and Vince Courtney, give Phelan a strong attack at the forward spot.

Simms has been handicapped up to now by a conflicting work schedule and has been unable to attend practices or games regularly. His full time return to the squad should help in the rebounding department.

Usually dependable from the floor, Mulcreavy has just now returned to form after a strength-draining flu attack.

In their first preseason encounter the hoopssters were soundly trounced by the Stanford Frosh team, 70-47. Currington scored 12 points for the team high score.

A noticeably weak USF Frosh team gave the Rams their first taste of victory as the Red and White won 59-47. Currington again had high point honors by adding another 12 points to his credit.

San Jose State Frosh drubbed the Rams to the tune of 69-38 as Phelan's men lost control of both the boards and the ball during a disheartening second half. At halftime they were trailing by only three points, but they were severely dropped during the third and fourth quarters.

Starting to function together as a team the basketball squad sped by a highly rated San Jose City College team, 52-45 as Duggan plunked in 17 points.

The UC Frosh team overpowered the locals 62-51. The deciding factor in the game, as it has been throughout the season, was the lack of strength on the boards. Currington again dropped in 12 points for high point honors.

Playing slowly and without any sort of organization, the Rams listlessly gave away a contest to the Santa Clara Frosh 64-46. High point man was Duggan with nine points.

Giving their most promising and effective attack in the year the Red and White defeated Long Beach City College in an overtime period 49-46.

Duggan led the game and culminated a personal 17-point 14-rebound evening by dropping in two free throws with one minute left in the overtime period to give the Rams the three-point lead.

An overall rating and evaluation of the team shows a desperate need for board strength and a better shooting average on the free throw line. So far the Rams have lost a possible 72 points in seven games by missed free throws.

Phelan expects the rebounding strength to improve as the season progresses and a starting five is decided upon. "With control of the boards and consistent hustle on the team we have a good chance in this year's competition," the hopeful mentor said.

STOCKTON

Reports indicate that Stockton has its best club in 10 years, even though the Mustangs are keeping it pretty quiet. In the highly rated Bakersfield tournament the Mustangs, a cellar squad last year, placed third, losing only to Fresno.

Ted Watkins, who scored 21 points against Los Angeles Valley and 18 in a losing effort to Fresno, was voted to the All-Tournament team.

Boasting a collection of high scorers in Ron Stone, Andy Stoglin, Eddie Williams and Watkins, defending opponents will have problems if they attempt to stop any one individual.

MODESTO

The Pirates, another squad lacking the big men have only veteran Gene Hart, 6-3. The other starters are Al Lockard, freshman Ron Carey and Jerry Cobb. Substitute guard Ed Johnson hits well from the outside.

SANTA ROSA

The Bear Cubs are relatively inexperienced with only two men back, but they are two good ones. Forward Clint Bainbridge came off the bench to spark the Bear Cubs to several wins last year. Center John Paxton, who may be moved to forward to accommodate freshman Darryl Barberie (6-5), figures high in the Cub rebounding department.

Other potential starters are forwards Joe Munoz (6-0) and Don Jacobson (6-3); guards Dick Dowd (5-11) and Dennis Ragor (6-0).

SACRAMENTO

The Panthers went through the first five games undefeated before they were downed by rugged Fresno City College 64-54, for their only loss thus far.

Bob Ferrel, a 6-3 forward, who usually plays in the double figures, is the Panthers' big shooter. Backing him at the starting positions are forward Dennis Nokolby, guards Mike Bowes and Dennis Kojima and center Bugs Walton.

CONTRA COSTA

The Comets, with only two players reaching the 6-1 mark, are really going to suffer on the boards. In fact, if they didn't have LeRoy Walker, one of the best shooters around, they might even have trouble scoring.

In early season contests, the speedy newcomers have hit a high game of 31, and his 44 points in Football tournament contributed to the Comet cause.

Others, expected to see action are Rich Lynons, the 6-1 center who has led the Comets in rebounding thus far. Jerry Shaw, a letterman, and Gail Whittier.

Cherniss Elected As SRP Takes Majority

A slim margin of eight votes marked the difference between victory and defeat last week when Fred Cherniss, Organized Independents' Party, captured the Associated Men Student Presidency from Ed Pawlus of the Students' Representative Party in AS elections here.

Dan Collins and Suzanne Murphy became next semester's AS President and Vice President automatically and received 510 and 462 votes of confidence, respectively.

Collins and Miss Murphy were officially installed in these positions at last night's Student Council dinner. Cherniss polled 283 to Pawlus's 285 to gain the office in a tight battle.

Jackie Rommel (SRP) was unopposed for the Presidency of the Associated Women Students and polled 468 votes of confidence.

The Sophomore Presidency was attained by Bob Anderson (SRP) when he defeated Bob Rauh (OIP) with a 350 to 217 victory. Vince Contreras (SRP) was elected President of the Freshman Class over Imogene Walker (OIP) in a 330 to 230 contest.

The Student Representative Party swept the seven Sophomore seats on the Student Council when their candidates Greg Monk (442), Pam Chandler (413), Bill May (373), Otto Van Duyen (364), Dave Otey (361), Gail Margolin (345) and Andy Shamiyah (327) were elected.

Organized Independent Party candidates Maureen Farley (301) and Herm Pearson (270) lost.

The seven Freshman seats on council were won by five SRP candidates, Diane Perrine (401), Marcia Devlin (393), Judy Gerstle (363), John Theisen (321) and Eli Knull (311), and two OIP representatives, Terry Foulkes (413) and Jim Fuller (311).

SRP candidates Charles Miller (309) and Mary Jean Taylor (302) were defeated.

The three propositions were passed. Proposition A, with 367 affirmative votes and 75 votes opposed, reduced the academic qualifications for the offices of AS President and Vice President, AMS and AWS Presidents, Freshman President, Recording Secretary and Yell Leader.

Proposition B, polling 368 votes "for" and 61 votes "against," makes it impossible for any member of the Associated Students to hold more than one position (appointed or elected) in the student government unless approved by the Student Council.

Proposition C passed with the closest margin, receiving 319 "yes" votes and 105 negative ballots. It gives power to the Student Council to dismiss the AS President by a three-fourths vote of the entire council with the consent of the faculty adviser and the dean of student activities.

Results were tabulated late Friday afternoon by Ayala, Sherm Elworthy, student government adviser, and

Age 21 Means Right To Vote; AS Elections Groom Citizens For National Poll Appearances

DURING college years many fundamental changes occur affecting changes in one's mental outlook, social position, and professional or semiprofessional future. Without a doubt, the most important metamorphosis coincides with the milestone of the collegian's 21st birthday.

There's a mature, almost magical connotation connected with this age. The student is now more than a student. He becomes a citizen in the true sense; he is legally and morally responsible to extend his scope of consciousness and concern from college to community to country.

He is simultaneously granted freedom and entrusted with responsibility—freedom from parental authority but a responsibility to the whole world.

The most immediate and far-reaching power now in his possession in the Right to Vote. Last week students exercised this democratic procedure during the two-day Associated Student elections here, but far too many did not.

Three thousand students holding AS cards were eligible to vote. From this potential electorate, only 646 preserved their voting privilege—a scant 22 per cent. This turnout fell below the average voting totals polled in recent semesters.

Most of the enrollment at the two-year college level falls below the 21-year mark, but if we young Americans have not yet realized the enormity and potency of the voting gift, no flame from the 21st candle on a birthday cake will suddenly light up the intellect to this fact.

There are no valid excuses for AS members who did not vote, and the poorest of these alibis is, "I didn't even know the elections were going on." Assuming that college students have to be alert and informed at least to pass their courses, how could they have been unaware of two weeks of campaigning by student political parties, platforms and pictures posted in a display case in Science Hall, candidates for office handshaking and presenting their point of view, four very obviously located voting machines, banners and posters of both parties in all campus buildings, and The Guardsman Election Edition.

Truthfully, it's beyond us.

The results already in are not earthshaking and have no immediate effect outside the college walls, but in the longer sense, two irrefutable qualities are being built within: future leadership and free elections.

These small scale elections are a proving ground for an informed public for posterity and for the future strength in the practicality of democratic ideals.

The Spectator

(Today's Spectator is by Dave Kleinberg)

ALEXANDER KING, known to many through his frequent appearances on the Jack Paar show, had his second best seller, My First House Be Safe From Tigers, released, in 1960.

His first work, Mine Enemy Grows Older, appeared in 1958, and was barely noticed. In the following months, the former editor and New York artist soared to popularity.

In this short period King has established himself as egotistical, selfish, obnoxious, greedy, uncouth, vulgar, but at the same time brilliant.

His mastery of the English language is phenomenal, and although he has little to say in his works, he says it with interesting appeal and amusement.

In an almost cynical fashion the audacious King leads his readers through his world of adventures, most of which are quite ordinary, but to which his pen gives authenticity.

If you enjoy the man on television and are willing to wade through several slow moving moments, King's books are masterpieces in facetiousness.

His sardonic observations cover a wide variety of subjects and places and include the verbal beatings of the beatniks, advertising executives, Greenwich Village, Hollywood, Madison Avenue and anything else that enters his intentions.

When the representatives of an evangelistic meeting, after resting people to telephone to accept salvation, refused to take King's collected charges, the 60-plus-year-old court jester said, "Cash on the line, that's them. Just like everybody else."

Through four chapters King recalls his many trips to Lexington where he was treated as a drug addict. The characters he meets and the tales that result from these quaint encounters are amazingly hilarious, and at the same time degenerate.

King, after breaking the habit, reveals the stories about his four wives, his encounter with Louis B. Mayer and his North African adventure.

This selection from his critique on television is typical:

"Television, a means of projecting moving images and sounds over large areas, enjoyed a frenzy of popularity, particularly among children, during the Forties and Fifties of the Twentieth century."

"This potential art form perished prematurely in the late Sixties of that same era. Its operational destiny, aesthetic as well as financial, eventually fell under the exclusive aegis of some softheaded businessmen who fancied themselves great creative entrepreneurs."

"The end was inevitable. It languished on in deep doldrums for several decades, until finally even children were completely repelled by its idiotic, repetitious and stupefying monotony. By 1969 only the absolute childish were still sometimes beguiled by it."

King has certainly advanced from the days when he was a messy three-pound baby kept in the family oven (once he almost landed in the garbage pail). He has gathered a wide variety of followers, and is fast becoming a King of Kings.

Windy 'City' Tops SF Hill 29

LOCATED high atop Hill 29, given the designation in 1949 by the then annual dental assisting capping. The candlelight ceremony will begin at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the college theater, Ruth P. Inskip, dental assisting instructor here, said.

Mrs. Inskip will introduce Dr. Jacobson, who has chosen for his topic, Character In The Dental Office. Presentation of the caps to 28 women students will be by Evelyn L. Selsatz, certified dental assistant.

Immediately following the capping ceremony a reception will be held, arranged by the second semester students. Nine big sisters will assist the students receiving caps.

Many women upon leaving the college's dental assisting department have found good outside jobs in the dental field, Mrs. Inskip commented.

THE 1961 television ratings are out and (fanfare) the top-rated production on TV last year was (fanfare) . . . a Burgie commercial.

Our cute Burgie man—who could ever refuse him, as he shyly sharpens a pencil while selling his product? And when the backstage voice asks what in the world he's doing, he proudly displays the pencil and coyly replies, "Making a point."

It seems that the best thing that has hit television since the late-50s show premiering a 1932 goodie has been the cartoon commercial.

Take for instance that little SS man (Social Security), and he doesn't work for the local daily who walks out proudly displaying his multi-trillion dollar computing machines.

Then comes the point of the commercial. A machine breaks down. A cartoon repairman appears on the scene, tinkers with the machine, and wields a cord with no SS number from the machine.

That "a-@#$%&?!" he says. And that adorable embarrassed smile when our little SS man informs him he's on TV.

Thespians Offer Show A Day This Week

Three Highly Rated Plays To Climax Drama Season

By Dave Kleinberg

Three highly rated plays, The Farce Of The Worthy Master Pierre, Swan Song and The Man Who Married A Dumb Wife, will make their appearance in the college theater starting today and ending Friday, according to Michael Griffin, drama director.

Today's presentation, one in a series of plays that have drawn capacity crowds thus far this semester, will be Moritz Jagendorf's The Farce Of The Worthy Master Pierre.

The Farce Of The Worthy Master Pierre tells the story of a lawyer and his adventures with a draper. Randy Jones plays Patelin, Imogene Walker portrays his wife and Nick Bonaker depicts the draper. The curtain goes up at 1:15 p.m. and admission is free for all students. The play is expected to last about 50 minutes.

Thursday the drama department will give Anton Chekhov's Swan Song, the story of a senile actor, over the hill and friendless. John Bayliss plays the lead role as Svetlovod. The play will last approximately 20 minutes, starting at 1:15 p.m.

Friday the drama department will give The Man Who Married A Dumb Wife, a French two-act comedy which could easily have been written by Moliere, one of the greatest comedy writers who ever lived.

It is based on a play by Boccaccio, of Decamerone fame. Jones again takes the lead, this time as Adam Fumme, who is both lawyer and husband to his dumb wife, played by Arpy Boshassian. Bob Drewes has the role of the judge.

The department will switch to night life this Friday with its production of Anatole France's The Man Who Married A Dumb Wife, a French two-act comedy which could easily have been written by Moliere, one of the greatest comedy writers who ever lived.

It is based on a play by Boccaccio, of Decamerone fame. Jones again takes the lead, this time as Adam Fumme, who is both lawyer and husband to his dumb wife, played by Arpy Boshassian. Bob Drewes has the role of the judge.

The play revolves around the fact that the dumb wife, although beautiful, is unable to talk. The husband has a surgeon perform an operation to change this, and then finds himself unhappy to find she, like many women today, talks too much.

Rather than go insane, and since the doctor claims he is unable to change her vocal cords again, the husband has an operation on his ears and goes deaf. The ending is both surprising and humorous.

The presentation begins at 8:15 p.m. and is expected to end about 10 p.m. The play was written for the Society of Rabelaisian Studies, and the original production was by Granville Barker. It was designed by Robert Edmund Jones as a comedy of manners.

The drama department started out the semester with presentations on alternate days, but this week they went straight through with a different performance each day.

In the drama department's production of Pullman Car Hiawatha, 1000 were turned away, and in the second showing those turned away numbered 500. The popularity of the programs continues with The Apple of Bellie, which played to standing-room-only.

As a result of extended rehearsal over the Christmas break, Griffin feels that the acting for the college-sponsored plays will be at its peak.

US Information Service Plans World Show For Prize Posters

New honors are in store for art students here and in the other Western colleges entering the annual Collegiate Advertising Art contest, sponsored by the Zellerbach Paper Company and the Advertising Association of the West.

Deadline for entrants is March 31, 1962. Ken Morgan, assistant advertising manager of the Zellerbach Paper Company, released the information that the United States Information Service has taken a definite interest in the contest and has plans for sponsoring a traveling exhibit of the winning posters throughout the world.

The U.S.I.S. has offices in the major communist countries in various parts of the world which contain pamphlets, pictures and other material depicting life in the United States. It will be in these offices that the winning posters of the fifth annual contest may be hung for exhibition.

The contest theme for this year, Break The Language Barrier, deals with depicting freedom and democracy through the universal language of art.

Choosing a theme with civic or community interest that will offer a challenge to the student artist has been one of the aims of the contest, Morgan revealed. In the past the winners have dealt with such issues as getting out the vote and racial prejudice.

The winning poster in the Get Out The Vote contest was made into one of the large Foster and Kleiser billboard signs and posted throughout California two years ago during election year.

Morgan mentioned that the winning posters are used to the best possible advantage of the artist. Such possibilities include use of the winning posters on calendars, in pamphlets or with displays sometimes held in the lobby of the Crown Zellerbach building.

Students here will compete with art students from San Jose State College, College of San Mateo and the San Francisco Art Institute.

The winners will then compete with other winners from 10 other districts that include 13 Western states and four Canadian provinces.

In addition to the public honor bestowed upon the winner, there will be a total of $2250 prize money awarded.—By M.H.

New Vacation Schedule Ends Yearly Plague

By Dick Dragovan

SURVEYING the City College population shortly after its return to classes from the Christmas vacation one could only surmise that the majority of the students and of the faculty were suffering from hyperholidayitis.

The symptoms of this highly seasonal disorder are generally most evident in the eyes which often appear as delicate etchings in red. The eyes, however, are almost always partially shielded by low sagging eyelids. The cause of this plague, naturally, is too much holiday activity.

There have never been, apparently, any scientific advances made (or if so they weren't published) which would prevent this affliction from making its yearly appearances.

And this in spite of the fact that the solution is painfully obvious. The answer: Eliminate Holidays!

Before anyone gets upset this must be clarified. Days off we would still have; only the names would be changed to protect the participants.

The reasoning is simple. When people realize that there is an occasion for a celebration they celebrate.

All manner of plans are made for visiting friends and relatives, decorating the house and yard, going shopping and other assorted, equally fatiguing activities.

Without the holidays there would be no obvious schedule to pursue during the two-week layoff, and the population could waste its time in a more effortless manner.

This plan, however, does not have the appeal, no matter how many refinements may be made, to gain much popular support.

There is an alternative, for better or for worse. In the days just prior to the birth of the United States, holidays were set by the religious calendar or the president. The alternate plan would turn this power back to the president of the college.

Thus, he might find it appropriate to eliminate Labor Day just before final exams. Or, depending on his mood, he might substitute Halloween on that date, to throw a few scares into the struggling scholars.

Thanksgiving would naturally follow the exams, or New Year's Day could be celebrated at that time by those students who found it necessary to make resolutions.

Not only would these holidays have more meaning to the celebrants but students would have twice as many each year.

And they would undoubtedly work harder toward their own personal Independence Day.

Molino Photos On Display

Selected Work Of Honor Graduate Posted In Cloud Hall Gallery

Photography department officials are honoring a distinguished City College graduate by displaying his outstanding photography work.

The photographs, by Kenneth Molino, will be on display starting today in the Cloud Hall gallery, according to Charles Lamp, photography instructor here.

Molino was graduated in June, 1953, with highest honors. His major at the college was photographic journalism, and he was a Chief Photographer and Assistant Managing Editor of The Guardsman, respectively.

At commencement exercise he was one of the three student speakers. The versatile Molino, before opening his own studio, worked for The San Rafael Independent-Journal and became its chief photographer.

When he was graduated from here he was the Scholastic Cup winner with a 2.97 grade-point average. He was also president of Alpha Gamma Sigma, statewide scholastic honor society.

During his four semesters here he did public relations and photography work for the psychology program, Know Yourself Better, which KPXX television for 15 weeks. Henry Left, television and radio broadcasting instructur, was the producer of the program. Molino was graduated from St. Peter High School in 1943, and immediately enlisted in the navy for four years. In 1951 he enrolled at the college for the two-year semiprofessional photography course.

Recently Molino has his own studio in San Rafael. Some 30 to 40 photographs will be exhibited in the Cloud Hall gallery. The pictures will be on display for two to three weeks, and many of the photos are in color.

Weekend Home Games Open Big 8 Hoop Season

RAMBLINGS

By Ivan Tomas

THOUGH the consensus points toward a battle between defending champion Oakland and talent-laden San Mateo for the Big Eight crown, Sid Phelan's Rams should be right in the thick of the race throughout the year.

True, the home quintet was able to win but the four of nine exhibition outings prior to last weekend's Modesto tournament, and has been unable to generate a consistent offense or strong individual scoring punch.

However, it should be taken into consideration that four of the losses were to university front outfits which opened their season considerably earlier than the Rams. More important, the Red and White have more than held their own against other two-year colleges.

San Jose and Long Beach always produce highly rated cage clubs yet the Rams were able to squeeze by both these colleges while also edging Chaffee. Only fast-breaking Fullerton, in this class, handed the Rams a loss and that was a narrow 46-45 decision.

This speaks favorably of the team and a cautious Coach Phelan reveals that, "We may be green and inexperienced but the talent is there and we could have a very good year. In fact, in some ways we're coming along better than last season at this time."

The mentor admits to having trouble putting together a definite starting five, partly because the players are so matched in talent and partly because of injuries and conflicting work schedules.

Phelan is high on agile 6-7 center Elton McGriff and feels, "He's learning new moves all the time and should become a top star." The Ram pilot also singles out 6-3 forward Brad Duggan, "He didn't play much last year and we always knew he could shoot, but his rebounding has been a pleasant surprise."

Both these men will be hard-pressed for starting berths and the keen competition and hustle that the team shows can be nothing but a boon to the club.

Scheduling could also prove an aid to Phelan's charges in that they don't meet Oakland and San Mateo until the final games of each half of the double round-robin. By then they may have "jelled" and be able to upset the probable frontrunners.

RA Schedules 9 Events For Spring Sports Days

Plans for next semester's Recreation Association exchange sports days were announced this week by Francis Calloway of the women's physical education department.

The events will be held at San Jose and Oakland City Colleges, Santa Rosa, Napa, Foothill, Contra Costa and Monterey Colleges.

Sports competition will be offered in badminton, archery, swimming, diving, tennis, bowling, volleyball, co-educational football and women's basketball.

Eisan Puts Hopes On Friday Signups To Boost Depleted Baseball Squad

Hampered by the loss of two-thirds of last year's starting team and the complete loss of all reserve players, baseball Coach Lee Eisan is hopefully looking forward to Friday's signups to fill out his depleted roster.

Eisan strongly stated that all players interested in making the varsity squad should come to the signups during College Hour Friday in C-260.

The only returning first-stringers who might return to this year's squad are Jim Carroll, Don Meroff and Dennis Russell.

Carroll provided all of the backstop work for the diamond during the practice season and during two-thirds of the Big Eight league. Experiencing an unexplained batting slump last season, Carroll made up for it with his fine defensive work and his handling of pitchers.

Meroff was used as a utility infielder and his work both at the plate and in the field proved a definite

Inconsistent Rams Upended Twice At Modesto Tourney

Though lacking a consistent scoring punch, Sid Phelan's cagers put together two good halves at the 24th annual Modesto tournament last weekend. Unfortunately, they were in different contests and the disappointing result was an early trip home for the Rams, who bowed to Cerritos and San Jose by respective scores of 52-34 and 53-50.

Poised and showing some strong early season form, San Mateo defeated Fresno 62-48 to finish atop the field of 16 entries, while American River edged Cerritos for third place and San Jose took the consolation title.

Sophomore center Howard Sundberg of the Bulldogs was adjudged the tourney's outstanding player. A fantastic and unexpected turn of events cost the Rams a victory in their Thursday opener against the Falcons of Cerritos. Neither quintet could take advantage of the other's "coldness" from the field, and after 10 minutes of action the score was

Lack Of Experience Plagues Cagers' 1962 Title Hope

By Jerry Littrell

Working with one of the greenest teams ever to play here, Coach Sid Phelan is looking forward hopefully to this Friday and Saturday as his cagers face Sacramento and Contra Costa, respectively, in two 9 p.m. home games for the opening of the 1962 Big Eight basketball competition.

Inexperience seems to be the hindering factor in the hoopers' horoscope for the coming season.

A list of the names of the participating students and their assigned positions or departments is as follows: Emmerson Lindemeyer, managing director; Ulysses Grant, assistant general manager; James Tevlin, assistant manager; William Stephenson, assistant manager; Ronald Matthews, assistant manager; Edwin Rosenberg, business development; Roger Hagemann, personnel manager.

Dennis Gomes, food and beverage manager; Thomas Muneno, executive chef; William Gullikson, sous-chef; Jonnie Irons, pastry chef; Sophrona Burnell, auditor; David Adkins, credit manager; Clifford Charlson, head cashier; Beatrice Keller, housekeeper.

H&R Students Help Operate St. Francis Tomorrow

San Francisco's famous St. Francis Hotel will be open tomorrow as usual, but its operation will be assisted by students of the hotel and restaurant department of the college.

Under the title "Operation St. Francis," an annual one-day affair in its 11th consecutive year, a group of 27 third and fourth semester H&R students will take over the hotel's various departmental positions as assigned by Dan E. London, general manager of the St. Francis, who originated this event.

Mullany, who joined the faculty in 1945, thanked council for the award and stated that of all the awards he has received since coming to the college this was one of the finest, if not the finest.

Both Louis G. Conlan, president of the college, and Ralph G. Hillsman, dean of men, thanked and praised Mullany for the outstanding work he has done and for his contribution to the college.

Recipients of this semester's service awards, which are presented to the instructor and student chosen by council as contributing the most to the college, while receiving the least recognition, were Irene Mensing, reference librarian, and Robert Hucker, an editorial assistant on The Guardsman staff.

In the first council meeting following the installation of Dan Collins as AS President, Publicity Committee Vice President, Collins announced the appointment of four of his cabinet members for next semester.

Appointive positions yet to be filled are those of Election Commissioner, Campus Affairs Co-ordinator, Parliamentarian, Recording Secretary, Corresponding Secretary, Men's Athletic Commissioner and Alumni Liaison Officer.

Outgoing Associated Student President Gary Wilkening had dropped the Alumni Officer from his cabinet, however, when at eight minutes after 1 p.m. most of the council members had to attend their next scheduled classes.

He then threatened to keep council in session until the gavel was returned. He relinquished his stum, however, when at eight minutes after 1 p.m. most of the council members had to attend their next scheduled classes.

The main discussion during the meeting was over the constitution of the Council of Organizations.

Arguments erupted as amendments to the COO constitution were moved and passed. Problems arose when it was proposed that the council was not acquainted with the workings of COO.

A note of humor was injected into the meeting when Collins couldn't find his gavel. Someone had "borrowed" his new gavel as a joke.

He then threatened to keep council in session until the gavel was returned. He relinquished his stum, however, when at eight minutes after 1 p.m. most of the council members had to attend their next scheduled classes.

The car parade, beauty contest, rally and publicity were under the supervision of COO.

The general consensus was that the move was for the betterment of the college's activity program. Chemists, greatly elated by the change, said, "We'll definitely have more co-ordination within the organizations."

COO is planning to hold its first problems convention off campus sometime after the new semester begins.

Other offshooters in COO are Vice President, Don Distcherdt, Gamma Phi Ypsilon; Secretary Maureen Farley; Bill Beta Itho, and Treasurer Art Senerson, president of the Chess Club.

AS Honors George Mullany; Collins Names Doudiet Finance Chairman

For his overall service to the college and the Associated Students, George G. Mullany, journalism and graphic arts instructor and advisor to the Publicity Committee, was presented with a silver platter by the members of Student Council during last week's council dinner.

Mullany, who joined the faculty in 1945, thanked council for the award and stated that of all the awards he

AWS Sponsors Big-Little Sister Coketail Social February 5

A Big-Little Sister affair, called the Coketail Party, will be held on Sunday, February 4, newly elected Associated Women Student President Jackie Rommel announced last week.

Purpose of this event is to give incoming women freshman students a chance to become better acquainted with their Big Sisters, and to become orientated briefly with the college campus. The party will be held in Smith Hall, and it will last from 2 to 4 p.m.

Present plans provide that at 2 p.m. refreshments, coke and cookies, will be served in the larger room of Smith Hall, after which the program will begin. The Inter-Sorority Council will provide the entertainment.

A campus tour will follow. Jan Doudiet is in charge of the tour, and the future coeds will be taken through the campus and shown directions for registration. Each Big Sister will escort a small group about the campus.

Dress will be campus and casual clothes for the new students, and currently enrolled students are expected to wear dresses and heels.

Committee officials include Barbara Sperring, entertainment; Rosalie Weiner and Maureen Farley, decorations, and Jerilyn Scuitto, refreshments.

In other developments, Dean Mary Golding reported that 125 women students will be needed to assist the Big Sisters with registration.

The 125 will join the staff of 75 women to provide a total of 200 Big Sisters to assist incoming freshmen in the registration procedure.

Colors Pose Possible Problem

If what the psychologists say about the influence of color on the psyche is true, the drama department is in for a surprise.

A backstage lobby has been provided for actors to study their lines while awaiting performance cues. But concentration will be a hard thing to come by in this room since the paint job was done in wild pink, blaring green and patent leather black.

Unification Of Campus Groups Aim Of COO As CAB Title Ends

Club Activities Board, one of the campus' leading organizations for the last 14 years, will fold at the end of the semester to be replaced by the Council of Organizations.

COO, now in its first semester here, will take over all the functions formerly performed by the CAB, and will become the second most powerful campus organization.

The demise of CAB, a long-anticipated move provided for by the constitutional amendment passed by the Associated Students last June, was announced after a meeting among Fred Cherniss, COO president; Gary Wilkening, AS president; George Woo, CAB president; Sherman Elworthy, constant of these activities groups; and Dean Ralph Hillsman.

All of the campus organizations will be required to send a representative to each of COO's twice-weekly meetings. Plans are to couple the two meetings as a quinquennial course.

Failure to attend the meetings will jeopardize both the grade of the representative and the on-campus status of the club.

Newly acquired duties of COO will include the handling of the Christmas Drive, the Mixer and other major functions. CAB Day will now be known as COO Day.

The move was made to unite all campus organizations. The Inter-Fraternity Council and the Inter-Sorority Council will remain intact to handle fraternal matters within the organizations.

COO's other powers include the authority to settle disputes among organizations and the right to take on major college projects. COO first formed itself by handling the 1961 Homecoming.

The car parade, beauty contest, rally and publicity were under the supervision of COO.

The general consensus was that the move was for the betterment of the college's activity program. Chemists, greatly elated by the change, said, "We'll definitely have more co-ordination within the organizations."

Honor Students To Receive Lower Auto Insurance Rates

Good news for good students came in the form of a recent press release announcing automobile insurance reductions by State Farm Mutual.

State Farm Mutual, the country's largest automobile insurer, stated that a discount of 20 per cent will be offered to honor students in California.

The new discount will go into effect on January 15, and the cut rates will be given to male high school and college drivers of single status with high academic standing, according to State Farm Regional Vice-President Charles Q. Cox. Actual cash savings on the program can be as much as $100 annually for those qualifying.

The company feels that the student who spends more time on studies is spending less time on the highways and consequently decreasing the danger of traffic accidents.

Those qualifying will be full-time students of accredited high schools, colleges and universities meeting any of the following provisions:

1) Rank in the 20th percentile of their class.

2) Have a scholastic average of 3.0 or higher.

3) Be a member of the school honor roll, which is Alpha Gamma Sigma here.

Eisen will sorely miss the batting power of all-league third baseman Frank Gable and all-league right fielder Ed Preston.

Gable batted at .200, 444 pace to lead the team while Preston, although lacking speed on the bases, came through with a final .277 average.

Team captain Rich Medaglia, .333 batting shortstop, and center fielder Eric Lyons, who hit .250, are also among the players who will be absent from this year's roster.

Medaglia was used as a utility infielder and his work both at the plate and in the field proved a definite surprise. While both in and out of the lineup Meroff, who hits harder than his size would seem to allow, batted .355. If needed, he could also fill in at the catcher's spot.

Outfielder Russell also had a batting slump last season, but proved to be both valuable and versatile when he took over the catching chores from Carroll toward the end of the season although virtually inexperienced at that position.

With Guardsman Flashback Semester Passes In Review

CITY COLLEGE'S Fall semester of 1961 is almost history with the exception of final examinations. After the usual last-minute "cracking" of texts and the arduous task of recovering from "blue-book blues," many a student will look back and remark, "Boy, what a short semester that was!"

But what actually did happen while each collegian was accumulating another 10 to 16 units of college credit?

Headlines from the 13 issues of The Guardsman this semester tell it something like this:

Classes Jammed As Enrollment Hits Record 8285/... Africa Wipe Visitors Here Stunned By Loss Of UN's Hammarskjöld/... Rams Shut Out Los Angeles In Season Opener/... Congestion Eases; Automats Keep Place In Basement/... Actor Rod Steiger Set To Appear At College Friday.

Once the semester got rolling, student activities got into full swing:

Delayed Opening Of Student Union 'Successful'; Expansion Depends On Student Backing/... Radio Broadcast To Lounge Foreseen/... Council Sets Up Cohortship To Run Union/... Newly Formed COO Handles Homecoming Day/... Ram Eleven Rolls Past Los Angeles City, 20-6.

Culturally speaking, College Hour programs here reached new standards of both quality and quantity:

New Concert Series Starts With Ishvani/... Peace Corps' West Coast Representative Grothe Due Here For Speech Friday/... Educator, Heroine In Blitz, Speaks Here During C-Hour/... James Schwabacher To Give Theater Recital During C-Hour/... Blind Teacher Exemplifies... Blind On The Job—Friday/... Pianist Jones To Appear In Recital Here Tomorrow.

As far as the college as a whole was concerned, the "Big Stories" in Fall '61 were accented with dollars and cents:

Statler Foundation Grants $100,000 For Enlargement Of Hotel, Restaurant Division Here/... Building Fund, $30,000 Scholarship Up Prestige/... Stock Donation, Grant Aid Benefit Two Departments.

Other stories contained smaller sums, but still were significant in their own right:

Art Contest Prizes Gross $2250/... CAB Christmas Drive Nets $250, Aids 10 Families/... New Theater Costs Create Problem.

Innovations and additions to City College during Fall '61 were numerous and far-reaching:

Closed Circuit TV Aids Educational Methods/... New Ram Band To Play At Friday's Game/... 12 Instructors Join College Staff/... Young Republicans Organize Unit Here/... Deserette Joins List Of Campus Groups/... Wilkening Optimistic, Pleased At First AS Press Conference.

AS election headlines read like this, the coverage before and the results after:

Voters Rush Polls/... Dan Collins, Sue Murphy Unopposed For Top Offices/... Cherniss Elected AS SRP Takes Majority.

This column has done enough editorial interpreting this semester; let's leave the total summation and resultant effects of these headlines up to the readers. If college has taught them nothing else this or any other semester, it should have taught them to THINK!

Have a relaxing semester break... and then brace yourself for Spring 1962.

A FILM of highest quality is now offered for those who are discriminating enough to recognize a masterpiece. The motion picture is playing at the Metro theater, which has been presenting art films since the San Francisco Film Festival made its home there.

American audiences, nurtured on melodramas and Vincent Price horror movies, may find the film too much to take. The name: Two Women, and no superlative ever awarded to it will be enough to describe it.

Sophia Loren Scores In Italian Film

The producer, Vittorio de Sica, who has given us many excellent films, controls the constant interplay of realism and idealism in this latest work. In the first scene, the audience is plunged into poverty and impending devastation as bombs scream in war-ravaged Italy.

Sophia Loren, in a master work of sensitivity, is presented in this atmosphere as a spirited peasant widow. All the love that she is capable of giving is centered upon her 12-year-old daughter. The mother's only concern is protection for the girl.

Portraying the child with a flawlessly gentle, luminous quality is Eleanor Brown. She is the perfect supplement to Miss Loren's role.

These, then, are the two women. When the days are filled with bombs lunging to the earth beneath, when food is growing ever scarcer, and when former homes of neighbors are standing in piles of rubble, the widow makes a decision.

In the insane world of war, the two women endure the height of emotion and physical pain in their flight. Yet de Sica is able to bring beauty into this scene of inhuman brutality.

He makes a strong point of his faith in the common man.

Are They Red (Hot) Heads? Carrot-Top Temperament Not Always Up In Flame

Lucille Ball, Red Skelton, Susan Hayward, Van Johnson and Red Buttons of Hollywood, and Bruce Firstman, anatomy instructor here, have something in common—each sports a crop of red hair.

According to an old wives' tale, everyone knows that redheads have fiery tempers. The question is, does the color of their hair have any relation to their temperament?

"Generally speaking, there is no relation," Firstman explains. "Hair color is determined by genes in the parents and is a physical phenomenon. Temper is purely emotional, and one does not determine the other."

Firstman, who appears mild-mannered, stated that although redheaded he is not hot-tempered. He proposed that the origin of the myth might have been when a redheaded person or even a whole family, all with red hair, had bad tempers, and a false conclusion was drawn.

Another scientific opinion was given by chemistry instructor Roberta Lumb, who explained, "Generally speaking, brown eyes dominate blue and dark dominates light in hair and skin color. Red hair is a double recessive. That is, the child with red hair has a set of double recessive genes from both parents who each have single recessive genes. In other words, the child is the result of hidden genes carried by the parents."

She also added that anger and hair color are unrelated.

Students here on the whole agree with the scientists although their reasons are less clinical.

For instance, brunette Sophomore Council member Gail Margolin doesn't believe that redheads are more hot-tempered and said that it depends upon the disposition of the person.

Freshman Lillian Scully agreed because "I'm a brunette, and I've got a bad temper."

"I'm easily pleased, and I'm not angered easily," Wendy Grouer, a plaid redhead, stated.

Sophomore George Woo opined, "The only speculation I can give you as being Irish and the Irish are thought of as being hot-tempered, and therefore redheads could be hot-tempered."

"I've never taken a redhead out," blond Sophomore Bob Ross mused, "so I couldn't tell you. I know a lot of brunettes who are hot-tempered. In fact, I think all women are hot-tempered," he concluded as he walked out the door.

Kathy Henderson, a quiet little brunette, submitted, "I once knew this girl and we both liked the same boy. She was a redhead, and she was really hot-tempered." (Miss Henderson did not speculate on whether the girl was hot-tempered because she had red hair or because they both liked the same boy.)

"I can give you an explanation as to how the myth started, Freshman Joe Derby replied, "No, I can't give you an explanation. I think that brunettes are the wildest of the three." Then with a final gesture of frustration he finished, "Oh, how can you explain women?"—By S.S.

Foresight

(Today's Foresight is by Anna Papagni)

ALTHOUGH the public has been exposed to versions of the Romeo-Juliet theme on their television sets for many years, it would be well worth their while to leave the fireside for the enthralling screen treatment of the Broadway musical, West Side Story, which gives a new slant to an old story.

The pair is not from the teeming houses of Montagu and Capulet this time, but rather from two opposing ethnic gangs that vent their youthful energies by fighting each other in the streets of New York's slum area.

When feeling begins to overflow, three young lives are lost in a gang fight before anyone sees the fullness of hate, Shakespeare said it before, West Side Story says it now, and others will repeat for the future.

Yet, strangely enough, one comes away from the theater remembering the brilliantly funny, happy scenes rather than the dramatically tragic events.

For instance, the Puerto Rican group sings and dances through a remarkable number where they are spoofing their sociological problem of being accepted. "Everything's bright if you're white in America."

Likewise, the opposing gang of second-generation Americans have fun with their delinquency status. "I'm depraved on account of I'm deprived."

And, of course, there is the wonderful "balcony scene" between Tony and Maria which takes place on the fire escape of a tenement building. It is here that the beautiful song, Tonight, is introduced.

Natalie Wood as Maria gives the best performance of her somewhat overrated career. She is delightful as a lovely young Puerto Rican girl in the midst of first love but not yet acquainted with the prejudices surrounding her.

Her partner, Richard Dreyfuss who plays Tony, might have added more depth to his characterization. He overplayed the dreamy-youth-in-love.

George Chakiris as the Puerto Rican leader and Rita Moreno, who portrayed his fiery but gentle girl friend, turned in the best performance in the cast, especially Chakiris, a marvelous combination of assurance and sensitivity.

Russ Tamblyn was amusingly successful as head of the second delinquent band, combining defensiveness and energy glossed over with humor.

The direction of Robert Wise and Jerome Robbins was fine on the whole but was too contrived in spots, such as the boy meets girl scene.

This is definitely a movie not to be missed. Not only is the story line meaningful but the Leonard Bernstein-Stephen Sondheim musical score is going to be heard for a long time to come.

MEN, prepare yourselves for a battle!

It is not altogether certain with whom the battle will be, but it will not be with any left-wing radicals or with right-wing radicals.

The issues were born in the studio of men's fashion designers. For years these creators have merely played with the number of buttons on the suitcoat or whether men's shirts should have a button on the back or a buckle or possibly a button-down-buckle.

At least it appeared that they were content with just these frivolities. But something much more subtle was happening!

Trousers lost their cuffs and perhaps an inch or two to boot. In fact, almost to boot too!

This was called conservatism or sometimes ultraconservatism, names which at first glance seem rather inappropriate.

The ones who were conserving, however, were the manufacturers who saved probably as much as one-third to one-half of a yard of material per suit.

Now, according to an article in one of the daily newspapers, the garment planners are starting to work on the waist. (Not the waste, there is not much left after all that conservatism.)

Trousers will come with a built-in, four-inch wide elastic girdle which will adjust one's spare tire either up or down "as the wearer wishes," quotes the designer.

No mention was made as to what this contrivance would do to the lean pioneer types (there must still be some around, somewhere) should they purchase a 62 model suit.

Since it seemed that men's fashions were beginning to compete with women's in the hemline and waist department, it was heartening to read that all padding was out of the shoulders and "from the front."

The last part of that statement is what causes the doubt as to who the men are to battle.

What was that padding in front which they removed? Was it really there or are the schemers merely saying that it was so that they will have an excuse to "put it back again" later?

The battle will be either against the designers for less dainty apparel or the women at the unmentionable bargain counter.

Dicker attends college here every fall semester ending in February. He then goes into training for two months before traveling to the Yankee farm training ground at Richmond. From there, ball players are farmed to different ball clubs according to their ability.

Would Dicker consider quitting baseball "if I have a good year, of course, I'll keep at it. If I have a mediocre year, I will probably continue. If I have a bad year, I will give it up."

"That's why I'm in college. I know I can't play baseball all of my life. My parents have encouraged me in both baseball and studies."

Dicker reports to Augusta, Georgia, to play in the South Atlantic Class A league—three steps from the big time.

Ramporium Sells Sweat Shirts, Buys Back Books

Colored sweatshirts are the newest additions of clothing available to students in the Ramporium.

The Ramporium staff also advised all students to sell their used books to the bookstore during finals week beginning Friday, January 19, and continuing through next week.

Used books should be sold immediately after students have finished all class conferences and examinations in their courses, Ramporium Manager Dick Main said. In this way students will receive quicker and more convenient service.

Early return of used books will help students to avoid the confusion and rush that occurs each semester at registration time, Main added.

Shirts now come in three colors: red, white and powder blue, at a cost of $2.95. This trio of wearing apparel bears a block letter of the college and the college's name or initial letters.

The red shirts have a white block and white letters underneath while coloring of the white shirts is reversed. Those in powder blue have the initial letters in white with a white block. Twelve were sold the first day they were on the shelves.

During registration next month the Ramporium will be open to students from 7:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. The regular hours are from 7:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily.

Main urged students to purchase spring semester books during registration only after they are sure of their programs and classes.

Bookstore aides will wear identifying red shirts for students who need help in purchasing their books and supplies.

Overcoming An Injury

'Nooch' Returns, Earns Top Berth On Cage Squad

It's tough to play basketball if you can't walk. Certainly no one knows this better than starting guard Sophomore Bill Nocetti, one of the Rams' early season stars, because only a year ago he couldn't even lift his left foot.

However, the courage and determination of the 5-11, 168-pounder have earned him a starting berth and prompted a happy Coach Sid Phelan to declare, "He's been giving us the outside shooting we sorely need."

"Nooch," as he is known to his friends, played at and was graduated from Sacred Heart High School in 1968, and attended St. Bonaventure in New York the following year.

Still taking therapy and wearing a special knee guard, Nocetti vividly recalls the freakish mishap which befell him in August, 1969, on the cement court of a San Francisco playground.

"I fell but didn't land correctly and tore the muscles and ligaments on the outside of my knee."

However, the hard landing had also severed Nocetti's common peroneal nerve. The muscles and ligaments eventually healed but the unusual nerve separation caused considerable problems. The present Ram standout had suffered what is known as a "drop foot."

It was impossible even to lift his foot, leaving considerable doubt as to any future athletic career, and two lengthy operations on the knee and foot, one in August and the other in November, were necessitated.

Moving about only with the aid of cast and crutches until March, 1969, Nocetti required a great deal of therapy to help his foot function properly, while the nerve began growing back together. Even today this growth continues.

Despite his disability Nocetti attended here in Spring, 1961, and eventually began working toward regaining his athletic stature.

BILL NOCETTI

This determination has paid off for the Ram guard, who carries a full load of studies, now can and does play with the aid of a special knee brace.

Is there any possibility of a recurring injury? Nocetti reveals, "Unless I should fall hard on almost the exact spot there is no real danger anymore."

The Ram cages are looking for a possible Big Eight title this year, and if they can show the fight that "Nooch" has they are certain to be in the running all the way.

RAMBLINGS

By Ivan Temes

UNLESS some money-hungry promoter dreams up a Cherry Bowl game to play on Washington's Birthday next month, football season is finally over and it's about time.

With most college eleven concluding their campaign in November, there is no sense in having Bowl games played after the New Year's traditions.

Believe it or not, basketball season has already passed the half-way point but who would know it when the ease sport is sandwiched between the numerous east-west gridiron battles and the furor over Roger Maris' salary.

Many college coaches are finally speaking out against the exploitation of their athletes in such contests as the Senior and United States Bowls. Are patriotic sportsmen supposed to watch the latter because of its name when its sole purpose is to make money for the directors?

There's nothing wrong with the charity tiffs such as the East-West and North-South encounters but the other games are becoming too numerous and spoiling the true significance of an all-star game.

It's up to the NCAA to formulate a policy that will control the number of post-season battles. If it doesn't take some action the games will come meaningless and die at the gate.

The pros are no better. It's all right to have an all-star game but why should there be a Playoff Bowl for third place in the National League after the title is already decided. The championship should be the climax to close the season on.

At least, all the post-season contests provide one thing which is heartening. The West had it and the East didn't. Except for a loss in the American League all-star tilt and a tie in the Hula Bowl, the West took everything else.

Included are the East-West, United States, the Pro Bowls in addition to

Too Much Football, But It Finally Ends

The NFL games which were won convincingly by Green Bay and Detroit.

ANOTHER TRIUMPH, of sorts, for the West directly concerns City College. The National Junior College Soccer Coaches Association released its All-American eleven last week and the incredible Ram booters placed a total of four men on the first team.

Playing against only four-year colleges, the Rams went unbeaten last season and received due recognition as goalie Gary DeLong, center-forward Al Korbus who scored 22 goals in seven games, Dave Fromer and Cesar Pina wound up on the all-star aggregation.

When one considers that it's an achievement for a team to place even one man on a squad of this type and that most of the voting was done in different parts of the country, the feat is even more amazing.

Batsmen Slate 15 Pre-Loop Games For March; Eisan Hopeful

Signups for the varsity baseball squad are still being accepted, and any person interested in playing should apply to Coach Lee Eisan before the end of next week.

With only three returning veterans and a light crop of rookies so far, Eisan stated that there are "spots open in every position to any qualified player."

Practice will start around February 1, and the pre-season games should start toward the end of February or the beginning of March.

This season's schedule will include approximately 15 practice encounters and a double round-robin of the Big Eight Conference.

Rams Surprise With Twin Wins To Open Big 8 Season

Diles, Comisky Lead JV Cagers To 7-4 Seasonal Mark

Somewhat similar to the University of San Francisco's football-for-fun team, the Alex Schwarz-coached City College junior varsity basketball team will play 25 exhibition games against various high schools, service teams and JV teams of other colleges and universities.

Boasting a 7-4 won-lost record thus far, the squad possesses outstanding players in center Elton Diles, forwards Dick Wehrmeister, Marty McGuinn, Tom Rice and Bob Soper, and guards John Jackson, Bill Denniston, Pat Cooney and John Comisky.

Since Stockton and Sacramento City Colleges are the only other two members in the Big Eight Conference that have JV teams, there is no league available for City College JV cagers.

Schwarz said lack of coaches is the reason for the other member colleges' inability to gather a JV squad. However, he felt that there is a reasonably good chance in the near future for a league to form.

Spring Sports Roundup

Local Track Team Strongest In Discus Throwing, Distance Runs

Coach Lou Vasquez, after going undefeated in Big Eight Conference play and winning the conference track meet last year, said, "This is the best team I have ever coached." This year he claims his team could be just as good.

Despite heavy losses in the high jump and the sprints, Vasquez appears to have basis for his statement. He definitely will be strong in the discus and distance runs.

Alex Darnes, possibly the best discus thrower in the state, threw 167 feet in the West Coast Relays, and returns to aim for the 173-foot national record.

An All-Conference football player, Darnes, whose first love has always been track, can throw the shot-put nearly 50 feet, and can be counted on to run the sprints in a emergency.

Muscular Bill Holman, who fills his 5-9 frame with 225 pounds, has thrown the shot-put 47-1 and the discus 135 feet. New men who could help are Pete Downing (St. Ignace), and Cal Rothman (Lincoln), two football players, and Elbert Robinson from Washington.

The Rams should be strongest in the one and two-mile events. John Weldinger (Babcock), Tony Ferrigno (St. Ignace), Richard Byers (Lincoln), Andrew Looney (Polytechnic), George Varmuza (Washington), Jose Valle (Lincoln), John Arberry (Polytechnic) and Steve Jackson should score heavily in the distance runs.

T-Birds May Stymie Netters' High Hopes

Despite the fact that the Rams have Bob Siska, one of the top ranking tennis players in Northern California, Oakland City College seems to have the best squad to appear in the league during the last five or six years.

Tom Edelson, who has defeated Siska quite easily in the past, is a potential Davis Cup player and easily the number one man on the Oakland squad.

The Rams, who hope to improve on last year's deadlocking second-place finish, are backed by Rich Murray, a former Lincoln High School graduate and last year's number three man. This year's number three man, according to Coach Roy Diederichsen, will probably be John Kearns, number one man at Washington High last semester.

The Rams open their exhibition season against Monterey.

The first annual alumni-student tennis tournament will be played at 11 a.m. on Saturday, February 24.

Duggan, McGriff Stand Out As Sacto, Contra Costa Fall

By Jerry Littrell

Rated at the beginning of the season as only a dark horse for first place, Coach Sid Phelan's cagers last weekend surprisingly proved that they have everything needed for a possible title when they defeated Sacramento 61-48 and overpowered Contra Costa 71-50 in their opening Big Eight Conference games.

Combining a flashy offense with a steady defense and adding superior rebounding with exceptional floorshooting, the Rams relentlessly overran their opposition in these two spirited battles.

Brad Duggan and Elton McGriff unquestionably earned game honors with their two excellent performances.

Hitting for a combined total of 39 points Duggan, preseason team leader in points, notched 21 points against Sacramento with a 70 per cent shooting average and came back against Contra Costa with 18 digits.

McGriff inspirationally played the center spot with his 6-7 frame. He came down with 19 rebounds against the Panthers and then upped his season total to 43 as he yanked 24 off the boards against the Comets.

Both games started with the Rams unable to hit for many points while the other team was building up a sizeable margin. In the early moments of the opening period the locals found themselves trailing 16-12 against Sacramento. Duggan, who had been held to two points so far, then broke open their defense by scoring some quick points and aided by Bill Nocetti's three buckets the Rams took a 25-22 half-time lead.

Charles Currington, Duggan and McGriff then dominated the second half and when a sizeable 58-44 lead had been built up Phelan inserted his defensive unit, who then finished the game allowing only four points in the remaining four minutes.

Against the Comets, the Rams offense stuttered at the start of the game as they were behind 29-6 after only eight minutes of play. McGriff, who had been held to seven points the night before, then exploded for nine points while Duggan hit 11 more to give the hoopers a 33-26 half-way lead.

Both Duggan and McGriff received a well deserved ovation as they left the floor during the closing minutes of the game. By that time the Rams had built up a 67-47 lead.

Dave Roberts, Gene Batiste and Randy Simms, the defensive unit, were again called upon to contain the Comets, and they held them to 19 points during the remaining eight minutes.

Five home games remain in the Big Eight basketball competition for the upset-minded Rams, three against the league powerhouses, Oakland, Stockton and San Mateo.

One of the five remaining home games will be played this Friday when the locals host the Modesto Pilgrims at 8 p.m. in the men's gymnasium.

The remaining home games will be Friday, February 2, against powerhouse San Mateo; Tuesday, February 6, against Oakland; Friday, February 16, against Stockton and Friday, February 23, against Santa Rosa.

The first three home games in February will probably be the crucial. All three teams will be in high contention for the title.

Again picked for a top spot finish, league powerhouse San Mateo, led by 6-4 center Howie Sundberg, should have little trouble in their quest for first place. The Bulldogs are loaded with speed and power, both offensively and defensively, along with height and above average shooting.

Both Stockton and Oakland will be the top teams combating the Mustangs this season. Stockton's Mustangs are led by Andy Stoglin, 6-1 forward who won All-American high school honors during his prep days in Arizona.

Coach Sid Phelan's starting five now consists of 6-7 center Elton McGriff, 6-4 forward Charles Currington, 6-2 forward Brad Duggan, 5-8 guard "Goose" Adams and 5-11 guard Bill Nocetti.

Nocetti and Adams are going to be relied upon to supply most of the outside shooting while the height of McGriff, Currington and Duggan will be used to haul in rebounds.

Two exceptional guards who will back up the starting duo are veteran Dave Roberts and Gene Batiste. The forward spot will be open to Bob Mulcravy and Randy Simms, while Currington could be moved to center if needed.

Batiste and Simms are good defensive men. McGriff has finally come into his own, using his height and strength in hitting the boards and coming down with the all-important rebounds.

Two newcomers to the squad are Herman Fruchtenicht, a breast stroker, and Bill Love, a promising back stroker.

Linkers Slate Seven Practice Matches

Beginning to mold a formidable golf squad, Coach Grover Klemmer has scheduled seven practice matches, beginning February 16 with Alameda. Other pre-season matches will be against Diablo, Hamilton, Stockton, Marin and San Jose for two.

The Big Eight Conference season opens on March 16 against a strong San Mateo team. Having taken a third place last year, Klemmer is expecting to do better this season, but predicts San Mateo will take the top spot for a second straight year.

Top clubber for the Rams is Jim Baffico. Baffico, who just finished an outstanding football season and was named to the junior college All-American team, was graduated from St. Ignace High School.

Next on the ladder is Steve Whitman, a graduate from George Washington High School and former All-City golf champion.

Dennis Drucker, another top swing-er, will rate a top position if he continues at the college.

Light Signups Force Load On Mermen Vets

Once again as in previous years the swimming team has a small turnout. With such returnees as John Holm, last season's All-Conference breast stroke champion, John Vida, El Silver and Jim Ahern, there is still a very good chance for a strong showing this season.

This year two new teams, Santa Rosa and Modesto, have been added to the league.

Two newcomers to the squad are Herman Fruchtenicht, a breast stroker, and Bill Love, a promising back stroker.

CJCSGA Confab To Emphasize Leadership This Saturday

Emphasis will be on leadership and the exchange of ideas during the 33rd semiannual Northern Regional California Junior College Student Government Association Conference this Saturday at Vallejo Junior College, Dan Collins, Associated Student president here, announced today.

Representing this college at the meet will be 18 student leaders. Each has already been assigned to one of 10 workshops.

For the first time, two Student Council delegates here have been selected to preside at workshops. Fred Cherniss will lead the campus organizations workshop and Greg Monk the activities workshop.

Collins attributes this exclusive honor to "the great influence City College is making on the other 25 two-year colleges participating in the conference."

Different also this semester is the fact that representatives of professions in the community will address the workshops. They will be joined by faculty members from Vallejo College.

William Winter, widely known radio and TV newscaster, will be the principal speaker, and his topic will be related to the present world situation and the theme of the conferences, which is leadership.

Collins and his vice president, Suzanne Murphy, are to be active in the conference organization shop.

Dave Grieve and Pat Nelder will represent the college in campus communications, Jan Doudiet and Dave Otey in finances, Jim Ahern in athletics and Otto Van Duyen and John Theilan in spirit.

Taking part in the leadership section of student government will be Bill May and Marcia Devlin, while Vince Contreras leads the parliamentary law division of the workshop.

Working with Cherniss will be Ed Pawlus. Monk will have as his assistant in activities Jackie Rommel. Also attending the meeting for evaluation purposes are Gail Margolin and Andy Shamlayeh.

Larry Day, overall chairman of the conference, emphasized in a letter to Collins that no new resolutions will be brought up this time.

Serving as alternates in case one of the appointed delegates can not attend are Jim Fuller, Judy Gerstle, Laurie Thurwell and Jerry Sciutto, Collins added.

Sherm E. Elworthy, student government adviser, and Dean of Women Mary Golding will again accompany the delegation this semester.

The state conference is scheduled for March 28, 29 and 30 in Los Angeles. Outstanding delegates attending this Saturday's meeting will also be invited to participate, Collins stated.

H&R Department To Reach Statler Grant Goal Of $50,000 By Mid-March

Pledges and contributions are rapidly increasing the stipulated fund in the hotel and restaurant department's drive toward $50,000, according to Dean Louis Batmale, who expects the goal to be reached by mid-March.

Recognition came to the college last semester when a grant of $100,000 was made by the Statler Foundation of New York toward the enlargement of the facilities of the college's H&R department.

The gift was contingent on the H&R and allied industries raising another $50,000 to yield a building and equipment fund of $150,000, Batmale said.

Dinners for hotel industry representatives and alumni have already been given and all who have attended have contributed generously, he added. San Francisco hotel leaders, who were entertained at a luncheon last semester, have been particularly generous. About $2500 alone has been raised by contributions from the H&R students and their families.

Representatives have already been sent to Chicago to negotiate with the Statler people.

IFC Hosts Semiannual Open House Tonight As Clubs Set Displays And Dance Friday

Dean Hillsman's Talk Highlights Fraternity Night

Offering an opportunity to men students to familiarize themselves with the campus fraternities, the Inter-Fraternity Council will hold its semiannual open house at 7:30 o'clock tonight in Smith Hall, Bob Turnbow, IFC president, announced last week.

At the affair, he added, prospective pledges will be able to meet the officers and members of each of the seven active fraternities on campus. Opportunity will also be afforded to ask questions and then make their own decision as to which of the organizations offers the most to them.

Ralph Hillsman, dean of men, will open the evening's program with a discussion of fraternity standards.

In addition, a representative of each fraternity will describe his own organization so that interested students will be given some idea of the aims and functions of the group.

As in the past, a student may sign up with as many fraternities as he wishes without being under any obligation, Turnbow emphasized, explaining that the final choice will be entirely up to the prospective pledge.

Included in the activities of the evening, a scholarship trophy and a letter of commendation will be awarded to fraternities meriting them.

Each fraternity will have a table with trophies, scrapbooks and other items of achievement illustrative of the history of each group.

"A decade and a half has passed since the first IFC open house, and then, as now, its main purpose is to interest students in the advantages of fraternal affiliation," Turnbow said.

The seven active fraternities, on campus are Beta Tau, Alpha Kappa Rho, Phi Beta Delta, Alpha Phi Epsilon, Gamma Phi Upsilon, Alpha Sigma Delta and Zeta Phi Sigma.

The IFC officers are Turnbow, president; Larry Malbaum, vice president; John Neal, treasurer; Pete Montecinos, secretary; and Dick Harrison, rushing chairman.

Brady stated that the statistics had not differed from the previously established norm and that the number of students disqualified was also excessively large.

Statistics show, Brady stated, that 65 per cent of those disqualified usually fail to fulfill the conditions that they make when they are readmitted.

The steering committee arranged the luncheons and dinners and helped solicit pledges from the hotel industry.

Composing the committee are 10 prominent San Francisco hotel and businessmen, Batmale explained.

George D. Smith, formerly of the steering committee's advisory board; P. Tremaine Loud is president of the H&R foundation; and Carl Rutledge, a graduate of the college's H&R program, is treasurer of the H&R foundation.

Hotelmen on the steering committee are Richard Swig of the Fairmont Hotel; Dan London, managing director of the St. Francis Hotel; Edward Sequiera, manager of the St. Francis Drake Hotel; Willard Abel, vice president of Western Hotels, and of Joseph Sullivan, president of the Hotel Employers Association.

Completing the committee are two well known businessmen, Henry Maschal, partner in the firm of Harris, Kerr, and Foster, and Robert Grison, owner of Grison's restaurants.

Less Than Half Readmitted After Fall Disqualification

"Of the 921 students whose registration was threatened by disqualification because of grade deficiencies last semester, approximately 400 have been readmitted, John Brady, co-ordinator of student welfare, stated recently.

The 921, who received a grade point average of C minus or lower, were divided into three groups.

The first group, composed of 350 students, received letters saying that they have been disqualified for re-entrance but that they could have their case reviewed before one of the committees for readmission, which are composed of members of the faculty.

A second group, 368 students, also received letters notifying them of their disqualification and the provision of appeal to Brady himself for permission to re-enroll.

Group three included 203 students who had already been on probation and since they had failed to meet their "contracts," were not allowed to return this semester. These students can only gain readmission through completion of satisfactory college work elsewhere.

Brady stated that the statistics had not differed from the previously established norm and that the number of students disqualified was also excessively large.

COO Activities Usher In Spring Social Season

Introduction of campus clubs to students here and start of the college's spring social season top the agenda of the Council of Organizations' program with the traditional "day and dance" slated for Friday in Smith Hall, Ed Pawlus, COO president, revealed yesterday.

All organizations, fraternities and sororities are expected to be represented there by booth displays, from 2 to 3 p.m.

Main purpose of the day is to acquaint both new and old students with the groups available to them this semester and to attract new members into these groups, whose meetings are usually held during College Hour Friday, 10 to 10:40 a.m., so as not to interrupt the regular college curriculum.

Previously the semiannual event was sponsored by the Club Activities Board, but following a 14-year tenure, that association was dissolved last semester, giving way to the COO.

As a finishing touch to COO Day activities, a dance will begin at 9 a.m. in Smith Hall, Pawlus added. Maury Wolohan will provide the music. The band performed earlier this semester at the Frosh Mixer.

Admission is open without additional charge to holders of a current Associated Student card and registration card. A charge of 75 cents will be made to those attending with only a registration card, Pawlus said.

Proper attire for the dance, according to Pawlus, is dressy sport for the women and sport coat and tie for the men. Booths will be erected around the fountain area of the cafeteria during the affair.

Guest bids, limited to one per person, may now be obtained in Dean Mary Golding's office, S-150.

Working with Pawlus toward the success of this venture is his vice president, Nick Zafanovich, and secretary, Marian Lorenzen. Bill Goring was originally elected COO vice president but was unable to fill that position.

Associated Student Card Aid To Council Budget, Student Budget

MENTION the spending of $30,000 as a problem and reactions will vary from disbelief to envy. Yet that is exactly the problem which Student Council strives to solve for the Associated Students during the early legislative sessions each semester.

That is a comparatively simple problem, however. More difficult is the raising of the money for the allocations.

The AS has three sources of money, AS card sales, a portion of the Ramporium profits, and a part of the vending machine profits. Of these, the biggest variable is the card sales.

Although the college enrollment is near 8000, sales will probably total little more than a quarter of that number.

Probably the greatest portion of sales is due to the fact that on-campus parking is not authorized without an AS card. Many car owners, then, merely pay their $5, get their parking stickers and stuff the cards somewhere deep in their billfolds to be forgotten.

They do not realize the value of the pastboard they have hidden in their pockets.

Unfolding the card, they would see a list of establishments which offer discounts up to 50 per cent on various items including auto parts, tires and gas.

It is a legitimate list due in a large part to the efforts of the AS card sales chairman of the past three semesters who have gone through the various establishments' names, eliminating those places which gave the same discounts to all their customers.

These are discounts for AS of City College only.

The benefits are not for car owners alone. Students may buy music, food, stationery, clothes, flowers, or equipment to supplement their hobbies at a substantial savings.

Sporting goods are available. One may even go skating or bowling, and use the extra money for his refreshments.

All this is accessible to the cardholder, and still the easily computable advantages on the campus have not been mentioned.

Considering that the college basketball team has all but clinched the Big Eight Conference title, a big part of the value of the card can be gained this semester by going to see the Rams in action.

Three big dances, the Frosh Ball, Soph Ball and COO Dance would cost anyone but an AS cardholder $6, but the admission is covered by the price of the card.

Little theater productions, the Associated Men Student Smoker and the Associated Women Student Fashion Show and Feminine Fling are also included in the initial selling price.

The card purchase also entitles the student to an active interest in student government. He is entitled to attend Student Council meetings from 12 to 1 o'clock on Tuesdays and Thursdays, and is, in fact, invited to do so by AS President Dan Collins.

Too, he may become a candidate for office and have a voice in the budgeting of the AS activities.

The advantages are many; the cost is low. A well-used AS card returns its price quickly, about five times over to each individual. And the overall benefits to the college are evident throughout the semester.

Shots At RAMdom Space (?) Specimens Scrutinize Students

By Dave Kleinberg

BIRDSEED: Cold weather up north and the desire for the pyracantha bushes has driven about 12 to 20 thousand robins into the Bay Area. The birds descend on the college in flocks.

Here's the frightening part: These birds can't be from our planet. In all seriousness, we have never been more closely observed walking up the path to Science Hall.

What gets us is that they can't come right out and stare at you. No, these 200 hideous creatures, stationed ten yards apart in every direction, are always facing us at 90 degree angles, casting one eye our way.

PROGNOSTICATIONS: (For the new semester)—The Redwood Ram will be mysteriously pointed three times. Each time the campus organizations will deny having anything to do with it.

A few individuals will ask to have the Redwood brought inside, claiming it is too valuable to be left outside, and The Guardsman will fessah a feature that tells when and by whom the Redwood was carved.

Although the cafeteria manager will announce for the two millionth time that the cafeteria is overcrowded, some girl will attempt to do the twist in the middle of lunch hour on top of a table. She will be taken away and treated by a psychiatrist.

The Shack, located behind Cloud

Hall, will prosper despite the fact that after one year they still don't have a sign to indicate its location.

TOO LATE FORECASTS: Four new students disappeared in the registration confusion—two were found. Resulting from continuous signature signings, seven students developed writer's cramp for three days. Two students were programmed for an anthropology class at 3 a.m. in the morning. They didn't realize the mistake until now.

MISTRUSTS: According to the official Time Schedule, the swimmers are really going to earn their one-half unit.

The women's beginners' class and intermediate classes are both going on a 24-hour basis—1 o'clock to 1 o'clock. Coach Roy Burkhead's life-saving class extends from 10 to 30, and you figure that one out.

ASTRO-NUT: When Lt. Col. John Glenn went into his epic-making flight last week, many students brought transistor radios to college to follow Glenn's progress.

In the men's gymnasium, a student cried "lost contact with Glenn!" A nearby listener rushed over, "What?!" They lost contact with Glenn? Is he okay?

The student with the transistor replied, "No, I lost contact. My radio won't play inside the concrete buildings." A-okay.

Student Busy At Four Jobs As Others Groan

By John Silva

While relaxing in the cafeteria two students, each enrolled in eleven and one-half units, were groaning about their hectic academic schedules.

Meanwhile, art major Daniel Ishii, also carrying eleven and one-half units, was busy working at one of his four part-time jobs.

One of the students said that his afternoon classes from 1 to 3 p.m. Monday and Wednesday were especially burdensome.

Ishii, however, works from 1 to 6 p.m. daily at a local bookstore, where he sells and demonstrates art supplies and paints and designs the company's window displays.

"I spend too many hours at college," said one of the students as he sipped his coffee.

After attending classes, Ishii works as a laboratory assistant in Roy H. Walker's ceramics class.

"I just haven't enough time at night to do my homework," added the other student.

During the evenings, Ishii paints posters for The California-Nevada Methodist Conference of Methodist Youth, an organization promoting religious seminar.

"Not enough time," the student said again.

Ishii has found the time to work as a free-lance commercial artist who last year designed Christmas cards for L. Magnin, and he also has the time to work as a commissioned fine artist who recently sold one of his oil paintings for $75.

"This is my fourth semester here, and I'm still not qualified for Cal," the student said.

Having completed all but one of the art courses offered at the college, Ishii, a sophomore, is now enrolling in a general liberal arts curriculum which he hopes to complete in another semester. He then intends to transfer to the Los Angeles Art Center.

Ishii is currently preparing a portfolio of his best paintings which he hopes to sell to Gump's art store.

Miss Chinatown Coed Wins Beauty Title, Orient Trip

Two weeks ago Anna Wong, 18-year-old sophomore here, was just a secretarial major. Today she is the crowned Miss Chinatown, San Francisco, and the winner of an all-expense paid trip to Hong Kong.

Before a jam-packed audience of 3000 at Masonic Auditorium, 14 girls competed in the fifth annual Chinatown Pageant, an event which opened the Chinese New Year Festival, February 17-25.

Darrah Lau, a comely 19-year-old beauty from Honolulu, Hawaii, won the top title of Miss Chinatown, U.S.A., and with it a tour of the Orient.

But to glorify, capitalize and distort the issue in degrading terms for personal gain or vicarious satisfaction is a weakness that must be conquered if any halfway is to be made in coping with the ills of today's complicated society.

"How do you stand, sir?" is Barry Goldwater's punch line, Truman just punches and Shakespeare said, "To thine own self be true."

In case anyone has forgotten, it is possible to talk about war with wit as Bernard Shaw did not too long ago. It is still possible to portray internal conflict with beauty as Michaelangelo did with the David, and Hollywood might take a good look at the work of the brilliant Japanese film maker, Akira Kurosawa.

In his last book, Dandelion Wine, Ray Bradbury measures up admirably to the concept of the artist as a skilled, disciplined and responsible interpreter of the environment.

From cover to cover his story reads like a narrative poem as he comments beautifully and powerfully on the detail that makes up a lifetime from war to the feeling of sunshine on a summertime world.

This happened all too much and too obviously on the screen when such films as Les Liaisons Dangereuses and Splendor in the Grass are peddled as expositions of "the truth," when in reality they are merely trash which is calculated to make fortunes for the pseudo artist who is after box office loot.

Substantial evidence such as Sweet Bird of Youth might convict Tennessee Williams on the same charge.

Here is a home town boy who has made good all over America as well as in Europe by wallowing in a wasteland of ugliness.

And then there is Salvatore Dali who sits back and strokes his long black mustache when he isn't making trips to the bank while the public gazes intently over writhing, distorted figures.

Personal insecurity of the individual in a mechanized age, the cold war, the have-nots in India, Africa and China, dissolution and breakdown of values in the twentieth century, the negro in America; we look to the artist to give us a greater insight into all and more of these situations so that we may correct them.

But to glorify, capitalize and distort the issue in degrading terms for personal gain or vicarious satisfaction is a weakness that must be conquered if any halfway is to be made in coping with the ills of today's complicated society.

Representing the college in the winning circle was Flora Chan, a 19-year-old sophomore, selected Miss Talent.

Miss Wong, sponsored by Wah Ngai, a private organization, modeled a Chinese dress and a play suit, and in the talent department did an acrobatic sword dance.

But what probably won her the title was her answer to the question: What would you do if your boy friend was late for an important date?

What Do You Expect To Get From A College Education?

My main interest in college is to secure a basis for a career which I hope will be in commercial art, although I'm not sure. The art field is highly competitive in San Francisco. Also, I believe a person benefits greatly from the general knowledge acquired through a liberal education.

Burt Lauray, sophomore:

I would like to see the four years I spend in college lead eventually to a position with prestige and a comfortable salary. Another thing I believe is important, although it's hard to define, is the experience one gains through association with other students and student organizations.

Mary Meacham, sophomore:

Satisfaction of my own curiosity and obtaining a degree in commercial art are the two main things I'm interested in as far as college is concerned. I often take courses which interest me, regardless of whether they apply to my major.

Barrie Williams, freshman:

I am not really decided yet, but I hope by the time I graduate from college I will have the proper background for a career in some area of the business field. I think a person, once he is fully decided on his future, can expect to get out of college just what he puts into it.

Greg Monk, Recreation Association, basketball:

I hope to get from college an education which will prepare me for the career in medicine that I've planned. I think that between the curriculum and exchanging ideas with other students, a student has the opportunity to broaden his scope that he would not encounter outside of college.

Larry Dugan, freshman:

I am not sure what I intend to do later on, and as such I don't really know what to expect from a college education. If a person has a clear idea of what he wants to do and is willing to work hard, I don't think he would have any trouble.

Further assignments were Charles Miller, deans, handbook, drama; Otto Van Duyn, Inter-Fraternity Council, tennis; Mary Taylor, executive, drama; Dave Oley, Freshman Club, Campus Police, golf; Jim Fullin, The Guardsman, Campus Police; Marcia Devlin, Plek and Hammer, commencement, Publicity Committee; John Theilman, posters and banners, swimming; Mary Farley, athletic injury and KCSF.

Miss Doudiet further noted that any organization requesting student funds must show 100 per cent AS membership.

Though card sales have shown a steady increase over the past two weeks, AS Card Sales Chairman Bill Reichert expressed concern about the low figure. As of last week, sales had totaled 1300, a jump of 500 in the past two weeks.

A bright spot was pointed out by Reichert in that council member Oley had been personally responsible for more than 150 sales. Thus far Oley remained the only member to sell more than 100 cards as requested by President Collins.

Cagers Rack Up 11th Straight Win, Defeat Modesto 72-51

Refusing to accept a single conference defeat so far while aiming for a shot at the state finals to be held next week in Costa Mesa, California, the Rams chalked up their 11th consecutive Big Eight win last week when they defeated Modesto Junior College on the Pirates' home court by the score of 72-51.

Sid Phelan's cagers seem to be addicted to the theory that to win games they only have to be just a little tougher than the team against which they are playing.

That theory has worked out so far for the hoopers as they soared back from a dismal pre-season showing to take a commanding lead in the final round during the final season of the present Big Eight Conference.

MODESTO: Brad Duggan had one of his best nights, from the floor, hitting six of nine shots, to lead the Rams to victory. Elton McGriff and Randy Simms both pulled down 13 rebounds, and the Rams continued their hot shooting with 48 per cent from the floor.

In their first encounter the Pirates dropped a close one to the locals, 52-42. The 13-point bulge does not indicate how close the game actually was, for the score was tied seven times in the first half, and the visitors managed a 25-25 half-time bond.

SACRAMENTO: The Crimson and Gold Panthers invaded the Rams' home court to open the season and were soundly trounced by the then low-rated cagers, 61-48. Again the 13-point spread did not indicate the tightness of the contest.

Duggan earned a standing ovation from the sparse crowd as he hit 70 per cent of his shots from the floor, and was on his way to collecting a personal season high point total of 21.

Traveling to the Capital City for the second game of their series later in the season, the hoopers had even a tougher time of it as they met a fired-up and highly improved Sacramento squad. Their best effort could only produce a narrow 51-49 victory.

CONTRA COSTA: Despite a 27-point scoring spurge by Leroy Walker, scoring leader of the Big Eight before he broke his right hand, the Rams overwhelmed the Comets 71-51 in their second largest scoring feat of the season.

McGriff again dominated the game, collecting 15 points and 26 rebounds in his best performance of the season. Duggan tanked 18 points, while Currington hit for 9, and spunky guard Dave Roberts followed closely with 8.

In their second contest Bill Nocetti had eye bulging as he hit six out of seven field goal attempts. All of his shots were from the outside and three were 25 feet out or further and would be considered 3-pointers in other leagues.

STOCKTON: The Mustangs had their troubles throughout the game, but the cagers followed their "only tougher than thou" thinking as they squeaked by the horsemen, 50-42, in their first game.

In their second game, which proved to be their most important win of the campaign, Roberts again came off of the bench to put the cagers in front for good late in the last quarter by scoring two quick field goals. Then the hoopers held on to their slim six-point margin and went on to hand the Mustangs their second defeat of the season, 45-41.

Before fouling out McGriff slipped in 10 points and yanked 18 rebounds off the boards.

SANTA ROSA: Vying against an inspired home court Bear Cub team, the locals saw the need to stay up for a game in both halves. Carrying an

Cagers Clinch Tie For First; Face T-Birds In Finale Friday

By Jerry Littrell

With but one game remaining in the final week of the Big Eight cage season, Sid Phelan's squad assured themselves of at least a tie for first place last Friday night as they exploded past Santa Rosa, 67-48.

As of last Friday the Rams had an unblemished 12-0 record but Stockton still had an outside chance to force the locals into a postseason playoff.

To accomplish this the Mustangs would have to win their final two encounters while the Red and White were losing their final one.

The entire matter might have been decided last night when the Rams journeyed to San Mateo to battle the Bulldogs. A win last night by the cagers or a loss by Stockton would have given the Rams their first undisputed championship in Coach Sid Phelan's tenure.

However, if the hoopers dropped their game last night while the Mustangs won their match, Friday night's game with arch-rival Oakland will assume great importance.

The locals conceivably could back into the title as Stockton needs only to drop one game to eliminate themselves from any title chance.

Phelan's cagers proved to be too much for the Bear Cubs' last Friday night as the hoopers leaked through Santa Rosa's defense while posing a stiff defense of their own.

Resorting to a man-to-man defense for most of the game the basketball squad held the entire Santa Rosa team to but 17 field goals while center Elton McGriff combined with substitute Mel Tom in holding top scoring John Paxton to one bucket shot.

Brad Duggan got back on his scoring road again as he tanked in 14 points while grabbing nine shots from the boards.

Chuck Currington, although given a rest for most of the game, managed to hit two shots in two attempts, one of which was a tremendous hook shot from the right corner.

Currington currently leads the team with a shooting average of 57 per cent. The only thing keeping him from being high scorer for the team is his unexplainable ineffectiveness from the free-throw line.

RAMBLINGS Santa's Gift, Tall 'Ribbon,' Nets Title

By Jerry Littrell

YES, SID PHELAN, there is a Santa Claus!

About three months ago, just before the Christmas holiday got into its final stage, basketball coach Sid Phelan scanned his roster for any prospective returnees from last year's varsity squad.

Looking carefully over the list four times, he was still able to come up with only three members who might come back to play again this season.

Phelan would go to bed at nights with "visions of six-footers shooting" in his head. Where would he get the necessary talent to mold a formidable cage squad this year?

Little by little, piece by piece, his wish came true. From all sides of the college came athletes ranging from all-city hoopers to players from junior varsity squads in high school.

He placed his three returning men, guard Dave Roberts, forward Brad Duggan and center Chuck Currington, out on the floor and started to build around them.

Ever experimenting with his Christmas "package," he tried players at various positions to try to get the most talent without carrying excess weight.

Finally a "ribbon" for his package was found when, beaming, he set upon the little Sid McGriff. With this "green" but eager team he set out on a practice schedule with high hopes.

The records will show that these hopes might have been dashed to smithereens as the befuddled Rams dropped seven of their 12 preseason encounters and seemed in a bad enough way that they might have to claw for a first division finish in the Big Eight.

Endless hours of work and practice finally paid off.

The team's performance and the performance of individuals changed completely as the cagers headed into the thick of the Big Eight race.

The records will also show that Phelan got his wish. With the reversal of their preseason performance, the Rams captured the Big Eight title in the conference's final year.

The only explanation of its success is that behind the team was an experienced and energetic coach. The talent was there, but it had to be brought out and assembled to form a team.

So, if anyone doubts the existence of the little Sid McGriff, the coach, and a beard, let him stop around the men's gymnasium next Christmas and ask Phelan. He'll be doubly happy to tell anyone all about it, because he will be working with eight veterans from this year's championship squad. A firm believer, Phelan.

Spikers Eye 4th Straight Crown, Open At Modesto

Eying its fourth consecutive Big Eight crown, the college track team will participate in its first league meet in a three-way contest with Mather Field and Modesto Junior College Friday at Modesto, according to Louis Vasquez, coach of the squad.

The brightest spots for the team are in the shot-put and discus events. Alvin Jones, who broke the college record in the discus last year, Elbert Robinson, Cal Rothman and Pete Downing will join forces to stack up points in these weight events.

Nine members of last year's team will lead length and experience to the 47 cindermen presently listed on the squad.

Pole vault specialists Ray Bautista and Bill Mages, 880 speedsters Harb Briscoe and Tony Ferrigno, 220 yard low hurdler John Pangburn, 880 mile and two-mile threat Roger Ritchey, broad jumper George Holland, Darnes and Esteban Valle are the returnees.

Some of the promising newcomers are Lonnie Brantley, Academic Athletic Association City League broad jumper; Richard Byers, distance man; Bob Coleman, hurdles; Pete Daniels, Steve Jackson, distance; Jim O'Toole, 440, and Jim Waterfield, broad jump and sprints.

Concerning the other teams in the league, Vasquez predicts that College of San Mateo is fielding a highly competitive team.

RA Offers Full Sports Program This Semester

Students with Associated Student cards are invited to participate in the educational sports offered here this semester at 3 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays, Frances Galloway, of the women's physical education department faculty, announced today.

Sports offered are coeducational fencing and folk dancing on Mondays, basketball and modern dance on Tuesdays, badminton on Wednesdays and coeducational volleyball on Thursdays.

A total of 25 prizes, including the first prize of a round-trip flight to Europe for a tuition-free summer session at a school of the winner's choice, plus a complete travel wardrobe, is offered.

All entrants must plan a fashion show for their college or living group. The proposed plans should cover each phase of the fashion show and each suggestion should be justified. Illustrations are permissible, but only the idea will be judged.

The contest is open to any college woman, except those connected with the college, and there will also be a high school competition with Balboa High School.

Officers of the RA this semester are Sharon Hawley, president; Natlie Gilbert, vice president; Shirley Thornton, treasurer; Sheila D'Aubert, secretary, and Maxine Hickman, Associated Women Student representative.

Two members-at-large are Mike Rody and Harry Jorgensen. This semester the RA has an exceptionally good group of officers who have already worked hard for the success of the sports organization, Miss Galloway commented.

Sports days next month are now set for March 17 at Santa Rosa, March 23 at Valley College of Los Angeles, March 24 at Napa Junior College and March 31 here.

Block SF Society To Elect Spring President

Because John Jacobson, who was originally elected Spring Semester Block SF Society president, has been called into the armed services, the initial concern of the lettermen at their next meeting will be the election of a new president.

Athletes wishing membership in the Block SF must have been awarded a block letter and must also maintain a good grade-point average, membership requirements state.

Highlighting the semester's activities will be the semiannual awards banquet, during which all spring sports participants will be honored with block letters, trophies or special recognition.

IBM Breakdown Temporarily Cripples Attendance Records

By John Silva

Two IBM machines broke down in the registrar's office last week and rendered the college's enrollment records momentarily useless.

Useless, in the respect that nobody knows yet the exact number of students here this semester.

Of course, somebody would have gone down to the cafeteria at noon to count the students waiting in line for lunches, but that would have been at least a four-day project. It would be quicker to wait for the IBM machines to be repaired in three days.

Student attendance records are important for three reasons: First, so that the college receives funds for each student in attendance; second, so that the college won't receive funds for students not in attendance; third, so that forgetful students can be reminded of their absences.

The third item is of particular importance to absent-minded students who could miss 18 meetings in a one-unit course and still attend class—which is pretty difficult to do since most one-unit classes don't meet more than 18 times.

Nevertheless, the machines will be repaired in time for the monthly report, stating the hours and number of students in attendance here, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, said.

Fortunately, the machines didn't break during registration as they did last spring. Total enrollment figures are due with the monthly report.

Quest For Miss SF Entrants Ends Saturday At Reception

As the quest for young women participants for the 1962 Miss San Francisco Pageant, sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, comes to a climax, a tea-reception for all entrants will be held Saturday at the Jack Tar Hotel.

Entry blanks are available here in Dean Mary Golding's office, S-150, and contestants must attend the tea Saturday unless other arrangements are made with Salvatore A. Lima, pageant director.

City College is looking for a pageant entrant to represent the city at the Miss Meriwether contest while Ann Meriwether accomplished while she was here by becoming Miss San Francisco and, later, Miss America of 1955.

Miss Meriwether will act as one of the judges for the Miss SF Pageant. The final contest will be held at the Jack Tar Hotel Saturday night, April 14.

Preliminary competition will start at 2 p.m. Sunday, and the semifinals are slated for the following Sunday, March 18. Both of these events will take place at the Press and Union League Club.

To be eligible to compete, entrants must be between the ages of 18 and 28, and never have been married. They should possess talent in instrumental music, dramatics, singing or any of the fine arts, chamber rules.

As an alternative she may present a three-minute talk on her reasons for pursuing a professional career or on her education.

Entrants will be judged on personal, talent, poise and personal charm, as well as personal appearance. In addition to competing for the Miss San Francisco title, contestants will aim for the scholarships and awards offered.

Young women of San Francisco are invited to enter the pageant to receive this "rewarding experience," Lima stated.

The winner will receive an approximate $2000 scholarship which she may use to further her education or professional training. Awards of clothing, trips and other items will be shared by Miss San Francisco of 1962 and pageant runners-up.

The winner will represent San Francisco at the Miss California Pageant in Santa Cruz. The young woman crowned Miss California will receive additional scholarships and will then compete in Atlantic City for the Miss America title later this year.

An impartial board of fashion authorities judging the contest will include the West Coast editor of Harper's Bazaar Magazine, the executive director of the Tobo-Coburn School for fashion careers of New York City, the director of public relations, Julius Garfinkle and Co. of Washington, D.C., and amongst others, last year's contest winner.

AWS Welcomes New Coeds At Annual Big And Little Sister Sack Social

The Big and Little Sister Sack Social, the first spring event of the Associated Women Students, is scheduled for 11:30 a.m. next Wednesday, March 14, in bungalow 6, according to Jackie Rommel, AWS president.

The gathering enables new students to become acquainted with AWS and meet the Associated Student officers. Entertainment will include popular songs by Verde Marie Byrd, a dance by Pat Gonzales and a folk dance by a member of the International Relations Club.

Freshmen will present a fashion show featuring dresses appropriate for the Fresh Ball.

Members of AWS will be wearing small paper sacks on their blouses to advertise the Sack Social.

AWS's next affair, the semiannual fashion show and tea, will be held at 3 p.m. Thursday, April 5, at Smith Hall. Approximately 30 high school seniors from each San Francisco school will be invited.

The Feminine Fling, a buffet dinner featuring entertainment, awards and installation of the new AWS, Inter-Sorority Council and Recreation Association presidents, will be held from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Friday, May 25, at Smith Hall.

Miss Rommel will inaugurate a new program here, women's career day. Interested students will be afforded an opportunity to visit the offices of prominent business women to observe what occurs in a typical day.

Western Association Grants College Maximum Five-Year Accreditation

Recognition Means Eligibility For Transfer, Federal Scholarships

By Dave Grieve

Western College Association accreditation of City College for the maximum five-year period was announced last month by college President Louis G. Conlan. A team representing the association was here last spring for a preliminary inspection tour.

Significance to students of the Western Association accreditation is primarily two-fold: to facilitate the acceptance of transfer to out-of-state colleges and universities and recognition by the federal government to insure scholarships.

"The basic advantage of accreditation," Conlan stated, "is that a student is guaranteed high standards of education and instruction."

Denoting a high criterion which encourages colleges to develop a continuing process of self-evaluation, the Western Association is responsible through this evaluation process to encourage a diversified scope in a college's educational program.

The Western College Association belongs to a national accrediting agency, to which the association annually submits a list of all accredited public and private four-year colleges and universities plus the two-year colleges located in California, Arizona and New Mexico.

Application for accreditation is beneficial to a college and is approached, after preliminary arrangements, with the presentation of a catalogue containing complete information concerning all aspects of the college's program.

A commission within the association appoints a committee to evaluate the catalogue. In addition, the committee ascertains the achievement records of college graduates, transfers to universities, and students graduated from the two-year terminal course, for example, City College's semiprofessional program.

Representatives from the association visit the college for a duration of two to three days, adding details.

Upon conclusion the statement is reviewed by the appointive commission and thereafter filed with an executive board, which meets semi-annually for a final judging.

The association may conclude, after deliberation, that a college does not deserve accreditation, or it may pronounce an accreditation for from one to five years.

The college has received two five-year accreditations consecutively, which, Conlan emphasized, "should increase pride among the college's students in their knowledge of the excellence of instruction and counseling, and the caliber of both academic and semiprofessional programs."

For the first time here the Inter-Fraternity Council has submitted a budget for money to support its blood drive, scheduled for April 5 and 6, and its open house.

Also for the first time the Pick and Hammer Society budgeted for money to purchase a set of geological maps of the Bay Area and money to sponsor field trips for the society.

Both the Inter-Fraternity Council scholarship and service trophies were awarded to Alpha Sigma Delta last week by Bob Turnbow, IFC president.

The clean sweep by the campus fraternity took place at last Wednesday's IFC open house.

The scholarship trophy is awarded to the fraternity which maintains the highest grade point average throughout the semester, while the service award is given to the organization which contributes outstanding service and support to the college.

While presenting the awards, Turnbow recalled Alpha Sigma Delta's triumphs of campus fraternities, the IFC president cited the annual Blood Drive, which this semester is slated for April 5 and 6.

Future films will include such topics as Squaw Valley, Festival of America, Peace Corps and John Glenn's flight.

Petitions Due This Friday For Graduating Students

Students planning to complete their work here this semester must turn in their petitions for graduation Friday, Mary Jean Learnard, registrar, announced last week.

Although, according to Miss Learnard, the petitions should have been turned in during registration, they may now be deposited in the main office.

Petition forms can also be obtained at the office.

Qualified Students Here Eligible For $5000 Loan

Qualified students in need of funds for educational purposes may apply in Dean Ralph O. Hillman's office, S-149, for a $5000 loan provided by the National Defense Education Act, Fred Fultz, English instructor and chairman of the student loan program, announced today.

To qualify for a loan, applicants must maintain at least a B-average in a minimum of 12 units, must present evidence of a financial need for educational purposes and must be citizens of the United States.

Special consideration is given to students who desire to teach in elementary or secondary schools and to students who are majoring in science, mathematics, engineering or in a foreign language.

Although a student may borrow a maximum of $5000 for educational expenses to cover duration of his college career, he may not, however, borrow a sum exceeding $1000 during any one year.

Funds allocated by the government to this college will determine how many students will receive loans.

One year after the borrower has completed his education, he is required to repay his loan within a 10-year period at the rate of three per cent per year.

However, 50 per cent of his loan (plus interest) may be cancelled if the borrower becomes a full-time teacher in a public elementary or secondary school.

Alpha Sigma Delta Wins IFC Service, Scholarship Cups

Both the Inter-Fraternity Council scholarship and service trophies were awarded to Alpha Sigma Delta last week by Bob Turnbow, IFC president.

The clean sweep by the campus fraternity took place at last Wednesday's IFC open house.

The scholarship trophy is awarded to the fraternity which maintains the highest grade point average throughout the semester, while the service award is given to the organization which contributes outstanding service and support to the college.

C-Hour Film Focuses On Oil-Rich Kuwait

The oil rich island of Kuwait will be the subject of this Friday's College Hour film, to be shown in S-136, Madison Devlin, of the audio-visual department, announced today.

Kuwait, a desert area located in the Persian Gulf in the vicinity of Iran and Iraq, is a British protectorate with extensive oil deposits, Devlin explained.

"The film promises to be an interesting and informative one, stressing great strategic importance," Devlin commented. The program also enables students without club affiliations to spend an enjoyable C-Hour, he added.

Future films will include such topics as Squaw Valley, Festival of America, Peace Corps and John Glenn's flight.

Spring Sports Action Gets Underway

Netters Take On Menlo Tomorrow

Raquetists will be swinging and fuzzi-balls will be flying as the college tennis team competes against Menlo College at 2:30 p.m. tomorrow on the Golden Gate Park courts.

In their Big Eight Conference opening match, the Rams will take on College of San Mateo at 2:30 p.m. Friday, March 9, at the peninsula college court.

This year's tennis ladder has Bob Siska on the top with John Kern, Rich Murray and Ed Jikka following in that order.

Siska has to be rated one of the best in the league just on his past record. He has won the All-Northern California Junior Tennis tournament, the City of Oakland title, and the 1956 Australian Junior tournament.

Tom Edelson of Oakland is the only likely obstacle to Siska's top spot in the league.

All of the netters' home matches are scheduled for the Golden Gate Park courts.

Pirate Duel Opens Mermen Season

The college mermen, with two veterans from last year's squad and a well rounded crew of prospects, open their season with a meet against the Modesto Pirates at 2:30 p.m. Friday, March 9, at Modesto.

The returning men are John Holm, breast stroke, and Eli Silver, free style.

Herm Fruchtenicht, breast stroke; Chuck Greninger, individual medley; Jeff Hlgman, free style, and Bill Love, free and backstroke, make up the prospects.

"The team," Coach Roy Burkhead said, "has a definite core, but lacks depth. The butterfly appears to be the event with a significant lack, and John Vida and Jim Ahearn are being trained for this event."

Concerning the other teams in the league, Burkhead noted that Oakland and Stockton Colleges will be highly competitive.

The swimming team will be on the road the entire semester.

Volleyball Added To Mural Program

Addition of an intramural volleyball league to the regularly scheduled basketball competition will present a more all-around activities program for men this semester, Associated Men Student President Fred Cherniss revealed, stating that petitions are available in S-134.

Competition is open to all men Associated Student members. Teams may be sponsored by fraternities, clubs or they may be organized independently. All petitions will be due Thursday, March 8.

Basketball competition will begin immediately after all the petitions are in, Cherniss said, and volleyball schedules will be made just as soon as enough teams are signed up for a working league.

The season will end with the awards presentation at the AMS smoker on May 25 in the men's gymnasium, Cherniss stated.

The Untouchables won the intramural title last semester.

Cager Champs Aim At State Crown

Rams Thrill Fans With Late Rally, Edge Bulldogs 64-62

Thrills, scoring and tempers ran high last week as Sid Phelan led his San Francisco cagers to his first undisputed championship of the Big Eight Conference when the locals squeaked by the San Mateo Bulldogs, 64-62, in the most action-packed game of the year. Although they trailed throughout most of the game, the Rams staged a tremendous team effort and rallied late in the last quarter to come from behind and win not only the game but the league championship.

DEAN LOUIS BATMALE, commissioner of new Golden Gate Conference.

Batmale Elected New Conference Commissioner

Louis Batmale, dean of instruction here, will head the Golden Gate Conference as its athletic commissioner when the conference replaces the Big Eight next semester.

Batmale will assume the position vacated by Russ Azzara, present commissioner of the Big Eight. Azzara had his headquarters in Sacramento, and since Sacramento City College will be dropping out of the new league, an official was named from one of the colleges in the Golden Gate Conference.

The new commissioner's experience in athletics has been both as a coach and official in basketball. He was formerly dean of student activities here. Duties of this office encompass assignment of officials for league games, adopting league policies, schedules of league games and selection of any awards and All-Conference honors as circumstances require.

If the new league constitution is adopted as it stands, a commissioner will be elected for a one-year term. As the job can be learned only through experience anyone elected to the spot who fulfills his obligations is expected to serve as long as he is able.

It is anticipated also that any special meetings which concern any part of the Golden Gate athletic program, such as All-League selections and awards, will be held on this campus.

RAMBLINGS

By Jerry Littrell

IT HAS BEEN a long, uphill battle throughout the entire season for the Ram varsity basketball squad, but all the hard work and time well spent as the cagers, under the splendid coaching of the veteran mentor, Sid Phelan, captured the Big Eight title in the league's final year.

A hard-fought, thrilling game was a fitting climax to the long climb to the top as the Rams defeated San Mateo last week to clinch the conference championship.

Each man contributed to the win, and if it were not for the complete co-operation among players, the outcome might have been different.

Everett "Goose" Adams hit 17 points in the game to lead the scoring parade. This spunky guard kept the team together with his usual playmaking ability.

Chuck Currington hit the bucket with his usual accuracy and contributed all-important points from the free-throw line.

Elton McGriff, his offensive thrust held down by a strong Mateo defense, played an effective defensive game of his own helping on the zone defense to hold All-League center Howie Sundberg to but one field goal.

Cage Team Effort Snags Game, Title

Gene Batiste also played a good defensive game and earned the hero-of-the-minute award when he put the Rams ahead with 25 seconds left in the game.

Mel Tom dropped in the two free throws that brought the cagers within one point of San Mateo with but a minute remaining, and hit the boards aggressively to keep the ball in San Francisco's hands.

Brad Duggan flunked the winning bucket and free throw with only seven seconds remaining even though he was pressured by both the clock and a double-team defense.

Bill Nocetti came off the bench late in the second period and gave the offensive spark the Rams needed as he scored six quick points and held his own man to one bucket.

Any one of these players could rightfully be heralded as game star, but this game needed a team effort and that's just what these champions produced.

Three Returning Veterans Strengthen Horsehide Squad

Although hampered by rain in the early part of their preseason practice, the Ram horsehidiers should be able to field a basically stronger squad than last season's third place team.

Three returning veterans will be Lee Eisan's mainstays this year as an exceptionally promising crop of rookies should be able to fill in the vacant spots adequately.

Don Meroff, Jim Corroll and Dennis Russell, each returning players from last year's team, form the nucleus around which Eisan hopes to build a championship squad.

Don Kunkle and Lou Bevilacqua, both All-City high school players from Balboa High School, look to be the most promising rookies. Kunkle, both versatile and able, can catch, pitch or play third base. If needed he could also fill in the outfield.

Bevilacqua looks to be the man who will hold down the second base spot for the diamondmen. George Trauffer, another star from Balboa, has an excellent shot at first base spot.

The lineup for the season will probably have Carroll behind the plate, Trauffer at first, Bevilacqua at second, Meroff at short, Kunkle at third and Duggan in the outfield.

Rookie prospects will be needed to fill in the other two outfield spots, and bench strength is definitely needed.

Tennis Squad To Meet San Mateo

The college tennis team will open its Big Eight Conference matches at 2:30 p.m. Friday against College of San Mateo at San Mateo.

In their only practice match thus far, the racqueters defeated Monterey Peninsula College, 8-1.

The entire team played well, Coach Roy Diederichsen said, giving special mention to John Kern and Rich Anderson.

Kern won his match 8-6 and 6-1, and Anderson, showing excellent potential in winning his match, moved up one notch to the fourth spot.

Ed Jilka, Diederichsen commented, will be battling to retain his lost position, now occupied by Anderson. Jilka needs improvement in the backstroke, Diederichsen indicated.

Petitions Due Thursday For Intramural Teams

Intramural team entry petitions for both basketball and volleyball will be due tomorrow in S-143, according to Associated Men Student President Fred Cherniss. Team petitions can be submitted by fraternities, campus clubs and independent teams.

This semester, for the first time, volleyball may be added to the intramural calendar. Volleyball competition could provide a new source of intracampus rivalry, Cherniss said.

Rams To Face Bakersfield In First Round

With a 13-1 Big Eight Conference record hanging from their belts the City College of San Francisco champion Rams will board a plane this afternoon and head for Orange Coast College in Costa Mesa, California, to compete in the state finals tomorrow, Friday and Saturday.

Tomorrow's first round game, scheduled at 2:30 p.m., will pit the cagers against the champions from the Metropolitan League, Bakersfield City College.

Win or lose the hoopers play again Friday night against a different team. If they lose either of the first two games they will be eliminated from the final championship game.

The three-day, eight-team tournament of champions will end Saturday night when the two teams who remained unbeaten in the preliminary rounds clash for the title of Junior College State Champions.

Oakland City College is rated as one of the toughest teams in the state and the locals' first round encounter against them should prove to be a thrill-packed game.

Displays of scrapbooks, trophies and other items concerning the six active sororities on campus will be exhibited to guests. Campus dress will be worn.

Rushing week will start the following day, March 19, and end Monday, March 26. Women students wishing to join a sorority may register between 8:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. in Dean Mary Golding's office, S-150. Registration fee is $1.

To enable easy identification for members, tentative plans are being made to have pictures taken of prospective rushers. Two weeks after rushing, the firesides will begin where the women can meet members and learn about the sororities.

Each rusher must attend five firesides, Miss Scuito said. ISC officers working with Miss Scuito are Jan Doudiet, vice president; Marilyn Butler, secretary; and Vicki Grant, publicity chairman.

Sorority presidents are Bev Hammer, Delta Psi; Nettie Cook, Delta Sigma Tau; Miss Doudiet, Gamma Kappa Beta; Judy Stern, Kappa Phi; Miss Scuito, Phi Beta Rho; and Miss Butler, Theta Tau.

The ISC Ball will be held Friday, May 4, at the Hilton Inn. At an earlier College Hour meeting the ISC held "an assembly at which each sorority contributed ideas and plans for the spring semester," Miss Scuito said.

RA Delegates To Attend Confab

The first three-day Pacific Southwest Regional Athletic and Recreation Federation of college women will be held Friday at Asilomar conference grounds, Frances Galloway, Recreation Association adviser, announced yesterday.

Representing the college will be a delegation of women RA members and two faculty advisers. Shirley Thornton, the group leader, will be accompanied by Sheila d'Aubert, Natalie Gubert, Sharon Hawley, Maxine Hickman and Phyllis Tomlinson.

"To strengthen individual women's Recreation Associations, discuss problems and contribute suggestions," will be the purposes of the conference, Miss Galloway stated.

Miss Thornton's discussion group will cover the values of team sports and individual sports. Other topics on the agenda are the value of coeducational activities in RA, improvement of participation, selection of officers and RA activities after college.

Last year the college led all other organizations west of Denver in its contributions of blood. During that year, approximately 500 pints were given by students.

In the past the drive was sponsored by Tau Chi Sigma fraternity. However, the IFC took over when that fraternity disbanded.

A student who gives one pint of blood during the drive will, if the occasion arises, be able to draw, once during the coming year, an unlimited supply for himself or his immediate family, Turnbow stated.

Turnbow emphasized that in order for students under 21 to donate blood they must have written permission from their parent or guardian.

On April 6 a rally will be held in front of Cloud Hall during the Double College Hour. The IFC is at present attempting to secure professional entertainment for the affair.

"Anyone who wishes to rush a fraternity may still register on sign-up sheets, which will be available either at the silver pole or in Dean Hillsman's office," Turnbow further remarked.

Library Begins 'Closed Stacks' System

Excessive Book Loss Causes Major Change In Operation

By Kevin Curtis

Loss of an excessive number of books since 1960 has forced a drastic change in the operation of the Cloud Hall library, Edward E. Sandys, dean of instruction in charge of the library, announced last week.

Beginning last Monday, a "closed stacks" system replaced the long utilized open stacks.

Under the new practice, students will no longer be admitted to the book shelves located behind the circular desk. Instead, they will fill out a request slip listing the book or books desired and give it to the librarian, who will get it for them.

"We found this new system necessary not only from the financial standpoint, but because of the great loss of time involved in cataloging and arranging the books when we are not sure if they will remain in the library. Furthermore, many of the missing volumes cannot be replaced," Sandys stated.

The faculty will continue to have "stack privilege" as will a certain number of honor students. The previous system had been in use since 1940. In the years since then, the library staff has tried many devices to curtail losses, yet books continued to disappear in ever-increasing numbers.

"The 'closed stacks' system is a last resort," Sandys declared. "The student wishing a book should locate its card in the catalog by author, and title or subject. He should then fill out a request slip in full with his name and the book number. The student may not request more than four books at one time."

When submitting the slip to the librarian, he should show his registration card. When signing out for books, he should again show his card. For editorial comment, see page 2.

Two alternate delegates are Bill May and Jackie Rommel. The recent Northern Regional conference of the CJCSEA went off smoothly with more than 500 delegates attending from 27 two-year colleges.

Eight successful recommendations were approved. No resolutions were made. The most notable of the recommendations calls for reorganizing of the Northern California region into two or three sections to make intercollege communications more feasible.

Another recommendation, concerning athletics, would have the individual athletic conferences within the CJCSEA represented by an individual vote, instead of the present bloc vote for Northern (2), Central (2) and Southern (3) sections.

A third recommendation stipulates the setting up of a "school spirit clinic," while a fourth recommendation asks for greater administration co-operation in the sale of student cards, with the possibility mentioned of making Associated Student cards mandatory.

Another measure states that all member colleges should give incoming freshman students orientation, as this college already does.

Five women students of the college have filed applications for the Miss San Francisco Pageant, sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, according to Mrs. Salvatore A. Lima, registration chairman.

Competing the quintet of entrants are Brenda Dennis, Judith Gall, Diane Holt, Carolyn Johnson and Diane Wickstrom. Last Saturday these women attended the tea-reception that was held for all entrants at the Jack Tar Hotel.

The final contest will be held at 8 p.m. on Saturday, April 14, at the Jack Tar Hotel.

NO MORE will the stacks of books (dressed out) be open to browsers or researchers students as has been the practice. Recent inventories have shown an excessive shortage of volumes, and administrators felt it necessary to close the stacks.

Six To Represent College At State Meet In Los Angeles

A total of five delegates will accompany Dan Collins, Associated Student president here, to the state conference of the California Junior College Student Government Association to be held in Los Angeles March 29, 30 and 31.

They will be Suzanne Murphy, AS vice president, Jan Doudiet, Greg Monk, Andy Shamiyeh and Gail Margolin, state information chairman. Site of the meeting will be the Biltmore Hotel.

Wallfisch Duo To Highlight Friday Concert In C-Hour

Presently on tour, the Wallfisch Duo will make their second public appearance in San Francisco here during College Hour Friday, Meyer Cahn, faculty director of the concert series, stated.

The duo will be the next guests in a series of programs selected to acquaint students with the whole spectrum of musical performance, Cahn emphasized.

The series also will provide an opportunity for students to hear their own groups. The orchestra and band are scheduled for May 18 and the college choral group will sing June 1.

Musicians from other colleges are also to perform. The San Francisco State Chamber Music Ensemble opened the series on February 23. The San Bernardino Junior College Concert Band will play May 4.

Also from another college is the Mills Chamber Trio, but instead of students, the trio is composed of instructors. They will make their visit on May 11.

On April 13 students may hear a professional performance from Elbogen and Schrier, a piano duo.

Even the touring professional is included in the sequence and this is the Wallfisch Duo, who have appeared in every major music festival in Europe, such as the Casals festival and the Menuhin. This is their third American tour.

Ernst Wallfisch is a professor for viola at the Mozarteum in Salzburg, Austria, and also teaches once a month at the Conservatory of Music in Switzerland. Lory Wallfisch has accompanied her husband on the piano since they met in Romania, where he was then studying music.

The duo played in San Francisco yesterday at the Legion of Honor for the Patrons of Art and Music.

Their College Hour concert as well as forthcoming recitals will also be televised by the television department to accommodate overflow audiences.—By A.P.

Stock In Two-Year College Goes Up 11 Per Cent In One Week

VALUE of a two-year college operating in the city school system was pointed out last week by a decision of the State College Board of Trustees.

This value promises to be demonstrated in ensuing semesters as a result of that decision.

The trustees decided to raise the entrance qualifications of all state colleges so that, instead of the top 44 per cent of high school graduates being eligible for enrollment, only 33 per cent will be admitted. Last year the University of California made a similar but more drastic move, cutting their high school enrollees from the highest 26 per cent to 12, a drop of more than half.

City College, however, is a public institution and may not select students on the basis of their high school scholastic achievements. All applicants must be accepted.

Thus prep school graduates who wish to continue their education must go to this college (or, of course, a similar public facility) to gain qualifications necessary to enter a university.

Because the lower 67 per cent of the high schools are well represented here does not lower the scholastic qualities of the college.

Aside from general education courses and the semiprofessional courses (which cannot be considered "snap" courses), all of the studies offered here are university parallels.

This means that they are essentially the same as the corresponding class one might attend at the University of California.

It must be this way if City College is to prepare students to attend a college or university in pursuit of their bachelor's or master's degree.

Many students who feel that they are attending a "junior" college are surprised when midterm grades roll around, and are jolted when they discover at the end of the semester that they may not enroll again.

For then the words of Thomas Nesbitt, testing director here, uttered humorously during the entrance examinations, display their hard core of truth.

"The law says we have to accept all of you," he tells the students in the testing room, "but it doesn't say how long we have to keep you."

Fireside Monologue, 1972

I SEE IN THE PAPER where our taxes are going up again. They must think we're made of money! And they always give the same sad story. Need more money for the school system.

"As if we can't see through that! I know better. I went through City College of San Francisco ten years ago. You did, too? Then you know that they were never hurting for anything.

"Those were the days, though, weren't they? I really raised the devil there. Look, I'll show you something. I've got a pretty good book collection. These I got from the library at City College.

"I used to drive the librarians crazy. They had open stacks that anyone could enter, and I used to go back and put a book inside my shirt and stroll out. Got these six books that way.

"They don't have open stacks any more? What a place! How do they expect students to get quick references? One of the really good ideas they had in practice and they did away with it!

"Couldn't be because of the few books I took."

The Spectator

By Anna Papagni

BIG THINGS are happening in the college drama department now, namely, preparation for a full scale production.

Time Limit, which deals with a contemporary theme that was presented on Broadway only seven years ago, will open on the campus March 30 for a two weekend run.

This is the first complete show of the year. Last semester's limited funds, which barely covered royalties, forced Michael Griffin, drama director, to confine theater activities to a series of one-act plays performed in the round with no costumes or props.

Funds are still limited, but fortunately, Mr. Griffin's ingenuity is not. He has chosen a play that requires just two sets as well as inexpensive costumes. Furthermore, Griffin has managed to convince Samuel French Inc., play brokers, that the college deserves special royalty rates.

So once again students will be able to experience full length, live drama in their backyard with Time Limit.

The story portrays an American major in the Korean war who is about to be officially charged with treason. It is a matter of record that he went over to the enemy, made propaganda broadcasts, and complied with all its requirements. Moreover, he admits his guilt and refuses to offer any kind of defense. A zealous judge advocate of a home-side Army post is not satisfied with the plea or the evidence. He insists on finding the motive.

Before the final curtain comes down on a shattering scene, it is plain that the defendant's motive is credible, if not magnanimous. He has been protecting the lives of 18 comrades.

Does the organization, in this case the army, punish the individual for not conforming to its absolute code of rules no matter what the particular circumstances, or does society allow the individual to act according to his own personal integrity even when this integrity conflicts with organization policy?

A good question, one that Herman Wouk asked a short time ago with The Caine Mutiny and William Whyte discussed in The Organization Man. For those who like sheer entertainment, here is a swift, suspenseful drama with enough humor to provide a few good laughs.

Those who do not believe in art for art's sake can see a contemporary problem in a realistic situation.

Labs End Language Study Chore

Learning a new language without the use of texts may seem to many an extremely difficult task to undertake, but through a new teaching technique put into full operation here for the first time this semester, the chore is almost a cinch.

Tape recordings supplant the necessity of books and instructor's lectures. Actually, the unique setups are language labs, and unknown to a large majority here, they are located in C-232 and 233.

The rooms each consist of 31 individual compartments. Each compartment has within its two slabs of acoustical tile a set of earphones, a miniature tape recording system complete with microphone and a chair.

The main purpose of the labs, according to their director, John H. Fawcett, is to give students an opportunity to listen to and study language tapes, consequently learning the tongue by repeating words into the mikes after the voice on the tape during regular "spacings."

An instructor at the head of the room with his master control panel merely has to pull a switch to turn on an individual's mike in a particular cubicle and criticize and/or praise the student's interpretation of the voice on the taped lesson.

Tapes are run at either three and three-fourths or seven and a half inches depending on the length necessary for a "spacing" during a given lesson.

One French class, taught by Fawcett himself, meets regularly in the language lab. Other foreign language courses (English and Speech 1A are also included), use the labs as a supplement to regular classroom studies.

The labs are not used exclusively for studying, though. Any interested student is welcome to make use of the facilities during an open-hour. Assistance is offered by five student aides throughout the day.

More tapes or selections from Shakespeare are presently available for any type of listening—casual or otherwise. A corner filing cabinet houses dozens of such tapes.

Students are invited to bring their own tapes or in some cases to take certain tapes home for listening on their own recorders.

Appropriations for the new installation were received following passage of the National Defense Education Act of 1958. The labs have been instituted nationally and the response has been highly favorable.

Co-ordinating the labs here are acting Dean of Instruction James Bill-willer and Dean Edward Sandys.

4 Instructors Pay Homage To Common Uncle

By Herman Kilgerman

Most men welcome the arrival of their final discharge papers from the armed services, but at least four instructors here haven't claimed the privilege of receiving such papers and, consequently, still pay occasional homage to Uncle Sam.

These reservists, who last month took brief leaves of absence from the college, included Joseph A. Amor, placement director; John Lippitt, business administration instructor; Alfred Tapon, social science instructor; and John Chapman, engineering instructor.

Each attended a specific function of their branch of the service.

Having had 22 years experience in naval aviation, during which time he attained the rank of captain, Amor was connected with a special assignment involving the Polaris Weapon System in Washington, D. C.

While there, his specific task was in the Manpower Research Office.

Excitement isn't anything new to Lippitt so he didn't consider his experiences on an Air Force reserve leave too unusual this year.

Lead navigator of a mission to drop paratroopers and supplies over a lake in Alaska, he was faced with a number of perplexing incidents.

The most serious of these occurred near Nome, Alaska, when a number of planes (there were 12 in all) under his immediate jurisdiction almost got lost because of bad weather conditions.

As Lippitt, himself, put it humorously, "Snow almost got in the nose wheel wells."

A silly error prompted the next incident. It seemed that the Army at the last minute decided to move a particular drop zone target—and forgot to clue the pilots in on the change.

The flyers followed original plans and everything turned out for the best anyway.

According to Lippitt, an Arctic soldier wearing all the necessary apparatus boosts his body weight at least 100 pounds, making it extremely difficult for such a person to enter or leave a tight enclosure without assistance.

Last spring while returning to the mainland from France, Lippitt, navigating a C119 flying boxcar, noticed that the plane's oil line was broken.

He was forced to land in an obscure place in Spain and was delayed a few days, which forced him to be two days late for his business classes here.

Tapon just returned from an Industrial College of Armed Forces seminar in Ventura, California. He presently holds the rank of Lieutenant colonel in the Army Corps of Engineers.

Among the topics discussed at the triannual meeting were those of general strategy, the cold war, economic conditions and communism.

Chapman, who is a retired naval captain, participated in a reorientation program at Treasure Island for two days recently.

The instructors are eligible for active duty if another world conflict breaks out.

Each has his fingers crossed.

Do You Believe Americans Are Physically Unfit?

By Rodney Van Cleave

Jim Craig Thom, sophomore:

Yes, I do. If you walk downtown and look at the average businessman you'll see a paunchy, fat-jowled, red-faced man panting from the exercise of stepping up to a curb. This is a personal problem and can be remedied only by individuals.

Ed Fawcett, sophomore:

Yes, I believe that Americans are physically unfit. We can see this in the number of men rejected for service in the armed forces.

It seems as though California itself is the central point in America in respect to this weakness.

Harvey Green, sophomore:

I really don't know. I spend a good deal of time sleeping, and I suppose I am a terribly unfit. The whole matter boils down to the degree of importance a person places on physical condition in contrast to how much he appreciates relaxation.

Rosemary Simms, freshman:

Yes. With the American standard of living what it is, physical weakness are almost inevitable. To remain in a healthy condition, a person has to pay constant attention to his diet and exercise habits. I think the attention the government and doctors are giving this problem will help.

Some Americans are in poor physical condition, but I don't think you can pin the label on everyone in general. Food isn't the worst offender as a balanced diet is easily achieved in this country. The root of the problem is lack of exercise.

Jackie Patton, freshman:

You can't classify Americans in general as unfit, at least I couldn't, as all the people I know are in fine shape. I suppose it's an individual rather than a collective problem with its victims hardly confined to this country.

Council Continues Budget Approvals

Problems Arise But 4 Association Requests OK'd

Spirited action was prevalent as the Student Council passed four more budgets last week.

Slashes in the proposed budget continued Thursday. The only exception was the amount allotted to basketball. Here an additional $1173 was supplemented to cover the state championships.

Student Union Chairman Greg Monk reported that the team would receive a share of the profits from the tournament. It was therefore possible that the amount allotted could be returned in whole or in part.

Problems arose during the discussions on the Recreation Association, fencing and publicity budgets.

At one point discussion on an amendment to move $50 from the fencing budget lasted more than 15 minutes.

"As a student card member, I protest the Student Council's handling of this matter," George Woo, past Sophomore president, charged.

His reference was to a shortened debate on the publicity budget. "You spent 20 minutes discussing $50. But you refuse to discuss with the same amount of vigor a budget concerning thousands," Woo further exclaimed.

At the conclusion of the meeting AS President Dan Collins remarked that "too much time is being spent on incidental and irrelevant questions."

Further efforts proposed by Collins to improve communications at the college include the issuance every month of a composite structure for communications media.

"It is hoped we will be able to have live coverage on CCTV," Collins remarked. The first conference is planned, tentatively, within two weeks.

Collins Emphasizes Renewed Student Government Interest

By Bob O'Leary

One of the most important factors in the successful functioning of a representative form of government is a well-informed public.

This is of even more importance in regard to student government, since the majority of students take little, if any, interest in the activities of their representatives.

A good example of this apathy can be seen by observing the election booths at the college during elections.

Realizing the need for more communication between his administration and the student, Associated Student President Dan Collins is emphasizing several new concepts in this respect—for those who like their government in one quick bite.

Among these will be a presidential press conference to be held each month. The conference will be at least one of the following dates: March 14, 21, 28, April 4, 11, 18, 25, May 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, June 6, 13, 20, 27, July 4, 11, 18, 25, August 1, 8, 15, 22, 29, September 5, 12, 19, 26, October 3, 10, 17, 24, 31, November 7, 14, 21, 28, December 5, 12, 19, 26, January 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, February 6, 13, 20, 27, March 6, 13, 20, 27, April 3, 10, 17, 24, 31, May 8, 15, 22, 29, June 5, 12, 19, 26, July 3, 10, 17, 24, 31, August 7, 14, 21, 28, September 4, 11, 18, 25, October 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, November 6, 13, 20, 27, December 3, 10, 17, 24, 31, January 7, 14, 21, 28, February 4, 11, 18, 25, March 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, April 6, 13, 20, 27, May 4, 11, 18, 25, June 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, July 6, 13, 20, 27, August 3, 10, 17, 24, 31, September 7, 14, 21, 28, October 4, 11, 18, 25, November 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, December 7, 14, 21, 28, January 4, 11, 18, 25, February 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, March 7, 14, 21, 28, April 4, 11, 18, 25, May 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, June 7, 14, 21, 28, July 4, 11, 18, 25, August 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, September 7, 14, 21, 28, October 4, 11, 18, 25, November 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, December 7, 14, 21, 28, January 4, 11, 18, 25, February 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, March 7, 14, 21, 28, April 4, 11, 18, 25, May 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, June 7, 14, 21, 28, July 4, 11, 18, 25, August 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, September 7, 14, 21, 28, October 4, 11, 18, 25, November 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, December 7, 14, 21, 28, January 4, 11, 18, 25, February 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, March 7, 14, 21, 28, April 4, 11, 18, 25, May 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, June 7, 14, 21, 28, July 4, 11, 18, 25, August 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, September 7, 14, 21, 28, October 4, 11, 18, 25, November 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, December 7, 14, 21, 28, January 4, 11, 18, 25, February 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, March 7, 14, 21, 28, April 4, 11, 18, 25, May 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, June 7, 14, 21, 28, July 4, 11, 18, 25, August 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, September 7, 14, 21, 28, October 4, 11, 18, 25, November 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, December 7, 14, 21, 28, January 4, 11, 18, 25, February 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, March 7, 14, 21, 28, April 4, 11, 18, 25, May 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, June 7, 14, 21, 28, July 4, 11, 18, 25, August 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, September 7, 14, 21, 28, October 4, 11, 18, 25, November 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, December 7, 14, 21, 28, January 4, 11, 18, 25, February 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, March 7, 14, 21, 28, April 4, 11, 18, 25, May 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, June 7, 14, 21, 28, July 4, 11, 18, 25, August 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, September 7, 14, 21, 28, October 4, 11, 18, 25, November 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, December 7, 14, 21, 28, January 4, 11, 18, 25, February 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, March 7, 14, 21, 28, April 4, 11, 18, 25,

Duggan Most Valuable Player

Cinderella Team Crushes Citrus To Sweep Tourney

By Jerry Littrell

ORANGE COAST COLLEGE, March 10.—The City College of San Francisco "Cinderella" cage squad came south to try for the state crown and the "slipper" fit perfectly tonight when they overran favored Citrus College, 71-56.

Underdogs to this supposedly superior Southern Conference team the Rams snapped out of the slumber that seemed to have engulfed them for the first two games.

Brad Duggan, Chuck Currington, Elton McGriff, Bill Nocetti and Everett Adams all turned in sterling performances in the final game, and Duggan was named Most Valuable Player of the tournament.

Currington completely dominated the all-important rebounds by collecting 18 from the boards while Duggan tanked in 17 points.

McGriff was high for the game in points with 18 while guards Nocetti and Adams each collected 14 digits while turning in a sparkling playmaking performance.

Using a zone defense for the first time in the tournament, the cagers completely stopped the slick passing, smooth shooting Owls and at the same time went through their own offensive plays as easy as if it were a scrimmage.

After the game it was announced that Duggan and McGriff had each been selected to the All-Tournament team.

Diederichsen pointed out that Oakland, Modesto and Stockton will be the teams to beat. Ryder Getz and Tom Edelson of Modesto Junior College and Oakland City College, respectively, will give San Francisco Bob Siska a hard run for individual honors.

"Several members of the team must improve in certain phases of the game to become outstanding," Diederichsen stated, adding, however, that they all have the capabilities. According to Diederichsen, John Kern, Ed Jilka and Rich Anderson will show a great deal of accomplishment by midseason.

Plans Begin For Block SF Banquet

Louis Vasquez, track coach and sponsor of the Block SF, hopes to get Howie Dallmar, Stanford basketball coach, as the guest speaker for the semiannual awards banquet given by the Block SF.

Plans have already begun for the awards dinner, which will occur sometime in June, Vasquez stated. The banquet honors all spring sports participants. At this time block letters, trophies and other forms of recognition will be given to all deserving athletes at the college.

Members of the basketball team will receive team jackets bearing the college emblem, by virtue of their winning the Big Eight Conference title.

Working with Vasquez for the awards banquet are the Block SF's four newly elected officers.

'Misfits' Stumble To State Championships

NO MATTER what the basketball squad may or may not have accomplished at the state finals, it has been an exciting and rewarding year for the cagers.

However, the season wasn't without its mishaps, most of them humorous. For instance: When a member of The Guardsman sports staff was cleaning out an old pile of papers from his desk he came upon a crumpled piece of paper.

Curiosity being one of the stronger traits in a good newspaperman, he straightened out the creased sheet and saw a few notes that had been hastily scrawled.

These notes were written by last semester's sports reporters concerning this year's varsity cage squad. The scribbled notes went something like this: "Team weak—not outstanding material—not much noticeable talent—mediocre as a team—fourth place finish at best."

One person tried to ride the car out en route to another city during the season, Sid Phelan & Co. not only found themselves in the middle of a heated championship race but also stranded in the middle of a mud puddle during a rainstorm.

Six members of the squad were traveling with Phelan to Contra Costa for a game. After pulling off the freeway they were on their way to the Commodore gymnasium.

Phelan decided to switch his lights to low beam. Around them were flat fields on which rain had been pouring all day. This combination equals but one thing—mist.

When the lights got on high beam they saw that they were not on the road but right in the middle of the sticky fields.

The car was stuck. So Phelan said those two words so dear to everyone's heart at that moment. "Everybody out."

He stayed in to "drive the car out once the fog was lightened." It was really a sight to see. Charles Currington, 6-4, was buried 6-3 in mud while Gene Batiste slid over everything trying to get out on foot.

Spikers Enter Big Eight Relays Friday

Rain-Hampered Rams Seek Title Protection At Sacto

Aiming for the Big Eight crown for the fourth straight year, the Ram track team will compete in the conference relays Friday at Sacramento.

The season was scheduled to start March 2 against Mather Field and Modesto Junior College, however, rain put a damper on the meet.

Last year in the relays Alex Darnes and Bob Ely won their events. Darnes heaved the discus 145-5 while Ely tied a standing record set by three previous 1959 competitors in the pole vault by soaring 13 feet.

Another still untouched record won by the college team in the relays is the distance relay event set in 1960 with a speed of 11:04.4 minutes.

Vasquez has high expectations for the two distance events consisting of the distance medley and the two-mile run. He pointed out that Tony Ferrigno, Esteban Valle, Roger Ritchey, Richard Byers, Steve Jackson, Andy Loebey, John Weidinger and George Varmuza will be instrumental in these events.

Because of the absence of meets, the overall condition of the squad is uncertain. "They have been suffering from lack of practice because of rain; however, a large number of men reporting for the workouts are showing a keen team spirit," Vasquez noted.

The only injury to date has been the badly sprained ankle of broad jumper and sprinter Jim Waterfield. This promising rookie will be out of action for six weeks, according to Vasquez.

During the rainy weather the team has been practicing on the Jefferson High School field, which has a good drainage system. They have also been working out in the weight room, and between rains, practicing on the college track.

Whether they were to "loosen up" muscles or muck still remains a mystery.

REMEMBER WHEN: After the harrowing win over San Mateo which gave the Rams the league crown, Phelan received a telephone call from an irate Daly City high school basketball mentor.

Phelan had violated every unwritten law in the Coaches' Code. Man's last sanctuary had been invaded by women.

Phelan had allowed his wife to sit with him on the team bench throughout the game. It almost came to the point of removing Phelan from the Benevolent Brotherhood of Basketball Brains for his unforgivable act.

A PASSING THOUGHT: The same forementioned sports star gagers also wrote that the San Francisco Giants would never win a pennant until it snowed in San Francisco. Two weeks later a mantle of white covered (almost) our fair city.

Followers of the Fly-Chasers, arise. There is still hope (maybe).

Frosh Hosts Semiannual Ball Friday At St. Francis

With their theme An Affair To Remember, the freshmen will present their semiannual Frosh Ball from 9 p.m. to 12 midnight this Friday, March 23, in the Colonial, Italian and Georgian Rooms of the St. Francis Hotel, Vince Contreras, class president, announced this week.

Providing music will be Maury Wolohan and his orchestra. Bid priority to members of the Freshman Class ends today. Tomorrow and Friday, until the supply runs out, the Associated Students will be able to secure bids at the information booth in Science Hall between the hours of 9 to 2 p.m.

The quota of 500 couples was adopted by Student Council last spring in order to prevent the recurrence of the overcrowded condition which prevailed at the Frosh Ball in Fall, 1960, where two bands were used in two separate rooms.

Contreras emphasized that students must present their registration and AS cards at the booth. The cards will be checked against a list provided by the administration. They must also have their date's name available at that time.

Dress will be semiformal, cocktail dresses for the women and dark suits for the men, Contreras added.

Highlighting festivities will be the traditional "cutest couple" contest. Tallies and identifying number boards will be distributed to prospective candidates upon entrance to the dance. One member of each couple must be a freshman to enter the contest.

Couples will be judged on appearance, dancing and beauty, with the process of elimination to determine the final winners.

Two trophies, donated by Phi Beta Rho sorority and Alpha Sigma Delta fraternity, will be awarded to the winning couple.

Prizes of bougainvillees, corsages and flowers will be given by Gamma Kappa Beta sorority, Alpha Phi Epsilon fraternity and Zeta Phi Sigma fraternity.

A photographer will be present in the Georgian Room, adjacent to the two ballrooms, where a soft drink bar will also be situated.

Freshman Class officers working with Contreras are Rich Thomas, vice president; Susan Beedie, recording secretary; Lana Holliday, social secretary; Imogene Walker, social secretary; and Nora Solis, treasurer.

Appointed to specific responsibilities by Contreras are committee chairmen Miss Beedie for invitations, Kathy Rederick for distribution, Miss Walker for publicity, Miss Holliday for service and Thomas for tallies.

Patrons of the Frosh Ball are Mr. and Mrs. Leland Beedie, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. del Castillo, Jules Fraden, Ruth Insipig, Pat McCarthy, Maurice Power and Mr. and Mrs. Wolf Starnes.

For complete texts, see page 3.) Associated Student President Dan Collins presented each member of the team with a copy of the proclamation honoring the team.

At that point, a deeply moved Coach Phelan spoke. "This reception makes it a little difficult to speak. But I do want to thank everyone for doing so much for our team. This is not just a gratuitous statement. Your help really meant a lot."

"One thing meant as much to me as winning. And that was the greeting of the team on its return," Phelan added.

College President Louis G. Conlan, presenting the official messages, commended the desire of a team that won only four of its 11 preseason contests, and then captured the state championship.

"I don't want it to be said of this team that it was entirely coaching," Phelan remarked later. "All season I've heard this team was composed of second-rate material. These boys are great ballplayers and they deserve to be recognized as such. Remember, I was coaching during the preseason games, too."

Of the nine budgets resolved this week, the Pick and Hammer Society request proved the most provocative, prefaced by it reporting this was "setting a precedent for all other clubs on campus." She continued, "This is the first time a club has requested funds from the Student Council. I feel these items will benefit the campus, but the decision is up to you."

Greg Monk, student union chairman, submitted that the manner in which Pick and Hammer had obtained membership in his geology class was objectionable to him.

"They asked for the hands of student cardholders, and then took down their names before requesting whether or not the students were interested in membership."

The request for funds was rejected, 8 to 6.—By B.O.L.

Shower Of Fashion, in order to introduce them to campus activities.

"The tea and fashion show has always been a highly successful and enjoyable affair, being a highlight of each semester, and it once again promises to be extremely worthwhile to attend," Miss Rommel emphasized.

Committee chairmen for the tea are Marjorie Marcell, in charge of refreshments; Diane O'Neil, decorations; Paulette Wall, models; Lyn Fout, publicity, and Wendy Dickson, entertainment.

Other chairmen include Nettie Cook, setup; Barbara Sperring, hospitality; Diane Moore, invitations; Maureen Farley, programs; Wendy Herring, registration, and Sherry Spindel, photography.

First place at the meet was won by San Francisco State College, while Humboldt College came in third. Two members of the college tied for third place.

pared to past seasons, Hubley believes that they have added much needed depth that the 1961 squad lacked. The team is much improved all around.

AS Card Sale. Winners Take Awards At Ball

Wendy Dickson, 19-year-old Associated Women Student member, will be awarded a transistor radio for her sales of Associated Student cards this Friday at the semiannual Frosh Ball.

Although the goal of 3000 AS cards was not reached, Miss Dickson took the first place prize by selling more than 200 cards.

The drive ends Friday. Competition for second and third places was high with both Dave Oley, sophomore council member, and Andy Shammyeh selling more than 150.

The second and third place prizes, also to be awarded at the Frosh Ball, will be a pair of tickets to the movie El Cid.

Bill Reichert, card sales chairman, reported sales were well over 1000, normal for a spring semester.

Last spring the goal was set at 2300, and sales fell several hundred short. The fall semester, usually hitting the 3000 mark, is almost always the highest for sales, Reichert commented.

Last spring John Azzaro, selling 275 cards, was the winner, but the second and third place finishers fell short of this year's two and three with sales of 65 and 58.

Even when the contest is over, Reichert said that cards will still be available.

He also stated that if a student wishes to support the Associated Students he should support the students' store, the Ramprorium.

All 20 Technician Graduates Get Jobs

Electronic engineering technician students who completed study here in February have all been successfully placed in industry, according to Joseph A. Amori, placement director here.

The acceleration in the missile field, created by huge increases in the military budget, opened many job opportunities for the February class of graduates in the technical areas. One firm, located in the center of the missile industry, has agreed to accept all of the electronic graduates.

Of the 20 graduates in the electronic engineering technician field, 11 are on the payroll of Hewlett-Packard in Palo Alto. The remainder are at Fairchild Corporation, Itham Electronics, Lockheed, Sylvania and Litton Industries.

The average salary for these men was $425-500 per month depending upon the usual entry formula.

There were only a small group of graduates in the remaining engineering training programs. These included seven graduates who were placed with the Lawrence Radiation Laboratory, Pacific Telephone and Telegraph, and the Pacific Gas and Electric Company.

An engineering recruitment day is scheduled in May for 75 prospective June graduates.

Applications For Dental Lab Exam Due April 15

Students who are currently enrolled here and wish to complete in the entering examinations for the dental laboratory technology class are advised by Frank Sehnzer, dental technology instructor, to file applications as soon as possible.

Sehnzer stated that all applicants for the Fall, 1962, class must be filed no later than April 15. These applications may be obtained in S-208 from 1 to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. They should be turned in at the same office, Sehnzer said.

Ex-Student's One Man Photo Show Gives Faculty Gallery New Look

Faculty Gallery took on a "new look" this week when Emmett Smith, in charge of the Cloud Hall photo displays, introduced his second one-man show of the semester featuring the photography of Fred Pardini, former student and currently a photographer with The San Francisco Examiner.

Thirty-two-year-old news cameraman Pardini has handled practically every job from the bottom to the top in photo-journalism.

Early Preparation For Blood Drive Insures Donor Protection

IN SPRING a young man's fancy turns to thoughts of love. That is, in most cases.

By some strange, inexplicable phenomenon, however, the thoughts of the Inter-Fraternity Council have turned to something which can only remotely, and with a lively imagination, be related to love.

It is at this time that the IFC starts promoting the annual blood drive to be held on April 5 and 6 this year.

Participation in this campaign, which has been highly successful in the past, is open to anyone who is now at City College, including students, faculty and civil service employees, and members of the Alumni Association.

Any members of their families may also donate blood and can benefit from the drive.

Donors may make withdrawals from the blood bank in one of the two following ways during the next year:

- (1) An unlimited amount may be obtained once during the year for the donors or for immediate members of their families.
- (2) Eight pints of blood may be drawn for any person whom the donor designates.

The blood drive merits recognition for its past record, its goals, and, most important, for its beneficial value to those who are involved in an emergency.

Emergencies, by definition, arise suddenly and unexpectedly. Not everyone can be prepared to bear the immediate emotional impact of a crisis.

The worry can be lessened considerably if the financial aspects are covered by insurance of any sort. And a donation of one pint of blood during this drive is the premium for one year of coverage.

Making preparations now to donate during the days of the drive can save time and possible discomfort since there are a few things which should be remembered.

Students under 21 years of age must have written permission from their parents to give.

For this purpose, The Guardsman has printed on page 3 a permission form which may be clipped, filled out and turned in to the office of the dean of men.

Everyone should remember that a full meal (fat-free), and a good night's rest before donating will help counteract any side effects which might otherwise bother an individual.

This is a fraternity service which we feel cannot receive too much support, and which will certainly be worth the time expended.

A few minutes on April 5 and 6 can save a lot of dollars later.

Campus PanoRAMa Do You Believe That College Midterms Are Necessary?

Diana Moore, freshman:
I don't think that midterms are really that necessary. Just as much or even more can be accomplished by having quizzes or tests each week. Weekly tests require that the student constantly keep up with the work going on in class. Cramming before midterms would also be eliminated.

See Cantasy, sophomore:
I like them because they provide an incentive to study. After checking my midterm grades I acquire some initiative to work harder for an even better grade. If it weren't for the midterms, I couldn't be sure of how I was coming along in my classes. I really think they should stay.

Roger Gayard, freshman:
They are necessary, but I think that midterms should depend on the type of class the student is taking. A class like elementary basket weaving doesn't need a midterm, while it would be hard to get along without a midterm in a class such as chemistry or physics.

Henry Anderson, sophomore:
I think that biweekly tests would serve a better purpose than midterms twice a semester. Midterms put too much stress on the student, and they don't give a good example of the work he can do. Everyone has a bad day once in a while, and if it's yours, it's just too bad.

Karen Goodan, sophomore:
I believe that midterms are really worth the time and effort. They give the student a chance to review the work he has been doing. They build up to the final and give a good idea of what it will be like. I do think that more emphasis should be placed on a final rather than midterms.

Ian Minnie, freshman:
When I was attending college at Westminster College in Utah, we had only one midterm. The students there were a little more mature and one midterm was sufficient. Now that I am here I believe that two midterms are needed at a two-year college to keep up student interest in his studies.

Barbara Olson, freshman:
One midterm is plenty. I don't particularly like the idea of midterms. They come too often. You get through studying for one and another pops up. I think that the students are capable of remembering what has happened in class, but two midterms are too difficult.

Larry Cantrell, sophomore:
The way the testing program is set up now is fine. Constant testing acts as a sharpening agent on the mind of the student. I do, however, think that three midterms would be too many. Two midterms are the most effective and the best for learning.

Instructor Compares German, American Education Systems

There are those who oppose the liberal educational system of America as being inferior to the more disciplined European product. Opponents of the American system generally voice their complaints in the following manner:

Nearly all Europeans speak several languages; American students have trouble mastering English. Foreign students receive better training. They take their studies more seriously. American students prefer to think of education as an extended holiday.

It is difficult to deny the validity of most of these statements. Indeed, these questions cause one to ponder the current state of education in this country.

The opportunity to explore, at least to some degree, this problem arose recently in an interview with Gisela Nordby, German instructor here.

Mrs. Nordby is in a unique position to compare the two systems. She completed undergraduate work in Dusseldorf, Germany. Then she finished three years of graduate study at Stanford.

"The major difference I have seen is the feeling of co-operation between the teacher and pupil in America," she stated. "In Germany we were more hesitant to ask questions because of an exaggerated fear of our teachers."

In order to clarify the comparison, Mrs. Nordby gave the following explanation of the European system.

As in America, there are 12 years of compulsory schooling. However, the division is different. Elementary school is attended by all students for four years.

Then there are three further divisions.

600 Pastries
Smith Hall
Fattens 70%
Of Students

City College, well known for having one of the finest hotel and restaurant divisions, may soon be recognized as the biggest eating institution west of the Mississippi.

Recent figures show that the Smith Hall cafeteria now feeds 70 per cent of the enrolled students. And boy, do they eat a lot!

Pierre Coste, formerly an executive chef at the Mark Hopkins and St. Francis Hotels, has the figures to prove it.

Each morning 540 to 600 eggs and 60 pounds of bacon go into the preparation for breakfast, and 500 to 600 sandwiches are sold during the lunch hours.

A total of 600 hamburgers and 150 hot dogs are dispensed, and on top of the edibles go about 18½ pounds of relish, mustard and catsup.

If your fellow students' stomachs are to be expanding in the middle lately, the probable cause is the 500 to 600 portions of cakes, pies and desserts sold each day. Or the 300 orders of spaghetti that students purchase, or how about the four gallons of ice cream.

A contributing factor could be the 400 eight-ounce orders of French fries. For the potato supply, the college orders six to eight sacks each day.

A total of 400 plate lunches, 200 meat orders, a la carte and 200 salads are sold each day.

In an effort to escape the cold winter mornings and to stay awake through the early morning classes, students purchase about 63 gallons of coffee, or a little over 1000 cups.

Students keep their stomachs warm with approximately 20 to 25 gallons of soup. In the summer months or on hot days, the soup level will drop as low as 12 gallons.

Other liquid sales run six gallons for hot chocolate, 20 for milk shakes, 50 for cokes, five for juices, and 300 gallons for lemonade.

Working without government aid, the restaurant functions with 27 paid helpers. Students, providing the remaining help, enable the cafeteria to charge substantially low prices.

Left-overs are used as sauces for foods the next day. Nothing is thrown away if it can be used. All measures are taken to insure clean and safe food. Various signs and rules on the walls of the kitchen indicate this sanitation.

The motto of hotel and restaurant is Work In The Four-Leaf Word That Should Never Be Censored.

GISELA NORDBY, instructor here, who completed undergraduate work in Dusseldorf, Germany, compares American and German education systems.

week summer vacation. And the school week is on a six-day basis. Concentrated study in the gymnasium is in three separate categories:

1. Classical Languages—with the emphasis on Latin and Greek.
2. Science—the emphasis here is on mathematics.
3. Modern European Languages—English and French are the required languages in this department.

As a student in the modern European language department, Mrs. Nordby began studying English when she was in the fifth grade. She studied French in the seventh grade, and began Spanish instruction in the 10th.

"I am very much in favor of beginning the study of foreign languages earlier in American schools," Mrs. Nordby said. "I believe geography is the main reason for different emphasis on languages here and in Europe."

"Until recently, the United States has felt it was apart from Europe. And therefore the knowledge of that continent's languages wasn't felt necessary."

She listed as the study advantages under the gymnasium, more self-discipline, better study habits and more general information.

"But I don't think that system would work here. Our emphasis is geared to a more well-rounded individual. To obtain some clarification, these questions were put to Dr. Lloyd Luckmann, co-ordinator of curriculum."

"Since a grade must be filled three times a semester for each student, a midterm exam forms the basis of that grade," Dr. Luckmann replied. "The primary function therefore is as a progress report."

He indicated further that midterms grades have three tangible functions:

1. As an indication to students of their own accomplishments.
2. As a warning for students on probation.
3. And as the basis, in some instances, of awarding scholarships.

Still, perhaps, there is more to midterms than this. What, for example, is required of the individual instructor, in respect to midterms.

"The only requirement is that an instructor must file a grade for each student at the end of the midterm period," Dr. Luckmann reiterated.

Departments can develop their own general rules for grade determination. Administrative requirements call only for the grade itself rather than a certain type of testing.

"This flexibility gives full dominion over the manner in which the course will be conducted and the student evaluated by the instructor in charge," he emphasized. "I feel this is an extremely important factor."

Such a latitude allowed each instructor (and expressing a desire for similar student freedom), the highest order of an inquiring press, the next step was in the office of Mary Jane Learnard, registrar.

MINOR PROBLEMS: At a Student Council meeting, Sophomore Greg Monk moved that the Recreation Association budget review be postponed because his figures were off by $10.

Before Monk sat down, and with the words still slipping from his mouth, Dave Oley, sophomore council member, found the error (not on the floor) but in the finance sheet. Everyone in the room had one (finance sheet).

SIGHT VS. MIND: "All books out of sight, preferably under the desk," shouted the instructor at his class about to embark on a French midterm.

Flung back a student with equal volume, "Out of sight, out of mind." The instructor's retort: "What is mind? It's no matter. What is matter? It's no mind." That ended that.

The Spectator Route 66, Naked City Via Silliphant In LA

JAMES MICHENER, Tennessee Williams, Edna Ferber and Stirling Silliphant have the distinction and privilege of being the four highest paid writers in history.

The first three names are familiar to anyone who can read, but the fourth will not be identified easily by most, although the name is as close to the public as its television screens.

Stirling Silliphant is the originator of two of the best weekly series on television, Naked City and Route 66. He has also written the movies Mo'Nasty, Five Against the House, The Joe Lewis Story, and Pakistan, which will soon be released.

"Why should I work for a year on a movie which reaches two million people when I can write for television and reach 46 million people every week," Silliphant has said.

Furthermore, it is the studio that makes most of the profits on motion pictures and not the writer. One does not let a fact like that slip by if he intends to put himself in the top-four category.

Being a high man on the totem pole is no new attitude for Silliphant. He was graduated from the University of Southern California in two years with the highest grade point in his history.

A good measuring stick for the weekly series is whether the viewer can remember the story the next day. In most cases he will not. If he can

Exploration Midterms May Be A Nuisance But Exams Are Here To Stay

By Bob O'Leary.

Perhaps the most recurrent question among beleaguered students this past week was, "Have you finished your midterms yet?"

There is probably no other topic at the college of so much concern to students, and of which so little is actually known. With the possible exception of the twice-semester "nuisance" of the exams themselves.

Are they really necessary? What is their effect on the final grade? Why midterms at all?

These are some of the questions puzzled students ponder upon every midterm period.

On this order, the search for enlightenment began.

To obtain some clarification, these questions were put to Dr. Lloyd Luckmann, co-ordinator of curriculum.

"In the last midterm period, 81 students were disqualified. In these cases they were all receiving D's and F's, and it was evident they weren't trying to succeed."

Brady observed that this was the most efficient way to keep a constant check on readmitted students. If they are not meeting the conditions of their readmittance, a letter is sent as a warning.

"However, in my experience, when a student makes the list the first midterm, it is usually an indication that his final product will be approximately the same," Brady commented.

From this informal tally into the intellectual problems confronting the college student, the following conclusions can be drawn:

1. The actual handling of midterm tests is left entirely to the instructor. He can place as much or as little emphasis on them as he chooses in determining the final grade.
2. The midterm grades act as a check on the student. In this regard they are important for a good student whose scholarship application is contingent on his midterm grade, as for that student hovering precariously near dismissal.

As a final note to students still struggling through the abyss of despair, midterms are here to stay. But be stout of heart, for it is rumored that instructors also find them a problem.

The Good Ol' Daze— Men Scream For Militia While Women Rebel Over Equal Rights

By Dave Grieve

AN amateur philosopher once coined the notable phrase, "Gentlemen, I think you're all out of your minds."

If American males submit to the female drive which women proudly term "equal rights," in the past designated as "women's suffrage," the quotation is certainly applicable.

This columnist calls it "rebellion." Found primarily in the United States, but spreading (like all diseases), the need for the fair sex to unchain itself from the zipper-lipped, obedient, patient and understanding stereotype of yesterday into a green-eyed tiger willing to step on a few shoes to reach the same plateau as their opposites, is hardly a laughing matter.

These clubs, gentlemen, are a breeding spot for the female underground movement.

Garden clubs, community benefit organizations, and especially the bridge clubs, are only superficial names connotating nothing.

If a husband happened into one of his wife's tea parties undisciplined, within one minute he would be running for the state militia screaming premeditated murder!

Awareness of the story, the underhanded tactics of the female specie is the only intent of this writer. But possibly the ideal male outlook on womanhood could be summed up by this golden rule.

A woman's opinion should be treated like an antique spinning wheel stored in the attic—climb the stairs occasionally to marvel at it, but never put it to use.

Time Limit Curtain Goes Up March 30

Time Limit, first major theatrical production of the college year, is undergoing intensive rehearsal sessions as opening night draws near.

Michael Griffin, drama director here, stated the curtain goes up at 8 p.m. on Friday, March 30, in the campus theater.

The show will run for two weeks and there will be no admission charge for Associated Student cardholders. Others can purchase tickets for $1 each.

When the play opened on Broadway seven years ago, one of its feature actors was Frank Aletter, husband of former student Lee Ann Meriwether who won the title of Miss America in 1957.

Time Limit is the story of an American major accused of treason during the Korean War. The show is essentially a low budget production, since there are only two sets.

Costumes and props are not extravagant, because the current action takes place in the army base office of the judge advocate, and then goes back to the prison camp as characters remember activities that took place, Griffin explained.

Griffin has assembled a cast with extensive theater background. Almost all have had nonprofessional little theater experience, while several have had professional work.

The play is a contemporary theme in an impressive manner, and should have strong appeal for students, Griffin said.

State Basketball Title, Top Offices Give College Lead Role In CJCSCA Conference

Representing what is perhaps the most influential two-year college in the state, City College delegates will take a major part in the March 29-31 California Junior College Student Government Association conference in Los Angeles, Dan Collins, Associated Student president, predicted yesterday.

Collins attributed the college's important position to several factors, two of which are its recent state basketball championship and the fact that two of the three offices in the conference, state co-ordinator and information chairman, are held by Gail Margolin.

The conference, to be held at the Billmore Hotel, will be attended by representatives of 70 two-year colleges in California.

The AS president said that the three-day program will be divided into five workshops. They will discuss the duties of the presidential office, current problems relating to two-year colleges, the two-year college as a cultural center, intramural and recreational activities, and finance.

The presidential workshop will debate such problems as the legal status of fraternities and sororities and whether they should be privately or administratively controlled.

The current problems workshop will be generally concerned with the image of the two-year college. Publicity and censorship in newspapers and the problems of a student union are two subjects which will be discussed.

Culture on campus, the basic theme of the third group, includes the publishing of the college's cultural events, encouraging the community to attend these, and the orientation of foreign students to the college's culture.

Greater participation and a more diversified program in athletics will be discussed by the intramural and recreational workshop.

The finance group will cover better methods of advertising and new sources of income for the Associated Students other than through card sales.

Citing the Inter-Fraternity Council Blood Drive as an example, Collins plans to put forth a recommendation that other two-year colleges have similar community projects.

The program is designed to be beneficial to those men who plan to transfer to a university offering a Naval training program. Upon completion of the summer course, students enroll in any of the 52 accredited colleges offering a Naval Reserve program throughout the country.

Previously, the NROTC program was restricted to students attending a college where the program was offered.

Subjects dealing with naval orientation, evolution of seapower, naval weapons and psychology, both personal and social, will be included in the training program.

Upon graduation from an accredited college, enlistees will be commissioned ensigns in the Naval Reserve or second lieutenants in the Marine Corps Reserve.

Men desiring further information can consult Hillman in S-148 or Captain W. C. Meyers, professor of naval sciences, University of California, Berkeley.

IFC Teams Clash Tonight As Intramural Games Start; 12 Squads Enter Cage Tourney

Members of the Inter-Fraternity Council league start their intramural basketball competition today when Alpha Kappa Rho meets Gamma Phi Upsilon and Alpha Sigma Delta plays Zeta Phi Sigma at 7:15 and 8:15 p.m., respectively, in the men's gymnasium.

Last night saw the first round of Associated Men Student sponsored competition for this semester's intramural crown as the teams from the Club Activities Board clashed against each other.

Netters Set Mark In 7-0 Victory Over Contra Costa

Breaking or at least tying a two-year college record, the college tennis team performed the highest possible feat in tennis in dumping Contra Costa Junior College 6-0 in all 14 sets to win 7-0 on the Comets' home court.

Bob Siska, a 19-year-old ex-Junior Davis Cup member, is the number one man and holds the key to Ram hopes for a title.

Other team members are Rich Anderson, Ed Jilka, Jack Kern and Rich Murray.

Improving as the season progresses, the netters will meet Modesto Junior College at 2:30 p.m. Friday at Modesto, Coach Roy Diederichsen stated.

Modesto was upset already this season by the Mustangs of Stockton, 7-3.

The Pirates, however, are no push-over; they are led by Ryder Getz, the second best two-year college player in the state last year.

Coach Diederichsen pointed out that the Rams are looking better and better and have good balance. "If everyone plays according to his capabilities, we should win against Modesto," Diederichsen said.

The week before the team defeated Contra Costa the Comets downed Sacramento City College, 6-1.

All of the netters' home games are scheduled for the Golden Gate Park courts on Fridays.

Following is the schedule:

- April 4—San Jose
- April 6—Oakland City College
- April 10—California
- April 13—Santa Rosa Jr. College
- April 16—Santa Clara
- April 25—Menlo
- April 27—Sacramento City
- May 4, 6—Big 8 Championship
- May 11, 12—Sectional
- May 18, 19—State Junior College Championship

13 Colleges Vie For Fencing Title Here

By Francine Dubonnet

Approximately 150 students will be participating in the Intercollegiate Fencing Association meet to be held from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. this Saturday in the college's men's gymnasium, Lene Johnson, fencing instructor, announced yesterday.

At this 10-hour fencing meet, a total of 13 two-year and four-year colleges and universities will be represented. All teams will compete in round robin events.

Associated Students wishing to host, score or work in another activity concerning this event may sign up in Mrs. Johnson's office in the women's gymnasium.

The first place trophy is currently held by San Francisco State College.

In 20 matches, the college's fencing teams were defeated only twice by Modesto Junior College on March 16. The teams also won eight out of nine bouts.

Members of the "A" team were Stuart Funke, Harry Jorgensen, Bob Lawrence and Bill Lindo, while team "B" was composed of Pok Pan, Yoshida Takouchi and Frank Wong, captain.

Horsehiders Split With Mustangs In Doubleheader, Face Bulldogs On Friday

Weak Pitching Halts Rams; Pearce Sparkles In 4-3 Win

By Jerry Littrell

Lacking a solid second line pitcher the Ram diamondmen could only earn a split with the Mustangs from Stockton City College winning the opening game 4-3 and dropping the night-cap contest 10-1 last Saturday at Balboa Field.

San Mateo will be the next foe for the baseball team as they face the Bulldogs this Friday at Fitzgerald Park in San Mateo. The Rams will be up against a strong Matean squad and will have to be at their defensive best to beat these pre-season favorites.

Behind the steady four-hit hurling of righthander John Pearce the locals staged a late inning rally against the Mustangs to come from behind and chalk up their first conference win.

Pearce scattered four hits in his nine inning stint on the mound. Of the three runs Stockton scored only one of them was earned.

Stockton managed to escape two runs in the fourth inning on an error, a walk, a hit and a passed ball by Ram catcher Jim Carroll. The only earned run came in the eighth inning on a hit, two infield ground balls and a wild pitch by Pearce.

The Rams blew a chance for an early lead when in the second inning George Johnson singled to center field and Carroll followed by getting on base by virtue of an error by the Mustang shortstop.

However, in the third inning the Rams broke the ice on a single by Pearce, a sacrifice by George Tauber and a long double by Lou Bevilacqua.

Losing by one run going into the sixth frame Don Kunkle and Dennis Russell combined with a walk and a triple, respectively, to tie the score.

Then in the eighth inning Carroll walked, Norris and Pearce came up with back to back singles and Don Meroff doubled home the winning run to tie the victory.

In the second game Coach Lee Eisan sent Kunkle ball Kunkle to the mound as the starting pitcher. He got by the first inning but was touched for one run in the second frame.

Everything exploded in the third inning, however, as Stockton sent 13 men to the plate while gathering eight runs off of the combined hurling efforts of Kunkle and reliever Meroff.

In getting the eight runs the Mustangs capitalized on five hits, three walks and two Ram errors.

Kunkle left the game with the bags loaded and nobody out in the third inning after five runs had scored. Meroff came in from third base to relieve Kunkle but his offerings did not meet with any better reception.

After the interval Eisan took all of his regulars out of the lineup and gave his rookies a chance to show what they could do. In the seven inning game the horsehiders could come up with only one run.

Directing and officiating at this competition were Mrs. Johnson and her husband, who attended the matches as spectators.

Sportsmanship is What Counts was the motto of a March 17 Santa Rosa Junior College basketball sports day, during which the Recreation Association women's basketball team lost in a game with San Jose City College.

At this competition a special demonstration game by the Chico State College and Humboldt College teams was put on with rules similar to men's basketball.

On Monday, April 2, the Badminton Club will compete with Mission High School there.

Archers interested in contending with the RA's archery team on Saturday, April 28, at Contra Costa College are invited to sign up in the women's gymnasium.

Tentative plans are being made for a round robin tennis tournament of eight teams in April. This sports night is to be one of the highlights of the RA's spring 1962 semester.

Last Friday the fencing team left for competition at Los Angeles Valley College and on Saturday to badminton and bowling teams, with Elizabeth Wirth as sponsor, ventured to Napa Junior College for their sports night.

No one gave these players much of a chance with the Bay Area fans because, since the departure of the Seals (baseball), big time major league players had come to this area in the person of the San Francisco Giants.

However, a surprising 5000 fans have journeyed to the Cow arena during the past season to watch this fast moving, action-packed game. They have gone home satisfied and anxious to return again.

The Seals (ice hockey) have provided thrills galore for their fans, while the only thing the Giants gave their fans were chills, and that from the wind, not from their inspirational plays.

Also, the Seals are battling for a third spot finish. This is just about the same level where the Giants seem to be content to stay.

When the facts are all boiled down, it seems that the "minor league" ice hockey Seals are providing more action and enjoyment for their fans than the "major league" Giants are to their followers.

As anyone who has seen a hockey game can tell, the only real difference between the two is that the action is supplied by the ice men—the San Francisco Seals—the minor league—in ratings but major league in entertainment.

Fencers Upset Air Force; Take Foil Division Title

Rated underdogs at the start of competition, the Ram fencing team walked away with top foil division honors in the Western Intercollegiate Fencing Conference championships last week at Los Angeles Valley College.

Eleven other West Coast colleges also competed in the eight-hour tournament which saw the Air Force Academy, winner of this foil championship 29 consecutive times, eliminated from a final spot in the top three.

Some of the audience arrived at the theater in formal or semiformal attire and Phyllis Webb, president of Highteens and official hostess for the affair, presented the wives of numerous guests with corsages.

During intermission groups gathered in the lobby decorated with a myriad of flowers to see a photographic display of the show and the celebrated Diego Rivera mural. Refreshments were served at this time.

Also on display in the lobby was Mayor George Christopher's statement encouraging public support of what he considers a commendable project.

One highlight of the evening came from Governor Edmund Brown in the form of a congratulatory message in which he said that he hoped to attend the April 6 performance.

Thronges of friends and well-wishers crowded the backstage area after the performance to congratulate Griffin and his actors.—By A.M.P.

When the final tally was in Lindo had taken third place while Jorgensen missed second place by only one touch.

In the foil competition, California Polytechnic College placed second, while the squad from San Francisco State College followed in third.

The Air Force team neglected even to bring the trophy with them on their trip from Denver. Thus when the Rams did take first place the trophy had to be flown out by jet to the site of the competition.

Improved Swim Squad Faces T-Birds Friday

Slowly but steadily coming into its own, the swimming team will meet Oakland City College Friday at Oakland and Monday will face Sacramento City College on the Panther campus.

The mermen lost their second league meet against Stockton City College on March 16 on the Stockton campus, 32-42.

However, Coach Roy Burkhead was pleased with Chuck Greninger, who did his best time in the 220 free style event, taking a first place spot and coping a second place in the 440 free style in the meet.

Showing vast improvement, Rollin Randall took a close second in the diving competition.

Open elections for Associated Student officers will be held campus-wide May 23 and 24, Rich Aguilar, elections commissioner, announced at last week's Student Council meeting.

In open elections, all registered students will be eligible to vote. In all previous votes only those students holding Associated Student cards had the privilege of casting ballots.

"This will be the first time open elections have been held at the college," Aguilar stated. "It is hoped this will increase student participation in elections."

Joining a growing list of notable achievements by the college this year, the fencing team was cited by Student Council for having won the Western Intercollegiate fencing championships recently.

Other action included the passage Thursday of the Men's Glee Club budget.

AMS officers—Cherniss, John Theilman, vice president; Jim Fuller, secretary, and Mike Milano, treasurer—all urged any student to offer any idea that might help the college.

Other activities planned for the semester will be a smoker and sports night. Exact dates for these events have not been chosen as yet.

This year's traditional sports night has an additional bonus of the volleyball championship game from the newly formed "intramural volleyball league."

In addition to this will be the usual intramural basketball championship game and the boxing finals.

The plans for the smoker include a sports movie and a guest speaker.

Near Sell-Out Greet Opening Of Time Limit

Time Limit played to a near sell-out crowd at its opening last Friday in the arts building theater. This is the third full scale performance in the new theater, which opened in April of 1960 but the first to attract a maximum audience.

The performance was received enthusiastically by the audience, who broke into the performance on numerous occasions to applaud individual efforts.

To make Time Limit more convenient to students of the college, Director Michael Griffin has scheduled the play to be shown during the double College Hour Friday.

The show will be repeated Friday and Saturday evenings this weekend, and tickets may be purchased for $1 at the student bank in Smith Hall or at the theater box office. Associated Student cardholders are admitted without charge.

Some of the audience arrived at the theater in formal or semiformal attire and Phyllis Webb, president of Highteens and official hostess for the affair, presented the wives of numerous guests with corsages.

New Earthquake Line—It's Our Fault, But It's Not OUR Fault

SINCE the college name was changed from San Francisco Junior College to City College of San Francisco on February 12, 1948, the campaign to get the daily papers to use the latter in its correct form has been constantly waged.

In recent semesters the athletic department has worked overtime acquiring championships and recognition and keeping the name of the college in the news.

Last spring the track team earned the conference championship. During the fall semester the soccer aggregate went undefeated in a league of four-year colleges, and the second place football squad won a postseason bowl game against Monterey.

The basketballers went to the top in bringing home the state championship trophy last month, while the fencers surprised everyone, particularly the Air Force Academy, from whose team they won a Western Conference division title.

In some newspapers these teams were referred to as being from San Francisco City College, but later, as the name came up more often, they were designated correctly.

But the final event which will immortalize the correct title of the college was the discovery last week of a major earthquake fault which bisects the campus.

It was denominated City College of San Francisco fault.

The import of this can be known when it is realized that long after the buildings of San Francisco may have crumbled (through age or other reasons) the City College of San Francisco fault will still be listed on geology maps.

Although the danger is said to be no greater on top of the fault than anywhere else in the vicinity, many here may well hope that a good education is a good foundation.

For besides its attributes, the college has its faults.

The Spectator Griffin Hits Jackpot With Time Limit

By Anna Papagni

THE COLLEGE presentation Time Limit is as good or better a production as anyone is likely to see in the area now on any level from San Francisco State to the Actor's Workshop to the Curran.

Masterfully directed and movingly portrayed, it is well worth the trip from home to the outer reaches of Ocean and Phelan.

First of all, Michael Griffin, who heads the drama department, hit the jackpot when he chose to produce Time Limit. The plays tell the absorbing Korean War story of 18 American soldiers in a Communist prison camp and how they give away under the unbearable pressure of constant suffering.

After the war a home-side army judge reviews their case, which involves an act of treason on the part of one of the men, a Major Cargill. As Cargill's story unfolds before the zealous judge, the audience receives an insight into the nature of justice, courage and personal integrity.

Communism, Korea and brain washing are of immediate concern today but rather than exposing "the system" as Advise And Consent does now downtown at the Curran, this play focuses on the individual and the problems he must face because of "the system"; hence, a more personal, powerful play.

John Morrison portrays Major Cargill and no one could possibly want a more sincere, straightforward performance.

However, Jones does occasionally break the pattern but not nearly often enough. When he does, the results are rewarding.

Griffin's set is nothing short of terrific. Almost the whole show takes place in the judge advocate's office, which is common enough right down to the gigantic map of Asia that stretches across the office wall at the back of the stage.

However, as prisoners being questioned recount their experiences at prison camp, the office lights go out, and we see the camp through the map which becomes transparent since it is a scrim curtain.

The prisoner of war scenes were frighteningly effective, and Ralph Bonacker, like Miss Jarrett, handled his small role with stunning realism.

Needless to say, the production more than justifies the community interest that has greeted it.

What Is Your Pet Peeve About College Students?

By R. D. Hacker and Harry Cordalis

Naomi Rattner, English instructor: I don't think anything the students do bothers me. I've been around for quite some time, and I am used to everything. I know there are some instructors who like everything about teaching—except the students. Personally, I think the students are great; otherwise I wouldn't teach.

Eleanor Bilan, library staff: My pet peeve has already been solved—the loss of books from the library. Now the thing that bothers me is the noise in the lobby in front of the library. While the students are great, but as soon as those doors open, the noise blasts in.

Lee Dolson, political science: A student who is too shy to ask a question bothers me most of all. A student who won't ask a question to clarify a point is only hurting himself. I would personally prefer that a student stop me in the middle of my lecture and ask a question if it is going to help him to learn.

Earl Johnson, custodian: At times I think the students are a little too noisy when others are trying to study. They are usually the noisiest in the Shack, because they are so young and full of energy and trying to study. As far as keeping the campus clean goes they are fine.

Naomi Rattner: "I don't like to have a student in my class who seems to be uninterested in the work."

Lucille Mason, business: Probably many of my students could describe my pet peeves much better than I can. Sometimes a student will make no attempt to learn or understand. At times students want me to do their thinking for them. This is the exception, however, and not the rule; so I am not upset.

Earl Johnson, custodian: At times I think the students are a little too noisy when others are trying to study. They are usually the noisiest in the Shack, because they are so young and full of energy and trying to study. As far as keeping the campus clean goes they are fine.

Shots At RAMdom

By Dave Kleinberg

THE ENGLISH 1B student, who a few weeks ago thought Shakespeare's Henry IV was a golf story, this week started to read Hamlet.

This time his reaction was: "It's okay, but there are so many trite expressions." He proceeded to rattle off a number of expressions from Hamlet which he claims Shakespeare stole from others.

"I've been hearing these all my life," he said. "Neither a borrower nor lender be." "Something is rotten in the state of Denmark." "To be or not to be—that is the question." "Let your hasty command your duty." "Give every man thine ear but few thy voice."

We'd hate to see this kid's grade.

A FEW WEEKS AGO this column had an item that the Shack, located behind Cloud Hall, would prosper despite the fact that after one year there is not a sign to indicate its location.

We wish to report: 1) The Shack has prospered. 2) A sign, approximately three by six feet, has gone up. This is POWER OF THE PRESS in action. Any of the world's problems could be solved by the press, although many claim the opposite.

Why Napoleon once said four hostile newspapers are more to be feared than a thousand bayonets.

MOST STUDENTS who have parked illegally around the campus know in lost dollars that the Campus Police are anything but lazy.

At least one student disagrees. Two or three times a week the student has parked in the far northwest corner of the reservoir—and we haven't seen any blues approaching with pen and paper.

AS IF THE WORLD already doesn't have enough problems, the custodial staff reports someone has acquired a key that fits all rooms in Science Hall.

So far the custodians admit: nothing borrowed, nothing gained—in the way of clues.

PROWLERS ON Campus?—Not Ever On Sunday

Sunday is normally a quiet day around the campus, and to make certain it remains that way, a detective prowls the grounds.

Main purpose of his visit here is to make sure that no one is catching up on studying in a normally closed library or trying to latch onto a test in one of his courses by rummaging through an instructor's files.

However, it is conceivable that Michael Griffin and his thespian crew may be here rehearsing for an upcoming production, or that athletes may be practicing for future competition.

As the college regulations state, a person is allowed on campus during weekends unless he is affiliated with some organized and sponsored activity.

As long as the college has been in existence no classes have met on Sundays and the hope is to continue that practice.

Actually, in the eyes of the detective, students aren't expected to be the trespassers. The officer usually contends that after a normal five-day week here, students would rather keep as far away from the campus as possible on weekends.

It is the other 800,000 or so citizens of San Francisco who present the problems.

Art Dagomjian, third place winner, created a formal Italian garden.

FLORISTRY DEMONSTRATION

Retail floristry students have initiated the project of demonstrating floral arranging to local high school economics classes.

The demonstrations serve the purpose of acquainting high school students with flowers and sparking interest in the florist business, while providing helpful experience for floristry students.

DROP-A-CLASS

Today is the last day to drop a class. After securing drop forms from their counselors, students then present them to the registrar's office, where they will receive another form which will permit resale of books to the bookstore.

HORTICULTURE FUND

Donated to the horticulture department, the Vic Horton Memorial fund will be used for maintenance of permanent equipment by the Master Florist Association, Maryhope Jacks, floristry instructor here, announced.

The grant was first presented three years ago as a scholarship and is now offered as a fund.

The floristry department recently held its fourth annual open house. First place winner of the horticulture department's perpetual trophy went to the class member producing the best window display at the open house. Dick Rusyn won for his blue-green Christmas.

He used blue-green garlands, green trees, white styrofoam with speckles of green and blue color, white carnations and blue bells in his display.

Joanne Taylor, second place winner, created a display called Tahitian Lani. She constructed a bamboo hut against a jungle background of tree ferns, tribal gods and arrangement of anthurium.

Art Dagomjian, third place winner, created a formal Italian garden.

Associated Women Students Present Shower Of Fashions Here Tomorrow

14 Will Model At Smith Hall Show And Tea

Fourteen women students here will model the newest fashions from the City of Paris at the Associated Women Student semi-annual fashion show and tea from 3 to 5 p.m. tomorrow in Smith Hall, according to Jackie Rommel, AWS president.

With Shower Of Fashion as the theme, the program will include in addition to the fashions and refreshments, entertainment under the direction of Wendy Dickson. Entertaining will be soloists, Sharon Karp, Verdi Byrd and Paul Watti.

A highlight of the afternoon will be the presentation of the Inter-Sorority Council scholarship award to the first semester entering woman with the highest grade point in the first midterm period. In the last two semesters winners have been from George Washington High School.

Decorations, under the direction of Diane O'Neill, will be influenced by the umbrella and spring flower theme, with flowers donated by Ivan's Flowers, through Bob Perkins.

Models, for whom the chairman is Paulette Walti, will walk down a ramp from an arch decorated with spring flower arrangements. Special aspects of the fashion will be of spring and summer bridal gown and wedding bouquets, Miss Rommel stated.

Models will include Bonnie Black, Marlene Cusack, Miss Dickson, Rosie Fane, Mary Jane Flynn, Kathy Gaffney, Teryle Lewis and Judith McCann.

Also modeling are Diana Moore, Jonell Nash, Barbara Preston, Peggy Thom-Ward, Judy Tomlinson and Connie Wilson. Alberta Scribner from the City of Paris will be moderator at the fashion show.

"We certainly hope to see all women students at the fashion show and tea because we are planning an extraordinary afternoon of interest to everyone," Miss Rommel emphasized.

In addition to the coats here, 30 women students from each San Francisco high school have been sent in invitations.

As is tradition, sorority pledges will serve the punch and cookies at the conclusion of the fashion show.

And, especially on a date, if one doesn't have a car he is a social outcast.

This last fact has possibly led to the misunderstanding of many people. George and Martha Clod would rather own a car, pay insurance and gas, than live with a roof over their heads.

But today the modern suburban house is equipped with a two-car garage, usually occupied: the brand new car, baby blue, for housewife to accomplish her tedious daily chores, and the broken down junk heap for the male half, to chauffeur his clients around the cosmopolitan area.

Men Outnumber Women Two To One As Total Enrollment Hits 7786

Complete enrollment figures released by the registrar's office last week show that 6200 students are registered here in the day session, and 1586 students in the evening session, for a total figure of 7786.

The ratio of men to women students is somewhat staggered, according to these figures. There are 4122 men students in the day session and only 2076 women. These figures are even more staggering during the evening when there are only 712 women as opposed to the 874 men who are enrolled in the same session. The ratio here is almost 2 to 1.

The total number of students now attending the college is 499 below last semester's all-time high of 8285. Of this number 921 were disqualified at the end of the semester and only 400 of these students were readmitted this semester.

Because of last semester's overcrowded enrollment, the college had its longest day with a communications lecture at 7:10 a.m.

Monster Moves Floral Center

Another concrete monster is about to be built in San Francisco, and because of it a department's present location here is doomed.

Although at one time there was some public protest throughout the city concerning the building of more freeways, the planners have not been alerted in their opinions—yet. The newest thoroughfare is scheduled to cut through the eastern section of the campus.

However, as prisoners being questioned recount their experiences at prison camp, the office lights go out, and we see the camp through the map which becomes transparent since it is a scrim curtain.

The prisoner of war scenes were frighteningly effective, and Ralph Bonacker, like Miss Jarrett, handled his small role with stunning realism.

Needless to say, the production more than justifies the community interest that has greeted it.

Speculation over this new freeway had been steadily increasing for the past two years, and the bulldozers working on the horticulture site now are proof that intuition is turning into reality.

Where flowers now bloom and plants grow, automobiles will shortly be speeding along at breakneck speeds.

Actually, the majority of the floral displays in and around the college's horticulture department are maintained by the San Francisco Park and Recreation Division. A new home is planned for those gardens in McLaren Park.

It was in 1949 that a beautification campaign was undertaken by the center. A red brick patio and a four-level terrace, complete with a sprinkler system, were constructed.

Plans to counteract the freeway interruption call for the erection of a new building which will house both the horticulture and floristry departments. President Louis G. Conlan recently commented that the program should have a higher enrollment.

No one at the college, especially those directly connected with the horticulture center, is happy to see the department's present site demolished, but most seem to contend that progress has taken the upper hand again. Once the thoroughfare is completed (no date has been announced), those who depend on the college are expected to find easier access to "Hill 29" by way of San Jose avenue.

How Giving A Little Blood Meant Getting A Lot Of Help

Blood, the fluid vital to all animal life, circulates in the principal vascular system carrying nourishment and oxygen to all parts of the body and brings away waste products to be excreted.

Loss of this life process, or any abnormality affecting the fluid, necessitates the almost immediate addition or transfusion of blood.

Because of disease and accidents, situations can arise where a relative or close friend must receive a transfusion, but it also may place him in a precarious financial situation with complications of hospitalization, drugs, X-rays, doctors and the blood itself, a charge ranging from $25 to $35 per pint.

Thus evolved the theme of the fifth annual campus blood drive. "Give A Little, Get A Lot."

Acting as an insurance policy against emergencies, the donation of one pint of blood entitles the donor to a one-year term with the privilege of withdrawing an unlimited amount of plasma on one occasion for a member of the immediate family, and the opportunity of supplying close friends with a maximum of eight pints.

The importance of this privilege may not impress an individual until he himself has undergone a crisis similar to that experienced by a college employee. This is not to say that a crisis need occur in his life before full impact or his complete appreciation of the college blood donor plan.

To some people this story means nothing, but to the understanding it is meant to impress, possibly help somebody.

Give a little, and get a lot.

Superior Coaching Key To Ram Athletic Success

By John Silva

Rams on the rampage has been the theme of the 1961-62 athletic season. In this vein, Ram gridders opened their 1961-62 season with a smashing 27-0 victory over the Los Angeles Valley College Monarchs. Then, defeated 22-6 by San Mateo, the Rams bounced back to triumph over the Contra Costa Comets 12-0, and were invited to the Lettuce Bowl.

Culminating the season in second place with an 8-2 league mark, the gridders topped Monterey Peninsula College 22-14, in one of the Rams' most exciting games.

Therein, the gridders won the Lettuce Bowl, placed four men on the Big Eight Conference teams and enjoyed one of their most triumphant seasons. Similarly, the soccer squad, after pulverizing Santa Clara 15-1, tackled the University of California Bears and beat them 5-2. After this defeat, Cal's Coach Bob DiGrazia said, "The Rams are undoubtedly one of the best two-year college teams in the country."

DiGrazia was right. Ram booters captured the league title by beating University of San Francisco 2-0.

The soccer champs attained a perfect 6-0 conference record and became the first undefeated, untied soccer team in this college's history.

Meanwhile, the Rams 41-point trackmen sprinted past Sacramento,

Modesto, San Mateo, Santa Rosa and Oakland colleges and won the Big Eight Conference cross-country championship on November 19 of that year. Then Ram baseballers shattered Sacramento's 11-0 record by a 7-0 victory over the previously undefeated Panthers. After that, the horse-shoes blasted Santa Rosa in 10 innings by a score of 10-9.

However, handicapped by the loss of two first-string players through scholastic ineligibility, the horse-shoes lost their last game of the year to Santa Rosa 14-5, and dropped out of a first division finish.

Nevertheless, 15 baseballers received Block SF awards that year. The Ram eagles raced onward to an inevitable conference victory by scoring a 72-51 win over Modesto Junior College, a 64-62 victory over the San Mateo Bulldogs and captured the State Junior College championship by defeating Citrus College, 71-56.

And now, the Recreation Association fencing squad has captured first place in the foil division at the Western Intercollegiate fencing competition held this year at Los Angeles Valley College.

The two-day competition also featured teams from 11 other colleges, including University of Southern Cal.

Three Out Of Four

Baseball Defeat Mars Perfect Ram Weekend

Ram squads received a boost when three teams turned in wins in four meets.

Bob Siska ran over a powerful Ryder Gets of Modesto Junior College to lead the Rams' tennis squad to a 6-0 victory over the Pirates last Friday at Modesto. The last match was called on account of darkness and will have to be replayed at a later date.

Led by Lon Brantley and Alex Darnes, the local tracksters defeated Sacramento City College 85-37 last Saturday at a triangle meet held at Berkeley with the Cal Frosh team also participating.

Darnes heaved the discus 164'3 1/2" to take first place and also set a new Cal Frosh meet record. Brantley turned in a 22'3 1/2" broad jump effort to cop another first spot.

Modesto's varsity link squad fell prey to the locals as they were defeated by the golfers 16 1/2-13 1/2 last Friday on the Pirates' home greens. It was one of the finest team efforts of the season, as four of the five players finished in the 70's. Dennis Drucker and Dave Egan tied with 75's while John Steddin shot a 77.

The Ram baseball squad dropped its third straight game, losing to San Mateo, 11-8, Friday. The squad also lost March 27, 9-7.

Swimmers Encounter Santa Rosa In Final League Meet Tomorrow

Closing out its season, a spirited and improved Ram swimming team will meet Santa Rosa Junior College tomorrow at the Santa Rosa campus.

"Santa Rosa is not really strong nor competitive in any particular event," Coach Roy Burkhead pointed out.

Hampered by sickness, the college mermen were dunked by the San Mateo Bulldogs 62-31, March 23 on the Peninsula campus.

Bill Love, promising Ram rookie, and John Holm, veteran standby, were nonparticipants because of illness.

Highlights of the meet were the strong showing the locals made in the 220-yard, 440-yard and 100-yard free style events.

Ram Chuck Greninger, who has shown improvement and reliability all year, took a first in the 220 free style event with a 2:25.8 clocking and finished second in the 440 free style competition.

El Silver, veteran of last year's team, outswam all the competitors in the 100 free style event to take a first place.

Florida, California Polytechnic, University of California at Los Angeles, Air Force Academy, Los Angeles State, San Francisco State, San Diego State, San Fernando State, Pomona, El Camino and East Los Angeles Colleges.

When the final count was in, the local fencers had pulled a complete third.

Undoubtedly superior coaching facilitated Ram success during this 1961-62 season. With this idea in view, this reporter asked Coach Lou Vasquez about the requisites of a good coach.

Vasquez said, "Three things: first, knowledge; second, dedication; third, the ability to get the point across." "Getting-the-point-across" in football is Coach Grover Klemmer, who was one of only five men to win letters in three varsity sports at Cal and who set world records in the 440-yard and 400-meter dash.

His football teams have won the Big Eight title in 1946, 1948, 1951 and 1957.

Soccer Coach Roy Diederichsen is a graduate of San Jose State, where he played basketball and soccer four years and baseball one year.

He was also All-Conference full-back in soccer for three seasons and the school's boxing champion in his weight division.

Vasquez, track coach, began his tenure at this college in 1958 when his men won the state championship and set 11 school records.

Vasquez is an alumnus of this college and a graduate of San Francisco State; after that he went to Stanford for a master's degree in physical education.

Lee Eisan, one of the most experienced coaches in the Big Eight Conference, heads the baseball coaching staff here.

Graduating from Cal in 1930, where he starred in football for three years and played on one of the Rose Bowl teams, Eisan first coached at this college when it opened in 1935.

Another Cal graduate, coach George Sid Phelan, came here in 1955 from George Washington High School, where in 1952 his 110, 120, 130 and varsity teams won the city championships. And, of course, this year he led his men on to win the state championship.

Rams on the rampage has indeed been the theme of the 1961-62 athletic season.

These four will be asked additional questions, their answers and their personality reactions to determine their final winning positions.

The public is invited and tickets are available for $2.50 each at the Jack Tar Hotel, Lima announced.

Proceeds from the pageant will go toward the $2000 scholarship fund to be awarded to Miss San Francisco.

Awards of clothing, trips and other items will be shared by Miss San Francisco and the runners-up.

The winner will represent San Francisco at the Miss California Pageant in Santa Cruz. The young woman crowned Miss California will receive additional scholarships and will then compete in Atlantic City for the Miss America title.

Acting judges of the contest are Percy Faith, Lee Ann Meriwether and Merla Zellerbach.

Master of ceremonies will be Ken Brown, while guest master of ceremonies will be Jim Lang of radio station KSFQ.

Master of ceremonies will be Neric Fugate Moore, proprietor of the House of Charm.

COO To Sponsor Problems Meet Here April 25

Council of Organizations will attempt to solve 20 campus problems at a convention to be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 25, in Smith Hall, John Hommes, chairman of the students committee, announced last week.

Hommes stated that this parity is being held to solve campus problems by suggestions from students to various authoritative groups at the convention.

"Members of the problems committee," he said, "have classified each problem under three separate headings. First are those difficulties involving college facilities; second are those relating to student interest; third are student-faculty relations."

Hommes reported that at the convention in Smith Hall there will be introductory remarks from a keynote speaker who will outline the problems to be solved.

"Then the delegates will be dismissed to attend one of three workshops set up to discuss problems outlined by the speaker."

"After that," Hommes continued, "the students at the workshop will be dismissed to reconvene at Smith Hall to give positive solutions to each problem."

"COO committee members are convinced that most of the problems submitted can be resolved," he added.

Margaret Thom-Wohrden, head of the speakers committee, said that tentative plans for guests at the convention will include Ralph O. Hillman, dean of men; Fred Cherniss, Associated Men Student president; William Walsh, instructor from College of San Mateo; and Oscar E. Anderson, co-ordinator of educational management here.

Some of the problems to be brought before the guests are as follows:

1. Providing more study space for students.

2. Increasing post-commencement job information gathering facilities.

3. Improving mid-term grading procedures.

4. Improving parking facilities.

5. Correcting cafeteria problems.

Brenda Dennis Vies For Miss SF Title Saturday

Brenda Dennis, a coed here, will be one of eight contenders for the Miss San Francisco title when the finals are held at 8 p.m. this Saturday in the Grand Ballroom of the Jack Tar Hotel.

During the first phase the finalists will be introduced on the Grand Ballroom ramp. They will be judged according to their appearance in evening attire.

In the second stage, each woman will give a three-minute performance in her selected field of talent.

Miss Dennis will do a modern dance routine to the song, "I've Got You Under My Skin."

The swimming suit presentation will be the third phase of competition.

After these three performances, four of the eight women will be chosen as the finalists.

These four will be asked additional questions, their answers and their personality reactions to determine their final winning positions.

The public is invited and tickets are available for $2.50 each at the Jack Tar Hotel, Lima announced.

Proceeds from the annual Ugly Man On Campus Week, slated by Alpha Phi Omega here between April 23 and 27, will provide scholarships for two students active in campus affairs, Bob Labatille, fraternity president, announced today.

The money is derived from votes of pennies students cast in their favorite candidate's container. In the past, UMOG contributions have provided for scholarships ranging from $75 to $100.

Candidates may still apply by obtaining a blank from the Associated Student office, 5-134, prior to Friday. Two five by seven pictures of each entrant are required.

Any club, fraternity or sorority may sponsor an ugly man. This is the first semester, however, that sororities have been allowed to sponsor a candidate, Labatille remarked.

Student's Theatrical Career Spans Twenty Years

'Blinky' Starred In Bowery Series

By Hugh Wilson

Ed LeRoy, part-time advertising and drama student here, is the same "Eddie" LeRoy who portrayed "Blinky" in the now defunct Bowery Boys series.

LeRoy, who started in pictures at 13, has appeared with Milton Berle, Red Skelton, Errol Flynn and Andy Griffith. He has also had his own television show, and directed a supper club musical.

While attending Los Angeles City College, the 33-year-old LeRoy was named Outstanding Freshman of the Year. As a result of the award he appeared on several television shows, and was tagged by a few critics as the "Junior Milton Berle."

This prompted LeRoy to invite LeRoy to his New York television show, where LeRoy's appearances were so successful that he was signed as a juvenile comedy star at the Tamiment, a summer musical comedy playhouse in Los Angeles.

The Tamiment, which boasts of such alumni as Danny Kaye, Judy Holiday and Imogene Coca, was the big step for LeRoy, for his performance brought him to the attention of his next employer, the United States Army.

LeRoy served an uneventful two years as a private in Korea. After his discharge he joined a USO detachment and appeared before troops in North Africa and the Caribbean. For the work he received a citation of merit from the United States Defense Department.

When asked how past experience in the entertainment field had benefited him in his later career, LeRoy stated, "Experience itself is a learning process; the audience teaches more to the actor than he can ever learn in a classroom situation."

LeRoy's experience led him to directing, and producing a supper club musical, Oriental Holiday, which opened at the New Frontier Hotel in Las Vegas. The show ran for 20 weeks, and was taken to the Pigalle theater-restaurant in London, England, where the play had another successful engagement.

Returning from the European tour, LeRoy returned to college for a degree.

Concerning his career as an actor and the struggle for recognition, LeRoy modestly remarked, "It was a lucky amateur. By that I mean I never served an apprenticeship, but was paid immediately for performing, which made me a pro right away."

away. I was only 13 at the time.

"On the whole, however, the acting profession, as in other highly competitive fields, is a constant struggle for success. But the rewards, both in a financial and emotional sense, are great."

LeRoy, who has appeared in many TV programs, once costarred with Andy Griffith in an adaptation of No Time For Sergeants, in which he portrayed Griffith's sidekick, spoke about television's effect on movies.

"Television has definitely had some effect upon the motion picture industry. It has made the public more selective. People will not leave the comfort of their homes, hazard the traffic and the problem of finding a parking place to see a mediocre or poor picture."

"There has been much talk concerning the mediocrity of television programs, and I, for one, think that it is unfair. There is mediocrity in every phase of the entertainment field. This is why motion pictures are turning to 'adult' themes. Television, in turn, is fighting back with the many 'specials' and public interest programs, such as the CBS recent Tour Of The White House."

Speaking of pictures, LeRoy, not yet receiving royalties for his appearance in the movie, smiled and said, "Until I start getting paid, I'm what you'd call independently poor."

What Course Has Given You The Most Difficulty?

By R. D. Hacker and Harry Cordellio

Karen Pasqualetti, sophomore:

Although no one class gives me too much trouble, I find that sociology tends to be one of my more difficult classes. I believe the reason for me is that the book was very dull, dry and difficult to read.

Sam Neff:

They all have given me some trouble, but Math 16A gave me the most. It was a required course, and I wasn't interested in it because I didn't think I would ever use it. In my opinion, it is a boring course that has to be completed even though it may not be very enjoyable.

Rosalie Weiner, sophomore:

Biology has given me more trouble than any other class. I don't know why biology is hard for me, because I do have a very good instructor. The book is written well. I also find the class very interesting. I guess I'm just not very adept in science.

Bob Rauh, sophomore:

Economics 2 was the most confusing course I ever had. First of all I didn't like the book. Then the instructor explained the course much differently from the book. If the instructor and the book had agreed, I don't think I would have had as much trouble.

Sherry Spindel, sophomore:

My anatomy class was the hardest. I don't think that my instructor realized that the students in her classes were taking any other subjects. We had a test every time the class met, and for too much homework. The instructor tried to get too much out of the students.

Ernie von Emster, sophomore:

The long hours I put into Chemistry 1A made it rough on me. It wasn't only the work at home but also the work in the college. I do think that the course makes a person think and teaches one to act on his own. But there is a lot of work to be done in that class.

Karen Pasqualetti:

"Although no one class gives me too much trouble, I find sociology difficult."

Suzanne Murphy, sophomore:

Without a doubt math has been my toughest course. It holds no intrigue nor mystery for me. In a history class one can find a story to become interested in, but in math one is confined to nothing but numbers. It's not the instructor, I just hate math.

David Hummel, freshman:

I think that my sociology class was the most difficult because the explanations given by the instructor were too technical, and hard to understand. There were about 70 students in the class, and this made it hard on both the instructor and the students.

Shots At RAMdom

TO 7999 STUDENTS studying here, the system on the reselling of books at the end of each semester is quite satisfactory.

Number 8000 has a complaint. He asks for a change.

"It's common knowledge that students mark notes, underline important sentences and scribble comments on the sides of the text," he said.

"Therefore, why shouldn't the bookstore indicate the grade of the previous holder. The books returned by the 'A' students should sell progressively higher than those returned by the 'B' and 'C' students."

"Burn the 'D' and 'F' books."

WITH EASTER vacation approaching, The Guardians will cease publication until May 2. We've decided, on the advice of a close friend, to take a short vacation and relax.

Our informative traveler gives us first-hand dope that there's a nice, quiet spot where frustrated columnists can go to regain their nerve.

The place is called Fort Lauderdale.

Number 8000: 'Burn Those D And F Books'

THE CITY SPENT $1,000,000 to build the college theater and arts building. The contract called for 30 different electrical lifts, 15 in the front wall, as many in the back wall.

All expectations were met, and one would think there would be no difficulties. Yet, before each performance, the main curtain is raised manually.

Before the mob starts on City Hall, Michael Griffin, in charge of the drama department, states, "The manual lift is beneficial for instruction purposes, and a motor could be installed at any time."

THE SCENE is a field by the men's gymnasium. Two teams are about to start a touch football game. One team has eight players; the other has five.

According to the rules, the overloaded squad has to give a player to the other team. Happily, the majority team hands over the worst player.

It is now 10 minutes later. The rejected player is now the center for team "B." Team "B" has the ball and is about to run a play, when a member of team "A" yells, "Hike."

The unwanted player does.

Everyone stops.

Everyone laughs.

JUDGMENT AT NUREM-
BERG seems to be gathering a unanimous verdict—excellent. It has been a long time since an American film of such merit has been released from Hollywood.

The movie should have captured most of the awards the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences had to offer. Unfortunately, though, the academy is oftentimes swayed by factors other than merit.

Be that as it may, the picture is a winner on all counts: screenplay, direction, acting and photography. Stanley Kramer, director-producer, takes the audience back to 1945 and the postwar atrocity trials of German officials at Nuremberg. Because of the recent Eichmann trial that lately covered the front pages of our newspapers, the show is of even greater concern than it might otherwise be.

A tribunal of three, headed by a small town American judge played by Spencer Tracy, is asked by the army to decide the guilt or innocence of four Nazi judges who are accused of sentencing their countrymen unjustly to fates such as sterilization, imprisonment or execution.

Tracy is his typical sincere, unassuming self as he tries to decide whether responsibility for the crimes rests with the individual or the Nazi leaders who handed down their ultimatums in desperate times.

To say he played his typical role is certainly not to imply that his performance was something less than good.

The four men on trial each represent the main reasons an individual might have had for actively participating in the Nazi movement.

One responded to an ugliness and decadence within himself; another was weak; the third contributed because of financial gain; and the fourth, portrayed powerfully by Burt Lancaster, thought the means would justify the end.

Of the four, Lancaster is the only sympathetic character. Hitler promised progress to a nation that was hungry and oppressed, and this man, a scholar and judge of wide renown, supported the movement because he felt it would restore his beloved country.

Although he did not excuse himself, he claimed that he never imagined the Nazis would resort to such heinous crimes in the end. But as the judge pointed out, the minute he decided his first unfair verdict, the die was cast into a blood-red Russia that was to become Germany.

A newcomer with great ability, Maximilian Schell gave the most impressive performance of the group as the defense attorney.

He maintained that individuals should not be punished since all were responsible, including Russia and the Vatican, who both aided Hitler one way or another in the beginning.

Even Winston Churchill uttered words of praise, and after Hiroshima, the United States had no right to sit in judgment, the defense claimed.

Richard Widmark as the prosecuting attorney had been with troops who freed those who remained in prison camps after the war. Sickened and bitter with the memory of bodies piled high like so much rubbish, he insisted that punishment must be administered.

Two of the witnesses whom he calls to the stand are played devastatingly by Montgomery Clift and Judy Garland.

Clift in his usual ultrasensitive, wounded role makes a brief but memorable appearance, while Miss Garland is again given the opportunity to weep hysterically on celluloid, which she does admirably to her full advantage.

Marlene Dietrich also makes a fine contribution. In short, almost every

Soph Meet To Inform Students Of Activities

To encourage class participation and to inform class members of activities and events, is the purpose of the Sophomore Class meetings, Bob Anderson, class president, stated last week.

Committee dates for Sophomore Class meetings are April 27, May 4, 18 and June 1 in S-311.

Anderson and the class officers hope "all sophomores will attend these meetings."

Plans are discussed and committees are proposed concerning special class events at these meetings.

PIANO DUET
Madame Julia Elbogen and Irene Schreier will perform a piano duo during College Hour Friday in the theater. In making this announcement, Meyer Cahn stated that he is trying to create variety in the concert series this semester.

The program will consist of three pieces, Grand Ranz in A Major, Opus 107, by F. Schubert, Theme and Variations in G Major, K501, by Mozart, and Two Marches Characteristics, Opus 121, by Schubert.

C-HOUR LECTURES
Reverend Warren Ninness, executive director of San Francisco's Youth for Christ, will speak at the next meeting of the Roger Williams Fellowship in A-211 during College Hour Friday. All students are invited to attend.

Dr. Robert Axen, associate professor of education, and Robert E. Moore, assistant professor of education, both from San Francisco State College, will explain qualifications and procedures necessary to obtain teaching credentials to the Student California Teachers Association in C-269 and C-268.

Also, the last lecture of a series of three on Capitalism will be given by Peter Costigan in S-100. It is entitled, Your Stake In America.

AWES CONVENTION
Jackie Rommel and Paulette Walti, the Associated Women Student president and vice president, respectively, will represent the college at a regional convention of AWS, to be held at the University of California April 15-18. Dean Mary Golding announced yesterday.

FILM SERIES
Land Of White Alice, a 30-minute film depicting life in Alaska, will be shown Friday during College Hour in S-136. Madison Devlin of the audiovisual aids department announced today.

"I just had to feel my way around. So I turned all the valves off, and the steam stopped."

It was then very quiet in the cafeteria as students congregated around Mrs. Darrow, who was trembling and crying.

"I smelled something burning," she said. "I could tell something was going to happen. Look, I'm still shaking. Oh, look at my dress."

The front of her dress was saturated with water.

No one was injured; all six workers escaped just as the blast occurred. Mrs. Darrow went home after the incident.

Damages to the cafeteria were minor in that the floor was flooded with water, which the custodians proceeded to mop.

Since the plumber didn't arrive at the scene that day, the cause of the explosion was not disclosed.

Weible had begun to set up the chairs in the cafeteria when John W. Dunn, cafeteria manager, walked over to commend him for his heroic actions.

"Thank you for the quick thinking, Frank," said Dunn.

"I did my best," said Weible as he continued at his work.

Cafeteria workers prepared for next day's menu. They began cooking and cleaning as though nothing had happened.

Dunn said, "A little water doesn't hurt us. What would hurt us, however, would be if customers didn't show up."

New Photo Show Introduced In Cloud Gallery

Photography shows in Cloud Hall will continue, at least for the time being. Emmett Smith announced last Friday as he prepared to introduce a one-man display featuring the work of a former student, Tom Jungman.

Following the successful conclusion of the Betty Jones photo display, which was on a two-week trial basis, Smith decided to continue his shows in the photography gallery of Cloud Hall.

Continuation of the spring series of photography exhibits was seriously doubted by gallery enthusiasts after Smith announced recently that three pictures from the Fred Pardini show were being loaned to the display panels without permission of the photography department.

The current show featuring Jungman will run through Friday.

Jungman attended the college from 1947 to 1949. After his photography training here, he attended the Art Center in Los Angeles. He left the Art Center in 1951 and went to Boston, where he stayed for three years. He then returned to the Art Center in 1953 and continued his education. In 1959 Jungman went to New York, where he opened his own photo illustration studio.

That is, Emmett Smith was caught by the camera's eye in the act of hanging one of Tom Jungman's photographs currently on exhibit in the Cloud Hall gallery.—Guardian photo by Harry Cordellio.

The display features several experiments in extractions of patterns and design. Also included are reproductions both in black and white and color of illustrations he has done in magazines, featuring commercial products such as those put out by Smith Corona, the Polaroid Corporation and Sylvania.

Pledge Activities Culminate Friday

Fraternity and sorority pledging activities are in progress this week. Bob Turnbow, Inter-Fraternity Council president, and Jeri Sciuto, Inter-Sorority president, announced.

Tomorrow is Help Day, during which fraternity pledges will work on campus at service day projects. These jobs will be done during the pledge's breaks in his class schedule.

Blood drive trophies will be awarded during College Hour Friday by IFC at its Game Day entertainment, to be performed by the fraternity pledges for Associated Students at the football field.

Spring Fever, the semiannual dance sponsored by Gamma Phi Ypsilon fraternity, will be the climax of the pledging activities.

"Checking the attitudes and personalities is one purpose of pledging," Turnbow said.

Sorority pledges will make curtains for their drive trophies will be awarded during College Hour Friday by IFC at its Game Day entertainment, to be performed by the fraternity pledges for Associated Students at the football field.

Miss Margolin attended as the state information chairman and co-ordinator. She submitted a new, compact information booklet to each college attending, which was "very well received," according to Collins.

In the current problems workshop a resolution was passed to urge other two-year colleges in the state to stage a blood donation drive similar to the one held here each spring.

Because of the lack of spirit and of student participation in social activities, a new spirit clinic was established.

Collins, who was involved in the presidential workshop from which this bill came, stated that a spirit conference would be held semestrially to discuss related problems and exchange ideas to counteract them.

Another result of the presidential workshop was the passage of a resolution that makes the CJCSCA president responsible for informing newly formed two-year colleges of ways to establish their student government association.

The cultural progress workshop, attended by Miss Murphy, passed a resolution encouraging a foreign student-instructor exchange program.

Another result of the workshop was the initiation of a speakers bureau. Five two-year colleges will be represented on this committee and will be involved with securing information concerning the availability of prominent lecturers for college appearances.

The group will also be responsible for sending out biographical sketches on each personality.

A suggestion that all two-year colleges merge to purchase one health and accident insurance policy so an extra financial burden will not be placed on one college was made in the financial workshop, attended by Miss Doudie.

Fuller participated in the intramurals and recreation workshop in place of Andy Shamiz, who was unable to attend the conference.

Four other major resolutions were also acted upon at the meeting. In one, it was recommended that the current problems workshop be discussed more fully in political science courses.

The conference also suggested that two-year colleges have a separate section in the California Educational Code. The feeling is that in a decade the majority of high school graduates will attend a two-year college first instead of going directly to a four-year college.

A final decision was made to endorse the $20,000,000 allocation set aside for two-year colleges in California from the state legislature.

In summarizing, Collins asserted that this year's conference was "very successful," attributing City College's major role in the meeting to its basketball championship and to the fact that a member of its delegation served as state information chairman.

College Encourages CJCSCA To Start Blood Donation Drives

By Herman Kilgerman

Highlighting the 34th semiannual California Junior College Student Government conference held in Los Angeles March 29-31 was the unanimous approval of a City College blood drive recommendation and the establishment of a spirit clinic and speakers' bureau.

The conference was attended by some 70 two-year colleges from throughout California. Each institution was represented by several members of their student councils and their Associated Student presidents.

To facilitate passage and discussion on the numerous resolutions recommended by the attending colleges, workshops were set up having full power to act upon any bill that would benefit two-year colleges as a whole.

These bills were presented to CJCSCA officials prior to the conference for preliminary approval.

Led by Associated Student President Dan Collins this semester, five delegates represented this college at the meeting. They were Suzanne Murphy, AS vice president; Jan Doudie, finance chairman; Greg Monk and Jim Fuller, council members, and Gail Margolin.

Miss Margolin attended as the state information chairman and co-ordinator. She submitted a new, compact information booklet to each college attending, which was "very well received," according to Collins.

is poured for another person. Other than this small detail which happened to catch the eye, the camera does some great work.

In the end, a verdict is handed down from the bench, and it is a credit to Stanley Kramer that the answer is given honestly and decisively. As a matter of fact, the whole treatment of this subject is honest and complete.

Here is a brilliant film that no one should miss. The Coronet theater offers special rates to students on Tuesday nights.

The Good Ol' Daze—

Hon, We Can Live On Bread And Water

By Dave Grieve

GAZING THROUGH pessimistic eyes, this columnist views the trials and tribulations of modern marriage as an accented strain on the nervous structure insuring the immediate and inside path to an asylum.

The evolution of this non-nationalized institution can be compared to an algebraic equation, the answer or result remaining unchangeable by the sand blast of antiquity but the method of arriving at the result subject to alteration or facilitation.

And so has courtship and the unavoidable nuptial tie changed in modern day, a far cry from the lack of estate lovebirds and of the last generation.

Several decades past, the road leading to the altar was obstructed by parental pitfalls imposed upon the budding love affair.

The groom-to-be must meet specific standards of financial stability, maturity and be obviously infatuated with Mummy's and Daddy's contribution to womanhood, the last prerequisite a must to prepare the male half to spend Sundays and holidays with the in-laws.

Invigorating recreation. These criteria were exemplified in the ponderous forethought by both partners before entering the sea of matrimony. As the story books recount, the male was the master of his own fate in the facet of proposing to the feminine gleam in his eye.

And besides, these proposals were administered far and in between, for the man was of a majority who only stuck his neck on the chopping block once.

Today . . . it's ridiculous. Present day statistics mirror that three to four years have been shaved off the average espousal age of 30 years

Siska Leads Undefeated Ram Netters Against Santa Rosa Friday At Golden Gate Park

Holding-down an undefeated as well as an undisputed first place position in the Big Eight Conference, the college tennis team will face the Bear Cubs of Santa Rosa Junior College in a conference match at 2:30 p.m. Friday on the Golden Gate Park courts.

Intercollegiate Meet Highlights Linker's Season

Major matches slated for the college's linkmen are Santa Rosa, Friday, April 13; Intercollegiate tourney, April 19-21, and Oakland, Friday, April 27.

Coach Grover Klemmer is placing an emphasis on team competition at the Pasatiempo intercollegiate tourney, where the various college golfers compete for honors.

Bouncing back from its 25 1/2-4 1/2 loss to College of San Mateo March 29, the college golf team defeated Modesto 16 1/2 to 13 1/2 March 30. Combined scores showed a close margin of three points.

At Modesto Dennis Drucker and Dave Egan were low scorers for the college; both carded 75's. John Steadman and George Benkle shot 78's while Larry Sugimoto shot an 81.

League standings show the Klemmermen with a creditable 2-1 record. The squad defeated Stockton 24-6. Modesto 16 1/2-13 1/2 and lost its only match to the defending state champion, College of San Mateo.

San Mateo remains at the top of the conference, undefeated so far this season with all indications pointing toward their keeping the number one berth. Sacramento is another strong contender for championship laurels. The Rams go against the Panthers early in May.

RAMBLINGS

Row, Row, Row—
14 Hours A Week

(Today's Ramblings are by Dave Kleinberg)

ALMOST EVERYONE spends a little time on a hobby—but 14 hours a week rowing on Lake Merced?

For the last two months, seven students here have been working out in preparation for the 1962 West Crew Sprints at Long Beach, California, on May 19.

Trying to build strength and endurance, the club, on the average, rows five to seven miles a day.

A private club or university may enter a one, four or eight-oared "shell," but most universities enter the eight-man team.

Myron Heckman, 25-year-old sophomore, encouraged the other six to join the Dolphin Club and start their own rowing team.

He has had plenty of experience. After three years of training, Heckman, for the first time, entered the Western Sprints last year and finished fourth.

Heckman, who attended Santa Rosa and hopes to compete in the 1964 Olympics, will enter the Western Sprints in the single-oared shell, 28 feet long, 11 inches wide.

The only row club representing San Francisco in the sprints, Heckman's group, coached by 61-year-old ex-West Coast champion Tom Tromp, will face its first test Saturday in a race against Lake Merritt Club at Lake Merritt.

Most of the crew are 19-year-olds with limited experience. In the four-oared shell are Chuck Mohn, Andy Kerr, Chuck Issel and Terry Brown. Although only one steerer is necessary, Sid Bernstein and Phil Lerner have been working at the coxswain position in case an alternate is needed.

The Long Beach course, site of the 1932 Olympics, is the regulation 2000 meters, approximately a mile and a quarter. "It's about a seven-minute, all-out effort," said Mohn. "It's like trying to lift a car for seven minutes."

"We use an unorthodox style," Mohn remarked. "Most crews utilize the bend-over-and-pull style. We mimic the Washington State style."

(Washington State defeated California last year in the West Coast Sprints.)

"Our style," Mohn smiled, "uses brains instead of muscles."

WORKHORSE of the Ram baseball squad, John Pearce will carry most of the hurling chores for the locals as they attempt to recover from a poor season start.

Diamondmen Eye League Victory At Oakland Friday

Posting a lowly one-win three-loss conference record the Ram horsehiders hope to get back on the winning path again as they travel to Oakland to take on the Thunderbirds of Oakland City College in their next league game on Friday.

Boasting a well-balanced team, the Rams defeated the University of California Frosh 5-3, March 21, on the Golden Gate Park courts, although Ram standout Siska was defeated by Doug Sykes in three sets, 4-6, 6-4 and 7-5. One match was called because of darkness.

Members of the team are really playing up to their capabilities. Siska is regaining his top form of last year; he resumed practice only a short time before the season began after a two-month lay-off.

Although the Rams have shown a well-balanced attack and quality of talent, the top feat in general performance as yet this year is the spectacular grand slam match against Contra Costa College, when the netters won every set, all 14 of them, in dumping the Comets.

John Pearce hurled his way through eight tough innings but was visibly tired in the ninth as he walked two men, hit the third batter and gave up a bases-loaded double, which gave the Bulldogs the win with a final 9-7 tally.

In the second game Don Kunkle started for the Rams and pitched effectively for the first four innings, but ran into trouble in the fifth. With the bases loaded and no one out, Pearce was summoned from the bullpen and managed to get the side out but not before six big runs had scored.

The Bulldogs added four more runs in the next two innings to make the score 10-0, and it looked as though nothing would stop the visitors.

However, the locals staged a surprising offensive attack in the seventh frame and scored six runs to put themselves right back in the ball game. Another two runs were scored for the Rams in the eighth inning, but that was as far as they could go. Utility man Tauber went to the mound for the final two innings and gave up one run, which made the final score 11-8.

Weak pitching has hampered the baseball squad so far in the season, and there is no relief in sight. Workhorse Pearce will continue to carry the brunt of the load during the rest of the league season.

Another disappointment so far has been the hitting of utility man Don Meroff. A .355 hitter from last season, he has only been able to come up with a .250 average so far.

Lettuce Bowl Films Set For Block SF

Films of the Thanksgiving Day Lettuce Bowl game will be shown in College Hour Friday in C-246, according to Louis Vasquez, sponsor of the Block SF Society.

The college football team was victorious in this postseason bowl game last November, posting a 22-14 victory over Monterey Peninsula College.

The game was not decided until the last two minutes, when half-back Ron Coleman raced 12 yards around left end for the winning touchdown.

It was the first postseason game since 1948 for a Ram eleven, and Coach Grover Klemmer praised his team for the best blocking and tackling exhibition of the season.

Four Teams Clash In IFC Cage Tilts Tonight

Two games are scheduled today in the Inter-Fraternity Council basketball division, when Gamma Phi Ypsilon meets Alpha Sigma Delta, and Beta Tau takes on Alpha Kappa Rho at 7:15 p.m. in the men's gymnasium in the Associated Men Student-sponsored intramural basketball competition.

This slate ends the third round of play in the current tournament, which will pit the IFC winner against the Council of Organization division winner in May for the AMS intramural perpetual trophy.

COO action last Tuesday night saw the Collegiate Five bowl over, under the auspices of the C.C. team, winning 103-20, in a game where 58 points were racked up by the Collegiate Five in the first half.

The Divine Ones trounced the Newman Club 55-28, in a game with consistent scoring for the Divine Ones by John Giles.

Reversing the staggered-score trend, the Campus Police edged the Filipino Club, 35-34, in an evenly matched contest.

On March 27, the Divine Ones beat the Hotel and Restaurant team, 61-32. In the second game of the evening, the C.C.'s, in a hard fought fast moving game, downed the Filipino Club, 31-26.

That same night the Collegiate Five hit the Newman Club with a 79-41 defeat in the women's gymnasium.

COO games listed for Tuesday, April 24, following Easter vacation, send the Filipino Club against the Collegiate Five, and the Hotel and Restaurant team against the C.C.'s in the men's gymnasium. The Campus Police will play the Divine Ones in the women's gymnasium.

On Tuesday, May 1, the Newman Club goes against the C.C.'s, the Filipino Club plays the Divine Ones, and the Hotel and Restaurant team plays the Campus Police, starting the fifth round of competition.

Last Tuesday night in the men's gymnasium the two IFC games portended a hot league playoff, with Beta Tau being downed by first place Zeta Phi Sigma, 44-23, and Alpha Sigma Delta beating Alpha Kappa Rho, 26-14, in a closely knit contest that saw both sides matched evenly.

National Amateur Fencing Contest Here Saturday

Top fencers of the country will be competing in the Amateur Fencers League of America competition Saturday in the men's gymnasium.

Electrically wired foils will be used in this open individual national competition, and winners of this meet can be eligible to compete for places on the United States Olympic team.

Films will be taken of the fencing team in action by Emmett Smith of the photography department. Len Johnson, fencing instructor here, said.

Members of the team are Stuart Funke, Harry Jorgenson, Bob Lawrence and Bill Lindo.

On Saturday, April 28, the women's fencing teams of 12 colleges will fence in the Western Intercollegiate Fencing conference to be held at the University of California in Berkeley.

Carolyn Diaz, Clara Mark and Jennifer Renold will compete for the college at this meet.

Also, on this same day, the RA's archery, badminton, bowling and volleyball teams will compete with Contra Costa College there.

On March 31 the college's fencing team added to its Western states championship by winning first place, taking seven bouts against no losses. San Francisco State College came in second place, while Los Angeles took third.

The traditional "feud and feed" volleyball sports day, scheduled Thursday, April 26, will be held here in the College of San Mateo, Laurine Bergie, women's physical education director, stated this week.

This sports day is described as "one of the highlights of the Recreation Association's Spring 1962 semester."

Before the competition, dinner will be served. Two RA teams will volley with San Mateo.

For ten years San Mateo and the college have alternated as hosts to this sports day each semester.

Al Darnes Throws Disc 173-3 For National Mark

Muscular Alex Darnes threw the discus 173-3 to break the National Junior College record and highlight Ram participation in a quadrangular and dual meet Saturday at Spartan Stadium.

In the Big Eight triangular meet the Rams were defeated, 71-51, by College of San Mateo, but trounced Stockton, 91-21, to make their record read 4-2. San Jose State's frosh was the fourth entrant, and won the overall title.

Darnes, a former prep star at Polytechnic High, broke the old mark of 171-8 1/2, set by Harry Edwards in 1960. The 5-10, 225-pound Darnes, an All-Conference football lineman, threw more than 167 feet to win the State JC meet last year.

Coach Lou Vasquez indicated Darnes had thrown around 170 feet in practice this year, and hoped "he would throw 180 before the season ends."

George Holand (23-9 1/2), Lon Brantley (22-6 1/2) and Herb Brisco (21-8) took second, fourth and fifth to give the Rams eight points in the broad jump.

In the two-mile, Roger Richey (9:48.9) and Rich Byers (9:51.0), finished second and third. Bob Coleman took thirds in both hurdle races, and Claud Shipp ran 10 flat to grab a third in the 100.

NETTERS WIN, 6-1. Although the Rams' number one Bob Siska lost to Tom Edleson, 6-2, between 1 and 5 p.m. in the theater. College of San Mateo, Diablo Valley, Shasta and Oakland City Colleges are to participate.

The plan for the afternoon is that each group plays for 30 minutes. Following the concert presentation of each division, a combined band performance with a total of 75 musicians is scheduled.

Shasta will begin the program on the stage to be followed by San Francisco in the orchestra pit under Cahn's direction. Performances by Diablo, Oakland and San Mateo will follow.

The varied entertainment will end with a performance by the combined string orchestra conducted by Allan Scholl of Diablo.

An invitation to attend has been extended by Cahn to all students. He feels that "the show will further the college's attempt to offer a full musical picture featuring both professional artists and works of other colleges."

The fifth in the spring concert series will headline the Mills Chamber Trio in a recital Friday, May 11.

On Friday, May 18, the concert band and orchestra of the college will perform to be followed on June 1 by a choral concert now in preparation by Galen Marshall, choir director.

Maxwell Anderson's Jeanne d'Arc Climaxes College Drama Schedule

Joan of Lorraine, a play by Maxwell Anderson, is to be the next and final theater production of the season, Michael Griffin, drama director, said today.

The show concerns an actress who is rehearsing the Joan of Arc story and becomes troubled because the playwright makes Joan compromise with the forces of evil while fulfilling her God-given mission.

Joan of Lorraine is scheduled to open on Friday, May 25 and will bring the drama season to a close for this semester. The last play, Time Limit, played for an estimated 700, the best turn-out recently accorded a City College drama production.

Try-outs for the play were held in the choral room of the arts building, through Friday, when, according to Griffin, "most of the principal characters were cast."

Valley Concert In College Hour Prelude To Festival Tuesday

By Herman Kligerman

A performance by the San Bernardino Valley College concert band during College Hour Friday in the theater will be a prelude to the visit of four two-year college groups here next Tuesday afternoon for an instrumental festival, Meyer Cahn, music director, disclosed today.

The San Bernardino group, composed of 47 student musicians under the direction of Paul Oxley, is nearing the conclusion of a successful week-long California college tour.

Repertoire of the company includes 17th century music, symphony offerings, marches and selections from West Side Story.

Beginning at 10 a.m., the performance will be transmitted into the choral room, A-133, via closed-circuit television, Cahn added.

Next Tuesday, May 8, four college bands will join the San Francisco orchestra in a special musical festival between 1 and 5 p.m. in the theater.

College of San Mateo, Diablo Valley, Shasta and Oakland City Colleges are to participate.

The plan for the afternoon is that each group plays for 30 minutes. Following the concert presentation of each division, a combined band performance with a total of 75 musicians is scheduled.

Shasta will begin the program on the stage to be followed by San Francisco in the orchestra pit under Cahn's direction. Performances by Diablo, Oakland and San Mateo will follow.

The varied entertainment will end with a performance by the combined string orchestra conducted by Allan Scholl of Diablo.

An invitation to attend has been extended by Cahn to all students. He feels that "the show will further the college's attempt to offer a full musical picture featuring both professional artists and works of other colleges."

Five former Guardsman staff members who have transferred to San Jose State College are now getting frequent bylines on that college's newspaper, the Spartan Daily.

Lester On, former Guardsman reporter, is now the Feature Editor at San Jose, while Bob Pacini, Guardsman editor-in-chief for two semesters in 1960-61, is currently a reporter on the Daily.

Paul Plansky, last semester's editor-in-chief, Tom Kennedy, formerly sports editor on The Guardsman, and John Henry, sports reporter here in 1958, contribute regularly as Spartan Daily reporters.

Hacker intends to go to San Jose or San Francisco State College.

Petitions To Run For Offices Due Monday

Nominations for next semester's 20 Associated Student elective offices will be up for grabs as AS President Dan Collins presides over the newly conceived open nominating convention at 7:30 p.m. today in Smith Hall.

The nominating convention which is open to all students, coincides with the recent revamping in voting procedure. This semester non-AS card holders are free to vote—with the idea, Collins explained, of "having more active participation in student government."

More than two weeks of campaigning will follow the convention tonight, with student elections later in the month, May 23 and 24, according to Rick Aguirre, Election Commissioner.

Two candidate deadlines fall on the same day. Along with his petition to run for office, each candidate must turn in one five-by-seven and three two-by-three inch pictures of himself no later than 1:10 p.m. next Monday, to Aguirre in S-134.

Campaign posters and the location of the posters will be approved by Aguirre through Friday, May 11.

Sponsorship Key Point. A major point in the new system is that in order to be nominated a student must either be sponsored by an on-campus organization or personally interest Aguirre of his intention to run for office.

Regarding the closing of the stacks, Miriam Lorenzen, COO secretary, said, "I suggest that to solve this problem, the library initiate a system of inspection whereby each student entering the stacks should leave his books outside, as is done at the bookstore."

Oscar E. Anderson, co-ordinator of educational management, stated, "We tried this but we found that books were still missing, and also that students were tearing pages out of books."

Then a student suggested that perhaps a photostat machine, which could duplicate pages from a book, could be used to solve this problem.

"This is a very good idea; the cost would be relatively inexpensive," Anderson said.

Fraternity Offers Aid. At this time, Roger Labatille from the Alpha Phi Omega fraternity said, "Our fraternity has a Verifax machine which could be used for such a purpose. We would be glad to operate the machine for the college's students."

The main purpose of the photostat machine would be for the benefit of students wishing to use pages from books for study, explained Labatille.

"Up to Students"—Anderson. Concerning the use of the fountain section of Smith Hall for study between 9 and 11 a.m., Anderson said, "If students agree to keep the noise down to a minimum there and agree to keep the campus free from litter, we might be able to provide this area for study."

"And," Anderson continued, "if students agree to take more afternoon classes, we may also be able to provide the use of a few rooms in the arts building for a study area."

Early Finals Fearing Asked. Ed Pawlus, COO president, raised the question of the administration posting the dates of final examinations early in the semester.

"Currently, students just do not know when the finals will be given," Pawlus exclaimed.

"I agree," Anderson replied. "We have waited too long to announce the dates of these final examinations. We are going to publish the schedule of finals next week."

"Next semester the dates of final examinations will be released way ahead of time," Anderson declared.

The convention was called to order by Associated Students President Dan Collins at 7:30 p.m. when Ralph Hillman, dean of men, presented his keynote address.

Guest speakers at the event were Lee Doison, political science instructor; Lloyd D. Luckmann, co-ordinator of instruction, and Fred Cherniss, Associated Students president.

More than 80 students were in attendance at the event according to an estimate made by John Homms, chairman of the problems committee.

Confab Proposal: Photostat Machine To Reopen Stacks

By John Silva

"Topping the agenda at the Council of Organizations problems convention held last Wednesday in Smith Hall was a possible solution to the library stacks problem, the use of Smith Hall as a study area and a beginning-of-the-semester announcement date for final examinations."

Regarding the closing of the stacks, Miriam Lorenzen, COO secretary, said, "I suggest that to solve this problem, the library initiate a system of inspection whereby each student entering the stacks should leave his books outside, as is done at the bookstore."

Freedom Of The Press... ...Is It Fact Or Fiction?

RECENT journalistic "uprisings" at San Francisco State College which gained considerable publicity in the city's dailies, and brought a small group of pickets onto that campus, seem to indicate a slight ignorance as to just what it is that "freedom of the press" includes.

The incidents at State which triggered all the activity were the recall from sales stands of (1) the campus humor magazine, "Garter," (2) the literary magazine, "Transfer," and (3) withholding one issue of the daily newspaper, "The Golden Gater."

These actions were labeled by many, including the pickets, as suppression of the free press.

But just what is freedom of the press?

If newspapers printed any and all stories written by undisciplined reporters, that would be freedom of the press. Is a newspaper free to do this?

Certainly! Any journal may print what it wishes if it does not mind risking libel or slander suits.

In this way freedom of the press is limited by the laws of our country which protect the individual.

A publication has no obligation to its readers, or to its advertisers, or to anyone except its own publisher.

The editor of the periodical is responsible for what is printed and must answer to the publisher for any errors in judgment. But if a libel suit is instigated, it will be against the publisher.

In the case of a college publication, however, who would be the defendant in such a suit?

It would be ridiculous to try to sue the editor. Possibly the faculty adviser could be held responsible, but it is most likely the college, which is, in fact, the reason for existence of the campus publication, which would in the end be held responsible.

Thus, as the periodical's raison d'être, the college is, in effect, the publisher.

Then would any publisher allow himself to be libeled or slandered by his own publication? He couldn't bring suit against himself.

More likely the offending issues would be destroyed, as happened at State. The publisher may also feel a strong desire to give the same treatment to the editor.

Romantically Over 21

Editor, The Guardsman:

I would like to thank you and your staff for the article regarding me in your April 11 edition. It was very kind of the Guardsman to consider my career worthy of space in the college publication.

However, I feel there is one point which should be corrected. So, before the younger students start offering to carry my books and before Mr. Brady presents me with a key to the elevator, may I state:

Chronologically, I'm over 30.

Professionally, I'm 26.

—and Romantically, I'm over 21.

Thank you again.

'G's' Little Monster

Editor, The Guardsman, S.F.C.C.

As a newspaper writer (garden editor for the San Francisco Examiner) I know how articles can get thoroughly mixed up with no basis for fact. However, I do object to some of the items in the April 4 issue concerning the horticultural center's "moved by a monster."

1. The bulldozers are not now working in and around the college's horticultural center.

2. The freeway will not speed over our domain. We are on the cloverleaf leading to Ocean Avenue.

3. The "majority of the floral displays in and around the college's horticultural center" are not maintained by the SF Park and Recreation Department. The work is carried out by the students.

These students, incidentally, until recently, have planned and planted many portions of the campus as well as taking care of them. Only in the past month have they been given to the Superintendent of Grounds to take care of since students cannot do an adequate job, enter flower shows and maintain the center at the same time.

4. The new home for the Park and Recreation portion of Balboa Park is not McLaren Park but will be in Golden Gate Park close by the nursery.

Whoever gathered the data for the article certainly failed to find source data. We, in the horticultural center, have known for the last six years that no action would be taken for the next two years. This information is still valid although we have reason to believe it is no more accurate than the material in The Guardsman article.

Harry Nelson

(Horticulture Instructor)

Editor's Note: We acknowledge your corrections and thank you, but, really, Mr. Nelson: S.F.C.C.? When the editorial on the same page in that same issue stresses the correct title of City College of San Francisco?

'G' Improves

Editor, The Guardsman:

Several weeks ago in your newspaper you had referred to the club league of the AMS basketball league as the Club Activities Board league. I wrote a letter to you telling you of my mistake. Let me now comment on your April 11 sports page when you correctly referred to the division as the Council of Organizations.

Another thing which deserves looking into is the misspelling of people's names. You should use a trick that a high school used. They offered free coke to anyone who found his name misspelled in the paper.

Let me commend you on your editing in the City College earthquake fault. This was a very excellent editorial. The Campus PanoRAMa should be a big hit, as I have seen, that most people who start reading The Guardsman turn to the Campus PanoRAMa first.

Keep up the good work!

Over Sea And Land, In Europe And Asia— Miss Liberty Makes Greatest Impression

By John Muller

Believe it or not, the Statue of Liberty was the most memorable sight that Mary Perry, counselor here, remembers during her recent Sabbath leave spent abroad—at least that's what she says.

The trip began in March of '61 when she departed for Japan via the President Hoover.

For many years Japanese artists have traditionally represented their homeland with pink cherry blossoms and Mount Fuji proudly displaying a white snowcap in the background.

Spring was the ideal time for visiting Japan, for when Miss Perry arrived, cherry blossoms shrouded the countryside everywhere and snow-capped mountains were visible in the distance.

It must have been like seeing a Japanese mural in three-D.

After a short stay in Japan, Miss Perry took to the air and visited several Far Eastern countries.

Probably the most magnificent sight she saw was that of the ruins of Angkor in Cambodia. Angkor was the capital of the Khmer Empire from 802 to 1431, when it was captured by the Thai.

Although its population was undoubtedly close to a million, it was mysteriously abandoned soon after it was captured and wasn't rediscovered until about 1860 when a team of French archaeologists excavated the ruins.

In contrast, the largest city in Cambodia now, Phnom Penh, is roughly 20,000.

After touring the Far East—except Laos, a little too red hot at the time—Miss Perry returned in June via the President Wilson.

She was off again a month later. She traveled down the Pacific coast on the Pacific and Orient Line's Oriana, then through the Canal shortcut to Europe.

When she arrived in France, she rented a car and with some companions, hit the road. After touring France, Holland, Belgium and several neighboring countries on a four-week car trip, she again took to the sea.

The sea—Mediterranean; the ship—Meteor, a small cruise boat ("It was pretty small"); the destination—nations bordering on the Mediterranean.

This time she visited the French and Italian Riviera, Greece, most of the Near East and Egypt.

Should The Purchase Of AS Cards Be Made Mandatory?

By R. D. Hacker and Harry Cordell

Kathy Glennen, freshman:

No! Each student should have enough spirit to buy a card. If the student doesn't think that he is going to use the card, then it is up to him to decide whether or not to buy one. I think that if there were more spirit more students would buy cards.

Ann J. Thompson, sophomore:

I don't believe that there is anything at the college to tie the students together. If a student had to buy an AS card, he would use it. There are enough activities at the college, but there aren't enough interested students. Yes, I think all students should buy Associated Student cards.

Leah Del Castillo, freshman:

I think that only the students who plan to participate in the activities offered by the college should be made to buy cards. I think that I would buy a card if there were more spirit and if there were more and better activities offered.

Bryan Gould, sophomore:

If the cards were priced at $2.00, then they should be made mandatory, but $5.00 is far too much to ask. If the students were offered more in return, then I would say that $5.00 is fine. The college needs more speakers, especially on controversial matters.

Louise Kay, sophomore:

I attended another college where the students had to buy student body cards, and I think it was a good idea. The college offers activities for the students, and it is up to them to support their college. I think everyone should have an AS card.

Kenneth Liebhart, sophomore:

I don't believe that any student should be made to buy a student body card. If the student is going to participate in the college activities, and if he feels that it is his obligation to buy a card then that is his decision to make. But he shouldn't be forced to buy one.

Bonnie Warren, sophomore:

I don't attend any of the games or dances that are put on by the college, so I have no use for a student body card. I think that I would buy a card if there were more spirit and if there were more and better activities offered.

Larry Wong, sophomore:

I have never really given much thought to the idea. I have a student body card, but I think that it is up to each and every student to buy a card only if he feels that he has some reason to purchase one. No, AS cards should not be mandatory.

THE SAME English IB student who thought King Henry IV, part one, was "a golf story" and Hamlet "trite" now believes that all of Shakespeare's work is "some-what tropical."

He believes that is the only reason they are read.

"There is a suspicion in Richard II that King Richard is partial to the boys, and in Hamlet there's a possibility that Ophelia is Hamlet's mistress."

When asked why the works haven't been taken to court and censored, the not replied, "It will be in court pretty soon. Why the only reason they separate the acts, scenes and number the lines is so one person can tell the other (the good part is on lines 87-92)."

We can just say William turning in his dirty grave now.

NO MATTER what the circumstances, if a boy wants to meet a girl he will find a way. The ways are not always the same.

In fact, one could probably write a book on 10,000 Ways and Excuses to Meet a Girl. Let's see:

No. 876: In typing 35A last week, Romeo approached the pretty Juliet and asked, "May I have your address and phone number?"

"Why," the somewhat shocked and bewildered coo replied.

"Well, ah, ah, I heard you had a typewriter, and I thought I'd come over some night and use it."

back, San Francisco State College couldn't explain the excessive loss of books from its library.

During a vacation break, when the "instructional" books were opened, more than 5000 over-due books, some dating back nearly 10 years, were found piled on shelves.

Two months ago students here were denied access to the book shelves for the first time in 14 years.

THE COUNCIL of Organizations (COO) held its first problems convention last Wednesday.

One student last week saw the posters on the walls advertising the convention. "Does this 'COO' convention have anything to do with the pigeon problem?" he wondered.

ANYONE with the stamina to follow television's late movies is sure to be shown the glories of war as Clark Gable or Gary Cooper perform courageous deeds on the picturesque battlefield of a post-World War II film.

But times have changed. Television through its old, late-watch movies, is the only entertainment medium today with enough nerve to portray war as a noble activity.

If the films made now are any indication, it would seem that the world has learned its lesson and remembers only too well the horrible reality of 20 years ago.

Three dramatic examples of contemporary thought on war from Germany, Italy and the United States are now playing at local theaters here in the city.

Bernard Wicki of Germany wrote and directed The Bridge, which won six international awards. Wicki's story concerns a half dozen 16-year-old youths who are exiled from their classrooms near the end of the war in Germany's last vain effort at success.

The hardships of experience had long since robbed their parents of any glittering ideals they might have had about their cause, and the boys, disillusioned by the attitude of their superiors, go into battle singing an obstinate song of hope and glory.

All but one are killed in a nightmare of brutal futility and the last has learned a lesson that will probably cost him his sanity.

Sophia Loren brought a Hollywood Oscar home to Italy for her performance in Two Women which was directed by Vittorio De Sica. The movie tells a tale of woe that is not easily blotted out of the viewer's memory.

Miss Loren plays a widow who decides to take her young daughter away from the bombs that fall near their home and small store in Rome. But the danger she attempts to escape catches her and the child in the end.

No stone is left unturned, and all suffer in the clutches of war. Women, children, the young, the old, the innocent; no one escapes.

Maximilian Schell, one of an amazingly adept cast, won an Oscar for America in Judgment at Nuremberg. Stanley Kramer's excellent film presents a post-war atrocity trial conducted by an American tribunal to decide the degree of guilt in a group of German officials.

A battle-torn Germany tries to forget the murder of eight million Jews. Apparently today's world still remembers and so far profits by it.

Coed Enters New Work Experience Training Program

Selling color and princess telephones will be only part of Sylvia Gnusti's part-time job at the telephone company in her work experience program.

Miss Gnusti, a merchandising major in her second semester here, is enrolled in a new on-the-job training program instituted by the Pacific Telephone Company and the merchandising department of the college.

Previously, the department concentrated only on the preparation of students for retail employment.

The new program began in June, 1961, when Beverly Chaney, then a merchandising student here and presently employed by the telephone company, decided to train as a service representative for that company.

Miss Chaney did so well with the training program that the company decided to start a full program in cooperation with the college. An extension of the regular merchandising training, it offers work experience with the telephone company to qualified applicants.

Miss Gnusti will be preparing for employment as a service representative which involves selling, by telephone, the many services of the company and includes the responsibility of handling 3000 accounts a month.

Training at the company will involve classes of specific instruction. "At the present time," Elizabeth Heiselt, merchandising instructor here explained, "there are about 37 students employed in the business department's program."

As part of the college's observance of Parent Schools Week, April 29-May 5, parents and alumni are invited to attend a meeting to form a patrons group at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in A-135.

Seventeen colleges in California now have patron organizations and spokesmen here hope that this college will form one soon.

California Congress of Parents and Teachers, Inc., published a pamphlet which defines patron councils as the collegiate level of PTA, formed of parents, faculty members and other interested persons.

Some of the usual activities of patrons clubs as explained in the booklet are assistance with commencement receptions; provision of hosts and hostesses, serving of refreshments for open houses and college functions; and aid to students seeking housing accommodations.

Financial aid through establishment of scholarships and a loan program are also supplied to some of the college by the Patrons.

Patron committees are founded to cooperate closely with student organizations and college administrators.

Officers associated with the formation of a patron group at the college are Mrs. Stanley Kolar, president of representative of the Second District PTA; Mrs. A. Boyd Pucenelli, service chairman, and Mrs. Theodore Doudiet, representative of the Second District PTA.

Phi Beta Kappa has the most pledges to be honored at the Inter-Sorority Council cotillion ball Friday. They are: Peggy Thon-Wohrden, Carolyn Wall, Gloria McCullen, Jean Shirley, Ruth Alford, Linda Katzeimer, Diane Baffick, Denise Crispi and Claudette Siciles.

Five coeds, Barbara Ferdian, Diane Dipiano, Sherry Carpenter, Jan Wisnia and Roz Birbaum, pledged Theta Tau.

Pledges of Gamma Phi Upsilon fraternity are Chris Saher, Rich Thompson, Bob Escobar, Bob Atkins, Bob Mack and Joe Rodriguez.

Carrying out the duties of pledge week, Gil Marino, Lou Clerro and Mike Carr, pledged Phi Beta Delta fraternity.

Zeta Phi Sigma's pledges include Bill Demartini, Al Parvinielli, Jim Davis, Don Holcher and Nick Zoravich.

CHOR MEETS

Meq clubs and organizations in the Council of Organizations are holding regular business meetings during College Hour on Friday.

Holding its nomination and election of officers for the fall semester in C-115, the Hill Foundation will also discuss plans of the coming Inter-Hill summer program.

The Roger Williams Fellowship, which meets in A-211, has as speaker for its next few meetings Warren Ninnies, executive director of San Francisco Youth for Christ, Christian Anti-Communism Crusade, Council of Churches, Conference of Christians and Jews and Seaman's mission.

To the men of this college, midterm and final examinations took on a new meaning. By not studying now they were risking their future and also a very important part of their present life.

Ex-Student's Work Won Three Awards

Prize-winning photos are included in the one-man photography show, featuring the work of news cameraman Fred Matthes, now on display in the Cloud Hall photography gallery.

Matthes enrolled here in September, 1948, and was graduated in 1951. While here, he picked up experience in photo journalism in two semesters as a Guardsman staff photographer.

After leaving here, he went to work for International News Photos, then in San Francisco. After working briefly there, he was called into the army, where he spent two years.

Matthes then went to a photographic school at Fort Monmouth, New Jersey. With the completion of this training, he was assigned as photographer with the Third Army in Atlanta, Georgia.

Ram Nine Face Panthers May 5 In Capital City

Struggling to stay out of the cellar in the Big Eight Conference, the local horsehiders travel to the Capital City Saturday to take on last year's league champions, the Sacramento Panthers.

With but four games remaining in the league schedule, the locals have a two-win eight-loss record.

The last three losses have come at the hands of the Oakland Thunderbirds and the Contra Costa Comets. In the first game played against the T-Birds, the diamondmen were thumped solidly, 8-1. Knuckle ball pitcher Don Kunkle suffered a disastrous four-run sixth inning and took his third loss of the season.

In the second Oakland contest, the Rams were trounced 10-3. The only high spot for the locals was a home run hit by Kunkle in the sixth inning.

Contra Costa invaded Balboa Field and handed the locals a 7-3 loss. John Pearce was the losing pitcher, but it was errors that cost the game. With the score tied 2-2 in the seventh inning, Lou Bevilacqua and Kunkle each contributed a two-out error.

Pearce walked the bases loaded and Jim Heane blasted a grand slam to left center.

Utility man Don Meroff, who batted 355 last season, has dropped to .134. This year Meroff has hit the ball well but it hasn't fallen in.

George Tauber, first baseman and relief pitcher, has been the most consistent player on the squad as he has stymied the opposition in relief while contributing clutch hits.

Jim Carroll, stocky catcher for the diamondmen, has surprised everyone this season by batting a strong .318. Known for his defensive ability primarily, Carroll has hit this steady pace to lead the team. This mark is a vast improvement over his average of .200 last year.

RAMBLINGS

By Jerry Littrell

SPORTS FANS, no matter who they are, are always stereotyped by the city they are in and the team they are watching.

For instance, the baseball fans in Philadelphia, a city often referred to as one of Brotherly Love, are known far and wide for their eternal hostility toward the visiting and home team alike.

The basketball citizens from the champion city, Boston, are known for their consistent spirit and support of their team at every contest.

In San Francisco the fans (short for fanatics) are regarded as major league (in name only) team. They were handkerchiefs at the opposing pitcher when he is in trouble and carry on in a manner similar to one that they used when the Seals roared around at 16th and Bryant.

There is one more type of fan that must be mentioned. That is the enthusiastic, faithful sports spectator attending City College of San Francisco.

This fan is a queer bird. He will half-heartedly support a winning team but will completely deny the existence of a team caught in the middle of a losing streak.

An example of this appears in the comparison of the basketball squad and the baseball team. At the beginning of the cage season, the Rams were picked only for a possible fourth-place finish.

Naturally the first game, saw approximately no fans in the stands. The only people there were a few of the players' girl friends, two custodians and an elderly gentleman who started too late that night to see the Saints play.

However, after winning the first game a few students actually came the next night to the following game. But Contra Costa also brought fans along, and when the final count was in, the visitor's rooting section out-manned the locals four-to-one.

As the Rams approached the conference title, more students turned out for the games, but the attendance was never what it should have been. The baseball squad wasn't picked for a very high finish in the league either, and so far they have lived up to expectations. However, the total number of fans who have attended the league games through the season have not even equaled the few who attended the first cage contest.

Players are born actors. There is nothing that a player likes better than a robust round of applause from a stand full of people. Unfortunately, the only thing a Ram sportsman will hear is the hollow echo of an empty gymnasium or field.

Freshman's Leap Near Record As Rams Place 4th At Fresno

By Dave Kleinberg

Freshman Lon Brantley came within seven inches of breaking the City College broad jump record by leaping 24-1 last Friday in the Northern California Relays at Fresno.

The ex-Mission High prep, whose best previous jump this year was almost two feet less at 22-7, and Alex Darnes, who won the discuss with a "poor" 162-11, paced the Rams to a 20-point fourth place finish.

College of Sequoias won the overall meet. Brantley's jump, which fell short of Mike Burton's 24-7 1/2 mark set in 1958, came on his last leap, and gave him a victory over teammate George Holland, who jumped 22-11 for second.

Coach Lou Vasquez indicated there are better jumping pits than Fresno's, and that they had known Brantley was capable of doing more than 22-7.

Darnes, who set a national record of 173-3 two weeks ago and hasn't suffered a defeat this year, edged Reedley College's Frank Parks, credited with the States' second best discuss throw, Parks threw 157-2, but the heavy winds probably held all throws down.

The college's two-mile relay squad composed of Jose Valle, Tony Ferrigno, Andy Loebe and Tom Power, grabbed a third.

The spikers finished the season 5-2 in second place behind San Mateo, but hope to make up for it in the Big Eight Conference championships this Saturday at Sacramento.

The Rams' number-one man, Bob Siska, 19-year-old ex-Junior Davis Cupper, lost his only league match to the promising Edelfsen, 6-2, 6-4.

Over the vacation, the Rams defeated California's Frosh, 4 1/2-4 1/2, with the contest called because of darkness on April 10. In a league match on April 13 they blanked lowly Santa Rosa, 7-0, and in a practice contest on April 16 dumped Santa Clara, 9-0.

Greninger broke two college records in the competition and proved to be the outstanding man in the meet for the locals.

Oakland came out on top in the Big Eight meet, followed by Stockton, San Mateo, Sacramento and San Francisco in the triangle division.

Coach Roy Burkhead was pleased with the showing of his men in the meet. "The men I brought up to the Big Eight meet really showed well," Burkhead stated.

Holm, who set a record last year in the 100-yard free style, saw it fall to a Stockton swimmer who turned in a 1:07 timing.

An invitation to attend has been extended by Cahn to all students. He feels that "the show will further the college's attempt to offer a full musical picture featuring both professional artists and works of other colleges."

The fifth in the spring concert series will headline the Mills Chamber Trio in a recital Friday, May 11.

On Friday, May 18, the concert band and orchestra of the college will perform to be followed on June 1 by a choral concert now in preparation by Galen Marshall, choir director.

Sal Vance's Band Plays As Pledges Are Introduced

By John Dubonnet

Spring Cotillion, the Inter-Sorority Council ball, will be held from 9 p.m. to 12 midnight Friday, in the Starlight Room of the Hilton Inn at the San Francisco International Airport, Jeri Sciutto, ISC president, declared yesterday.

Musie will be provided by Sal Vance and his band at this semi-formal affair. Cocktail dresses will be worn by the women and men will wear dark suits and ties.

Bids totaling 150 are being sold at $2 per couple in Dean Mary Golding's office, S-150, or in S-117 near the silver pole.

"This will be the first time in three years that Presents will not be held in Smith Hall but in a hotel," Miss Sciutto said.

During intermission each pledge will be presented and introduced by her sorority president.

Pledges, who will be wearing long white gloves, will be presented a rose "to signify the end of pledging and the beginning of sorority life," Miss Sciutto explained.

A photographer will be at the ball to take pictures.

Guests will have a view from the oval blue and white Starlight Room of the multi-level airport, Miss Sciutto affirmed.

Sorority presidents who have worked along with Phi Beta Rho's Miss Sciutto for the Spring Cotillion are Bev Hammer, Delta Psi; Nettie Cook, Delta Sigma Tau; Jon Doudiet, Gamma Kappa Beta; Judy Stern, Kappa Phi, and Marilyn Butler, Theta Tau.

Her colleagues remember Miss Mercer as an extraordinary woman who inspired and encouraged many neophyte writers in a most demanding craft, Miss Connolly stated, adding that this year's publication will be a symbolic tribute to the fire and excellence typical of Miss Mercer.

The new Forum staff is headed by Bryan Gould, editor; Rena Kitch, associate editor, and Howard Courtney, advertising manager.

Contributions of essays, short stories, verse, plays and art work were solicited from the general student body in an effort to collect the most representative writing throughout the academic year.

All manuscripts are now being read and analyzed by members of the Forum staff and club, Miss Connolly added.

Petitions To Run For Offices Due Monday

Nominations for next semester's 20 Associated Student elective offices will be up for grabs as AS President Dan Collins presides over the newly conceived open nominating convention at 7:30 p.m. today in Smith Hall.

The nominating convention which is open to all students, coincides with the recent revamping in voting procedure—this semester non-AS card holders are free to vote—with the idea, Collins explained, of "having more active participation in student government."

More than two weeks of campaigning will follow the convention tonight, with student elections later in the month, May 23 and 24, according to Rick Aguilar, Election Commissioner.

Two candidate deadlines fall on the same day. Along with his petition to run for office, each candidate must turn in one five-by-seven and three two-by-three inch pictures of himself no later than 1:10 p.m. next Monday, to Aguilar in S-134.

Campaign posters and the location of the posters will be approved by Aguilar through Friday, May 11.

Sponsorship Key Point

A major point in the new system is that in order to be nominated a student must either be sponsored by an on-campus organization or personally inform Aguilar of his intention to run for office.

Aguilar urged any student expecting difficulty in obtaining an organization's backing to consult with him or Collins in the AS Office, S-134, today at the convention tonight.

Students must receive a nomination tonight in order to run for an office.

Collins is anticipating a big turnout tonight since, he emphasized, during this semester's orientation some 350 entering students voiced an interest in student government and each one was sent a postcard last week notifying him of the convention tonight and inviting him to attend.

Party Organization Follows

Other rules governing campaigning, stated, before the convention tonight, Aguilar stated, but nominees are free to unite after tonight as long as they do not use names or initials of previously existing parties.

To aid candidates, petitions can be obtained from any of three sources: Dean Ralph Hillsman in S-149, Dean Mary Golding in S-150 or Aguilar in S-134.

All petitions must have the signatures of the candidate's counselor, the student bank to verify a $1.00 campaign cleanup fee, the registrar, the dean of men or women and the Election Commissioner.

Furthermore, each petition must have the signatures of 15 AS members.

Students Need Approval

Other rules governing campaigning, stated, that all publicity stunts must be approved by both Dean Hillsman and Aguilar.

Ballot boxes will be placed at the silver pole and in the basement of Science Hall near the vending machines, in Smith Hall, at the entrance to the library and at the entrance to the first floor of the arts building.

Voters must have a current registration card proving that they are enrolled here this semester.

Requirements Listed

Specific requirements for each office as provided in the AS constitution are as follows:

"President and Vice President shall have completed at least 42 units and not more than 60 with an over-all grade point average of 2.3 prior to taking his term of office."

"AMS and AWS Presidents must have completed at least 30 but not more than 60 units with an over-all grade point average of 2.2 prior to taking his term of office."

"Sophomore Class President must have completed at least 28 and not more than 60 units prior to his term of office."

"Freshman Class President must have completed at least 14 but not more than 27.5 units prior to taking office."

Council Composition Explained

Composition of Student Council, as stated in the constitution provides that "...14 members shall be members-at-large of the Associated Students."

"Seven of these shall have completed at least 12 and not more than 27.5 units of work at the time of taking office and shall be representative of the Freshman Class."

"Seven of these shall have completed at least 28 and not more than 60 units of work at the time of taking office and shall be representative of the Sophomore Class."

Guest speakers at the event were Lee Dolson, political science instructor; Lloyd D. Luckmann, co-ordinator of instruction; and Fred Chernies, Associated Men Student president.

More than 95 students were in attendance at the event according to an estimate made by John Homms, chairman of the problems committee.

Confab Proposal: Photostat Machine To Reopen Stacks

By John Silva

Topping the agenda at the Council of Organizations problems convention held last Wednesday in Smith Hall was a possible solution to the library stacks problem, the use of Smith Hall as a study area and a beginning-of-the-semester announcement date for final examinations.

Regarding the closing of the stacks, Miriam Lorenzen, COO secretary, said, "I suggest that to solve this problem, the library initiate a system of inspection whereby each student entering the stacks should leave his books outside, as is done at the bookstore."

Oscar E. Anderson, co-ordinator of educational management, stated, "We tried this, but we found that books were still missing, and also that students were tearing pages out of books."

Then a student suggested that perhaps a photostat machine, which could duplicate pages from a book, could be used to solve this problem.

"This is a very good idea, the cost would be relatively inexpensive," Anderson said.

Fraternity Offers Aid

At this time, Roger Labatille from the Alpha Phi Omega fraternity said, "Our fraternity has a Verifax machine which could be used for such a purpose. We would be glad to operate the machine for the college's students."

The main purpose of the photostat machine would be for the benefit of students wishing to use pages from books for study, explained Labatille.

"Up to Students"—Anderson

Concerning the use of the fountain section of Smith Hall for study between 9 and 11 a.m., Anderson said, "If students agree to keep the noise down to a minimum there and agree to keep the campus free from litter, we might be able to provide this area for study."

"And," Anderson continued, "if students agree to take more afternoon classes, we may also be able to provide the use of a few rooms in the arts building for a study area."

Early Finals Postponed

Ed Pawlus, COO president, raised the question of the administration postponing the dates of final examinations early in the semester.

"Currently, students just do not know when the finals will be given," Pawlus exclaimed.

"I agree," Anderson replied. "We have waited too long to announce the dates of these final examinations. We are going to publish the schedule of finals next week."

"Next semester the dates of final examinations will be released way ahead of time," Anderson declared.

Dean Gives Keynote Address

The convention was called to order by Associated Students President Dan Collins at 7:30 p.m. when Ralph Hillsman, dean of men, presented his keynote address.

Guest speakers at the event were Lee Dolson, political science instructor; Lloyd D. Luckmann, co-ordinator of instruction; and Fred Chernies, Associated Men Student president.

RAMBLINGS
By Jerry Littell

SPORTS FANS, no matter who they are, are always stereotyped by the city they are in and the team they are watching.

For instance, the baseball fans in Philadelphia, a city often referred to as one of Brotherly Love, are known far and wide for their eternal hostility toward the visiting and home team alike.

The basketball citizens from the champion city, Boston, are known for their consistent spirit and support of their team at every contest.

In San Francisco the fans (short for fanatics) are regarded as minor league spectators watching a major league (in name only) team. They were handkerchiefs at the opposing pitcher when he is in trouble and carry on in a manner similar to one that they used when the Seals roamed around at 16th and Bryant.

Freshman's Leap Near Record As Rams Place 4th At Fresno

By Dave Kleinberg
Freshman Lon Brantley came within seven inches of breaking the City College broad jump record by leaping 24-1 last Friday in the Northern California Relays at Fresno.

The ex-Mission High prep, whose best previous jump this year was almost two feet less at 22-7, and Alex Darnes, who won the discus with a "poor" 162-11, paced the Rams to a 20-point fourth place finish.

College of Sequoia's won the overall meet.

Brantley's jump, which fell short of Mack Burton's 24-7 3/4 mark set in 1955, came on his last leap, and gave him a victory over teammate George Holland, who jumped 22-11 for second.

Coach Lou Vasquez indicated there are better jumping pits than Fresno's, and that they had known Brantley was capable of doing more than 22-7. Darnes, who set a national record of 173-3 two weeks ago and hasn't suffered a defeat this year, edged Reedley College's Frank Parks, credited with the States' second best discus throw. Parks threw 157-2, but the heavy winds probably held all throws down.

The college's two-mile relay squad composed of Jose Valle, Tony Ferrigno, Andy Looney and Tom Power, grabbed a third.

The spikers finished the season 5-2 in second place behind San Mateo, but hope to make up for it in the Big Eight Conference championships this Saturday at Sacramento.

In the recent Big Eight Conference championships held April 13 and 14, seven of the 10 Ram splashes who competed placed in the finals and gained eligibility for the Northern California meet.

Also contending in the Northern California meet were the relay teams made up of free style members Eli Silver, Jeff Higman, John Holm and Bill Love; the medley team was composed of Love, Holm, Mark Haskell and Silver.

Herm Fruehnecht and Helm, breast stroke; Love, backstroke; Silver, free style; Haskell, butterfly man; and Chuck Greninger, mile and 440-free style, were the men who gained admittance to the Northern California meet on the basis of their showing in the Big Eight meet.

Greninger broke two college records in the competition and proved to be the outstanding man in the meet for the locals.

Oakland came out on top in the Big Eight meet, followed by Stockton, San Mateo, Sacramento and San Francisco in the triangle division.

Coach Roy Burkhead was pleased with the showing of his men in the meet. "The men I brought up to the Big Eight meet really showed well," Burkhead stated.

Holm, who set a record last year in the 100-yard free style, saw it fall to a stockton swimmer who turned in a 1:07 timing.

The Rams' number one man, Bob Siska, 19-year-old ex-Junior Davis Cupper, lost his only league match to the promising Edelfsen, 6-2, 6-4.

Over the vacation, the Rams deadlocked California's Fresh, 4 1/2-4 1/2, with the contest called because of darkness on April 10. In a league match on April 13 they blanked lowly Santa Rosa, 7-0, and in a practice contest on April 16 dumped Santa Clara, 9-0.

They'll be heavily favored to capture the Big Eight meet in Golden Gate Park this Friday and Saturday.

Oakland's Tom Edelfsen and Modesto's Ryder Getz could give the Rams trouble.

Commencement To Be Held In College Stadium

City College stadium will be the site for the 27th annual commencement ceremonies Thursday, June 7, Lloyd D. Luckmann, coordinator, division of instruction, revealed today.

The stadium was initially opened in fall, 1960, and after two years of deliberation by college administration was finally approved as the site for commencement.

Two honor students, Harry Cordellos and Diane Westman, have been selected as this year's student speakers.

Ceremonies are scheduled to begin at 11 a.m. with the traditional academic procession. President Louis G. Conlan will deliver the opening address and confer certificates of recognition to 800 graduates.

Invitations will be available to all graduates beginning tomorrow at the information booth in Science Hall. With the presentation of an Associated Student card, each person will be able to secure up to 10 bids.

Mills Trio To Play In Artist Concert Finale

Appearing as the final event of the artist concert series this semester, the Mills Chamber Trio will perform in the theater during College Hour this Friday.

The Mills Chamber Trio is part of the Mills Chamber Players who are connected with the faculty of Mills College.

One of the trio is Nathan Rubin, who has gained a reputation as a fine violinist. Rubin has appeared as soloist with the San Francisco Symphony, under the direction of Dmitri Mitropoulos, and has made recordings for Epic, Contemporary and Fantasy.

Another, Morton Subotnick, who plays the clarinet, has received both the Copely Award and the Forum Prize for his composition and was one of 23 composers who were invited to attend the recent Princeton seminar in advanced musical studies. Appearing with Rubin and Subotnick, will be Naomi Sparrow, who is renowned as a pianist. Miss Sparrow was one of three finalists in the international Debussy contest, held recently. She has also appeared as guest soloist at the University of California campuses at Davis, Los Angeles and Berkeley, as well as Mills College and radio station KPFA.

The program for Friday's concert is made up of the Trio in F major by Vivaldi, a Suite by Milhaud, and Contrasts by Bartok.

An invitation to attend the concert has been extended by Meyer Cahn, series sponsor, to all students. He feels that the "show will further the college's attempt to offer a full musical picture featuring professional and their works of art."

This recital will bring to a close the season's artist concert series. On Friday, May 18, the concert band of the college will perform, to be followed on June 1 by a choral concert.

A Study In Frustration

Spring 1962 Roster Lists 13 Kings, 1 Queen

By Bob O'Leary

This is a study in frustration. It all began recently when an enterprising Feature Editor assigned this reporter the student directory. "Find a story here," he demanded. (For the uninitiated, this type of assignment is as close to banishment to Siberia as newspapers can come. It's been done time and again. And rarely, if ever, can anything novel come of it.)

(But with a shrug of the shoulders and the old "odds is not to reason why, etc." attitude, we set about the chore.)

The distinction of having her name listed first goes to Vera Aaro. What an advantage having a name beginning with two A's would be in the interminable lines found while serving in the armed forces! However, there would be a definite handicap in always being last in line as, undoubtedly, Sharon Zwissig (last name on the list) would. With the obvious over, we turned to looking for famous names. Here was encountered nothing but frustration.

Some of our near-misses: Castro (not Fidel nor Raoul); Chevalier (not Maurice); Churchill (Alice, not Winston); Crockett (Marvin instead of Earl); Gunn (Pete? Nope); Casuso (Cass? No, however there is an Enrico, but the first name is Tina). And so it went. There were endless well-known last names. But their parents hadn't cooperated to make this story easier.

Ah! Finally a ray of light in the darkest of all assignments. At last a J. Kennedy. And if that weren't enough, a Richard Nixon. But look again.

Unfortunately, it's not John Kennedy. And Richard is James R. Nixon's middle name. Oh, well, try again. How about this? Three students are tied for the longest last name. They are Effie Apostolopoulos, Rhoda Giannfranceschi and Robin Van Cattenburch. There are seven last names listed with only two letters.

What's the most common name? And how many Smiths and Joneses are there? First of all, neither Smith nor Jones is the most common name at the college.

By an overwhelming margin, Lee, with 79, surprisingly heads the list. Next comes Smith with 56. Then another surprise. There are 35 Johnsons enrolled as opposed to only 32 Joneses.

Now, with the mechanics exhausted, came desperation. There's a Day and Knight. Even though it's not the proper Night, it's sufficient for a desperate writer.

The search for other vital statistics turned up 13 Kings but only one Queen, and a total of 123 Mc's, beginning with McAdams and ending with McWhorter, were found.

Baltimore, Berlin, Danzing, Hiroshima, London, Milano, Rome and Zurich are represented.

Any number of colors is shown, such as Black, Brown, Gray, White, Green (in two shades, yet, as Green was listed); and Blanco (Spanish for white).

Do you still wonder "what's in a name?"

To be specific almost 72 inches of reading newspaper copy.

Campus PanORAMA

U.S. Justified To Resume Atmospheric Testing?

By R. D. Hacker

(Editor's note: Campus Panorama embarks from its normal procedure this week. In the course of interviewing, a debate arose, and The Guardian is running the story. Nancy Irian states the United States was just, while Lisa Bachels claims the diametric opposite.)

Freshman Nancy Irian feels that the United States was justified in resuming nuclear testing. "We have found through experience that we can't be a so-called friendly or neutral nation because Russia's leaders won't accept it. They just want to give up and succumb to their desires."

"If we sit back and let Russia or any other country boss us around, we stand a good chance of losing the respect of the many countries that now look to us for leadership."

She further commented, "The United States must take a stand; if we are going to fight this Cold War against the Communists, we have to fight it all the way or not at all."

Miss Irian reasoned that since the Russians broke their agreement and continued the testing of their nuclear weapons, it is now the right of the United States to continue.

"It is up to us to make sure we stay ahead of them in this field as well as others," she said.

She believes that testing is basic to science and that since its beginning, most progress has been through experiment and testing.

When asked if there were to be a war who would start it, she said, "I don't know if there will be a war, but if there is we won't be the first to drop the bomb."

"We can't let Russia take over," she said. "We have to back up our country and continue testing if we are to save what we believe in. The United States has already lost ground to the Communists in Berlin and Cuba and now we must stand firm!"

Freshman Lisa Bachels believes that the United States was unjustified in resuming nuclear testing. "I can see our point. We must keep up with the Russians, but I think we can do it without testing."

She is a strong believer in universal peace and thinks that everyone should become a conscientious objector.

"When Russia starts testing, we shouldn't do anything. We should sit back and be a friendly nation."

"They won't do anything with their bombs," she commented; "right now we are as powerful as they are."

She doubts that the Russians will become any more powerful with testing. "The bombs have gotten about as big as they can get, so testing won't prove anything."

She stated that she herself is not a conscientious objector but that she has worked with the American Friends Committee—a Quaker organization. "I have had some of the meetings held at my home, and I know what they stand for—peace."

"There is a saying nowadays that in order to have peace, you must fight for it. We have to back up our country, but fighting for peace is ruining the country."

A registration card along with a slight admission fee will be the only requirement for entrance. Pawlus explained, and there will be no money passed within the booths. Two ticket booths will be set up for the convenience of purchasing tickets to play any of the games.

A dunking booth may be set up by the Inter-Fraternity Council during College Hour to encourage participation and to publicize the evening event. If this is done, it will be placed in the parking lot near Smith Hall.

Profit from this function will be divided among the organizations according to the number of tickets the respective booth receives by the end of the evening.

Ugly Man On Campus Drive Success Despite Egg 'Riot'

APO Contest Nets $200 For Scholarships

John Piro, member of Alpha Kappa Rho, was elected Ugly Man On Campus. Roger Labatille, president of the contest's sponsor, Alpha Phi Omega, disclosed yesterday.

Second place went to Jim Ruggles, co-sponsored by Beta Tau fraternity and Theta Tau sorority. This marked the first year that a sorority was allowed to enter a candidate.

Bringing in more than $200, the contest was termed a success by Labatille. As a result, two $100 scholarships will be available to qualified students, the fraternity president added.

The two top winners were responsible for 90 per cent of the voting receipts. A difference of five dollars separated the two.

Runners-up in the contest were Ed Cecil, Theta Phi Sigma; Bill Reichert, Alpha Gamma Sigma; and Clarence Scanlan, Hawaiian Club.

At this time a few students on top of the hill threw eggs at those on the bottom of the hill, and students there threw eggs back at the students on the hilltop, Fuller reported.

"The eggs began flying from all directions," he said, "splattering all over the place; it was a real mess. Two campus policemen came over to stop it, and they too were splattered."

At last week's Inter-Fraternity Council meeting, Pete Montonen, IFC vice president, said that the eggs were sold to be thrown just at the ugly man candidates, not at anyone else.

"But unfortunately it got way out of hand," Montonen stated, "and I am sorry it happened."

Montonen's sentiments were echoed by all the fraternity men at the IFC meeting.

"We feel that we have insulted the campus police," he continued "and we apologize to them." He said that the fraternities were willing to make full restitution for any damages to the policemen's uniforms.

Lewis Pollack, campus police chief, said, "We don't take this as a personal insult; it was just an unfortunate incident that occurred."

There was a lack of planning among faculty, fraternities and police.

"If we had known about this rally ahead of time we could have had our men out there. They were caught completely off guard."

Ralph O. Hillsman, dean of men, requested that the names of the two students apprehended for egg throwing be withheld, but he said, "They under consideration for expulsion."

IFC Offers Full Restitution For Any Damages

By John Silva

Spattered by a barrage of raw eggs in front of Smith Hall April 27, two campus policemen apprehended two students here pitching eggs down the hill toward the Redwood Ram.

According to witness Jim Fuller of Beta Tau fraternity, "The hill was just crowded with people throwing eggs. It really got out of hand; I'd say there were at least 12 dozen eggs thrown in three minutes."

Fuller explained that the incident occurred when Alpha Phi Omega's Ugly Man On Campus rally staged at the Redwood Ram during College Hour.

"It began when all the ugly man candidates stood beside the stage at the rally," Fuller said, "and sponsors of these men began selling eggs. One of these sponsors then sold eggs to students sitting on the hill across from the rally."

At this time a few students on top of the hill threw eggs at those on the bottom of the hill, and students there threw eggs back at the students on the hilltop, Fuller reported.

"The eggs began flying from all directions," he said, "splattering all over the place; it was a real mess. Two campus policemen came over to stop it, and they too were splattered."

At last week's Inter-Fraternity Council meeting, Pete Montonen, IFC vice president, said that the eggs were sold to be thrown just at the ugly man candidates, not at anyone else.

"But unfortunately it got way out of hand," Montonen stated, "and I am sorry it happened."

Montonen's sentiments were echoed by all the fraternity men at the IFC meeting.

"We feel that we have insulted the campus police," he continued "and we apologize to them." He said that the fraternities were willing to make full restitution for any damages to the policemen's uniforms.

Lewis Pollack, campus police chief, said, "We don't take this as a personal insult; it was just an unfortunate incident that occurred."

There was a lack of planning among faculty, fraternities and police.

"If we had known about this rally ahead of time we could have had our men out there. They were caught completely off guard."

Ralph O. Hillsman, dean of men, requested that the names of the two students apprehended for egg throwing be withheld, but he said, "They under consideration for expulsion."

RENA KITCH, associate editor, and Bryan Gould, editor-in-chief of Forum Magazine look over a piece of copy. This year's Forum has been dedicated to the memory of the late Dorothy Mercer, founder of the magazine.

Raymond Der's Cover Design Selected For Current Issue Of Forum Literary Magazine

Raymond Der's cover design was selected for the current issue of Forum to be distributed June 1, Bryan Gould, editor, announced last week.

"The cover is a departure from the usual abstract designs of the past," William J. Eckert, advertising arts instructor, reported.

"This year's design is a drawing of an old-fashioned printing press done in a very modern manner," Eckert further stated.

Der won out over entries submitted by Roy Omi and Haley Yee. Several of the features of the forthcoming issue were pointed out by Gould.

For the first time, Forum will highlight photography. There will be 14 photographs of art work, ceramics, sculpture and painting, covering the full range of visual arts.

This issue is dedicated to the late Dr. Dorothy Mercer, the first sponsor of Forum, and a pioneer member of the college's faculty.

Leaves of Grass, a painting by Eleanor Hjelvik, will further enhance the tribute to Dr. Mercer.

Rounding out the arts will be an original 12-tone composition for piano by John Wodarczyk to represent music. Kenneth Kitch, a former student of Dr. Mercer's, has composed a sonnet for the magazine.

Forum magazine will be issued free of charge to all AS card holders. For non-card holders, there will be a 50 cent fee.

Letters to the Editor

Ram's Horn

(Editor's Note: Letters to the Ram's Horn may be left with the telephone operator in Science Hall or in the Guardian's office, Room 204, Science Hall. Deadlines are 10 a.m. each Wednesday. If so desired the author's name will be withheld, but the identity of the author must be known to the editor.)

• The 'O' Was Right?

Editor, The Guardian: Fully realizing that this college is referred to as SCSS (Mr. Nelson, please note) and that the correct abbreviation of the Associated Students of this pillar of learning is ASSCSF (Typographer, please note), may I respectfully request that "Letters to the Editor" also be correctly quoted.

The entire point of my particular letter which appeared in the last issue of The Guardian was to clear up the "burning issue" of my age (which, as we all realize, is of far greater importance to SECC—oops!—than any "fault," "misspelling," or "midterms").

Unfortunately, instead of accurately reprinting my letter (a copy of which has been sent to the Library of Congress) as "Chronologically, I'm only 30," the quote appeared as "over 30."

Therefore, from this moment on, my "stated" answer will be: "I will be 40..." which is the safest reply, because all of us students can make this statement. (KHRUSHCHEV, PLEASE NOTE!)

The Good Ol' Daze—

Is Coat Rack Solution To Office Ills?

By Dave Griève

LEAFING through this writer's private files which contain the truths or, perhaps, habits which pervaded the Good Ol' Daze, he abruptly stopped, realizing that the virtue of orderliness has escaped this modern day and age.

Gazing back inside the cob-webbed drawer, eyes skimming over the scattered papers complicated by documents stuffed into the wrong folders, a feeling motivated the writer to crane his neck and inspect The Guardian office.

A deluge of gloom. The answer was not shocking. It was expected. Not by any stretch of the imagination was it only to criticize journalists, but just for the record, to expose publicly "their" problem and possibly save face by submitting a remedy.

Not to repeat, but journalists are not the only lily whites (Dr. Jekyll type) who change into slob (Mr. Hyde type) when entering an office, especially, their own office.

Amazing as it may seem, and mind you, this is not facetious, when a journalist enters the room, a divine spirit seems to warm his body while obstructing his thought process. In the earthly form of coffee through the mouth, a delayed but inevitable reaction materializes in the shape of discarding the top coat or outer garment with the ease and technique of a "balloon dancer" gracefully floating it to the floor.

For the first time, Forum will highlight photography. There will be 14 photographs of art work, ceramics, sculpture and painting, covering the full range of visual arts.

This issue is dedicated to the late Dr. Dorothy Mercer, the first sponsor of Forum, and a pioneer member of the college's faculty.

Leaves of Grass, a painting by Eleanor Hjelvik, will further enhance the tribute to Dr. Mercer.

Rounding out the arts will be an original 12-tone composition for piano by John Wodarczyk to represent music. Kenneth Kitch, a former student of Dr. Mercer's, has composed a sonnet for the magazine.

Forum magazine will be issued free of charge to all AS card holders. For non-card holders, there will be a 50 cent fee.

The "clothes hanger" brings forth the childish desire within his fellows to place their fingers around the slob's Adam's apple.

Ashtays upended, layers of papers hiding the faces of desks, bulletins dangling from the remaining tack in the walls, cords and pictures hanging askew in their frames—these minor points can be shelved in the search for order.

But who can excuse the careless behavior of the "clothes hanger" and his followers? Only special treatment, applied in the proper manner, can help.

With all the facts in mind, the writer, aided by his special file cabinet, spent hours of research. At last grasping the key, he scurried from the office down into the depths beneath the college, facing a maze of rooms and hallways resembling the catcombs. From one enclosure to another... and then, at last.

Fantastic. The answer was there—a six-foot stake of wood, supported by several legs, and waving four dowels at the top, ending all problems of clothes cluttering, solving the psychological problems of the "clothes hanger"—and representative of a past era.

A coat rack! What happened to the Good Ol' Daze?

Ramporium Urges Early Book Resale

Students wishing to sell books back to the Ramporium are advised by Dick Mann, store manager, to do so at the end of the spring semester, and not wait until the beginning of next.

The Ramporium orders all books needed for the coming semester at the end of each previous session. Hence, when students try to sell books back at the start of the semester there is no need for them.

No book will be repurchased that is very badly underlined or is in extremely poor condition, Mann said.

Books that have been dropped from use are at times bought by the Ramporium if it is possible to resell them.

Commencement Exercises In Athletic Stadium... At Last!

AFTER BEING POSTPONED twice in the past two years for various reasons, plans for holding commencement exercises in the college stadium have at last been approved.

These ceremonies had customarily been held in the auditorium at Rordan High School when, in 1960, The Guardsman first voiced the idea of having commencement held in the then uncompleted stadium.

As the athletic field was not finished by the end of the 1960 college year, hopes were high that the formalities could be observed there for the Class of 1961.

The year '61 came and went. The stadium was opened in the fall with the homecoming football game but, although the proposal to schedule the program at that site was brought up by Student Council, the plan never materialized.

This year, though, the plans are laid for a more typical daytime exercise as is customary in most other colleges.

It is far more fitting and proper that students who have spent four, or sometimes more, semesters at the college should be graduated at a program held on this campus.

Arrangements for a ceremony inside at the men's gymnasium have been made for the possible event of inclement weather, but since the event is scheduled for June 7, the chances of rain are at a minimum.

The only drawback of this year's commencement program will be the fact that it will be held while classes are still in session. Thus, only those students who have a free period at that time will be in the audience.

We hope that in the future it will be possible to schedule these exercises at a time convenient to all.

SPRINGTIME in San Francisco compensates for its lack of sun with many cultural activities both on campus and off. Those who would rather have the former may as well resign themselves gracefully to the latter.

Joan of Lorraine by Maxwell Anderson is now in rehearsal under the direction of Michael Griffin. Student actors and their director have only half as much time to prepare this final show as they had for Time Limit. It's all work or no play on opening night, May 25.

Pixy-haired Jo Janofsky made a surprise appearance on the last day of trout and walked away with the coveted role of Jeanne D'Arc.

Randolph Jones has the second major role. Jones is probably the most versatile performer in the department. He has played everything from a drunk to a general, and this time he appears as a drama director.

During the same week that Joan of Lorraine opens, the college choral groups will give an evening concert in the theater on May 22. One faculty member said of his colleague, Galen Marshall, who directs the Men's Glee Club and the A Cappella Choir, "That man could get music out of rocks."

This is not to say that there is any similarity between his singers and stones. The comment simply illustrates that Marshall's groups are well worth attention. The Treble Clef, a recently renewed women's group under the direction of Richard Fenner, will also sing for the concert.

The audience will hear Bach along with folk songs during the program.

Cultural Activities Flourish This Spring

While rehearsing one of these folk songs with the Men's Glee, Marshall clapped his hands twice to stop the singing and addressed two men in the front row.

"Remember, no ham, no corn, no nothing—very seriously step quickly in front of the mike for your duet. And so they did, except for a slight grin.

Mannon by Massenet opened the San Francisco Spring Opera season last night conducted by Victor Alessandro of the San Antonio Symphony. Six operas will be given during the season which closes May 26, and all are offered at a "popular price" level with a $3.95 top for orchestra seats.

Students who find any price unpopular may go free by checking in at Dean Mary Golding's office for an ushering job.

"In order to maintain popular prices, Spring Opera must operate at a deficit. Full houses pay only part of the bill. It is our hope that schools will avail themselves of the opportunity to buy choice blocks of seats for the best performances." William Kent, chairman of Spring Opera, stated.

Carnival opened the Civic Light Opera on April 23 and performances of Song of Norway, Kismet, and the British hit, Oliver, will follow.

Also from England comes the famous Old Vic company which will be at the Geary until May 19 with Bernard Shaw's Saint Joan, Romeo and Juliet, and finally Macbeth.

Entertainmentwise, it's a busy time, especially for students anticipating finals, but any of these activities will certainly complement the classrooms.

Shots At Random

By Dave Kleinberg

IT TOOK a while, but the truth leaked out.

The English 1B nut who thought Henry IV part one was "a lot of Shakespeare's slightly 'pornographic,' has been seeing a psychiatrist for some time.

The nut has his problems. Going to college and reading lots of Shakespeare leaves him no time for employment. The head shrinkers are also money shrinkers.

The psychiatrist issued the final warning last week.

"If you don't pay your bill, I'm going to let you stay crazy."

RISKING a low grade but at the same time advertising and complimenting an instructor for his insight to American history, we reveal a few of history's unknowns as exposed by Russell Posner.

At the battle of the Alamo, where about 150 Americans died, a man uttered these famous words as he rode away, "Remember the Alamo."

From that day on, Americans have remembered the Alamo, mostly in jest. But it wasn't an American's words. It was the victorious Mexican General Santa Ana, who, in anger, told Americans to remember that what happened at the Alamo could happen again.

In the War of 1812, Francis Scott Key scribbled the Star Spangled Banner. It wasn't adopted as the official National Anthem until (and here's one for Ripley) 1930.

In the Mexican War of 1846, American troops hit the eastern coast and drove inland to capture Mexico City. En route another famous song, the Marine Hymn, was written.

What about the verse, "We will fight our country's battles in the AIR, on land and sea?"

The air was added in World War One.

BACK TO ENGLISH. The student is usually asked to find a definition of the word epic, and we've found an additional one. Of course, it can only be found in Webster's 40-dollar, 40-pound manuscript.

Entertainmentwise, it's a busy time, especially for students anticipating finals, but any of these activities will certainly complement the classrooms.

Freshman Nancy Irian feels that the United States was justified in resuming nuclear testing. "We have found through experience that we can't be a so-called friendly or neutral nation because Russia's leaders won't accept it. They just want to give up and succumb to their desires."

"If we sit back and let Russia or any other country boss us around, we stand a good chance of losing the respect of the many countries that now look to us for leadership."

She further commented, "The United States must take a stand; if we are going to fight this Cold War against the Communists, we have to fight it all the way or not at all."

Miss Irian reasoned that since the Russians broke their agreement and continued the testing of their nuclear weapons, it is now the right of the United States to continue.

"It is up to us to make sure we stay ahead of them in this field as well as others," she said.

She believes that testing is basic to science and that since its beginning, most progress has been through experiment and testing.

When asked if there were to be a war who would start it, she said, "I don't know if there will be a war, but if there is we won't be the first to drop the bomb."

"We can't let Russia take over," she said. "We have to back up our country and continue testing if we are to save what we believe in. The United States has already lost ground to the Communists in Berlin and Cuba and now we must stand firm!"

A dunking booth may be set up by the Inter-Fraternity Council during College Hour to encourage participation and to publicize the evening event. If this is done, it will be placed in the parking lot near Smith Hall.

Profit from this function will be divided among the organizations according to the number of tickets the respective booth receives by the end of the evening.

Siska Upsets Edlefsen To Lead Netters To Big 8 Championship

Ram Ace Plays 'Best Game' To Whip T-Bird, 6-3, 6-4

By David Kleinberg

Bob Siska topped a near perfect season by upsetting previously undefeated Oaklander Tom Edlefsen, 6-3, 6-4, to win the singles title and lead the Rams to an easy Big Eight Conference tennis championship Friday and Saturday at Golden Gate Park.

The 19-year-old Siska, who suffered his only league loss to Edlefsen, 6-0, 6-0, earlier this year, teamed with Ed Jilka to down Edlefsen and Mike Lee, 6-2, 8-6, to capture the doubles crown.

The netters, who finished the season undefeated by trouncing Sacramento, 7-0, last Wednesday, scored 14 points to runner-up Oakland's 6. The other scores were Modesto 5, San Mateo 3, Stockton 1, Santa Rosa 1, and Chico 1.

A jubilant coach Roy Diederichsen, who earlier had felt Siska was one of his best players ever, said after the match, "It's the best we've ever had. After this, how can you say differently. He proved himself today."

"I was very surprised. It's the best I've ever seen him play. He caught Edlefsen by surprise in the first set, and Edlefsen couldn't come back. Bob's volleys were terrific. I suspected we would win the doubles."

"This was the most satisfying win of the year," the inebriated Siska offered. "I was never sure I was going to win. You can never be sure until the last point. There's always the possibility, and Edlefsen's tough."

Most observers felt it was Siska's aggressive net play that threw Edlefsen off balance. "He moved in and so did I. I guess I just moved in a little better," the ex-Junior Davis Cupper said.

The doubles win was also an upset. Siska and Jilka had defeated the Oakland pair in league play, but the Thunderbirds' Lee did not play with Edlefsen in that match.

In the semifinal match, Modesto's tough veteran Ryder Getz pressed Siska to a third set before falling, 6-3, 5-7, 6-4.

The Rams' other doubles team of Jack Kern and Rich Anderson got to the semifinals before bowing to the Edlefsen-Lee combo, 6-3, 6-4.

Trackmen Lose First Big 8 Title In 4 Years

College of San Mateo terminated City College's four-year reign in the Big Eight track throne by concentrating on the distant runs to roll up 108 points and win the conference meet Saturday at Sacramento.

The Rams, once again led by the heroic efforts of Alex Darnes and Lon Brantley, scored 102.

The unbeaten Darnes, who has yet to throw past 165 feet since his national record-breaking 173.3 last month, tossed 159-11; not good for him, but good enough to win and break the old Big Eight mark of 154-24.

Brantley, who came within seven inches of breaking the college broad jump record in his last outing at Fresno, settled for 23-8 and a first, George Holland backed him with a second at 22-8, and Herb Briscoe added another two points by placing fourth at 22-04 as the Rams scored nine points in their strongest event.

The Rams, with Rich Byers grabbing a second and Steve Jackson a surprising third, scored seven points in the two-mile.

The spikers will compete Saturday in the West Coast Relays at Fresno.

Baseballers Split Two

John Pearce went the distance rendering four hits to pitch the Rams to a 3-2 win in the nightcap of a double-header after the college dropped opener, 7-6, Saturday at Sacramento. The baseballers' record is 3-9.

Earlier in the week, Contra Costa trounced the college, 21-5.

Golfers End Year, 6-2

With John Steadlin firing a two-under-par 70, his best round of the year, the golfers edged Sacramento to close the season with a 6-2 record Friday at Bing Malone Club in Sacramento.

Eleven Athletes Nominated For Hall Of Fame

Three football, three track, two baseball, two basketball players and one swimmer have been nominated for the City College sports Hall of Fame. Two of the 11 will be voted in this week.

In football three linemen, George Pedrin, Jerry James and Dick Stanfel, were nominated.

Pedrin, named in 1955, was, according to athletic director Jack Gaddy, "Probably the best guard who ever played here."

James, a 250-pounder who was an All-Conference guard in 1954 and would probably have repeated in '55 except for an injury, was nominated along with Dick Stanfel, who went on to play professional football with the Washington Redskins and the Detroit Lions.

Bob Bandettini, centerfielder and relief pitcher, won or saved eight contests while leading the Rams to the State baseball championships in 1956.

Counselor Bill Fischer, then Bandettini's coach, feels Bandettini's nomination is based on the opinion that he was the best all-around ball player Fischer ever coached. "The team would never have gone to the championship without his efforts."

The other baseball nominee, Stan Johnson, played centerfield in 1953, batted .365 and had such a strong arm that he was frequently used in relief.

Mike Lewis, state two-year college shot put champion; Wilfred Gasper, second in pole vault and high jump holder of the college mile, two-mile and cross country records, are all nominees from the 1958 track squad.

Cleo Corfield, All-Big Eight cager and the Rams' leading scorer for two straight seasons, and Bob Tealor, who set a single-game scoring record with 46 points in the 1957 State Tournament, were the hoopsters nominated.

Red Lequid, the college's first All-American swimmer, who swam the 220 and 440 freestyle in 1952, was nominated by swimming coach Roy Burkhead.

To be eligible for the award, the highest possible one an athlete can receive here, a player must have participated in his sport for at least one semester and must have been graduated at least a year.

A mentor must have coached here for five years and must presently be retired.

Nominations will be given to judges Dean Ralph Hillman, Fischer, Tom Wilson and Gaddy.

Of the 24 already named to the Hall of Fame, probably the most outstanding has been the fabulous Ollie Matson who led the Rams to a title and bowl victory in 1947.

Last year's winners were Jim Watson, tennis, and boxer Frank Suegas.

Rams, Cubs Tangle In Season's Finale

With everything to gain and nothing to lose, the Ram baseball squad travels to Santa Rosa Friday to take on the Bear Cubs in its final Big Eight game of the season.

This will be the final game between the two teams as Santa Rosa is one Big Eight Conference at the end of this season when the new Golden Gate League will start.

Coach Lee Eisan's charges have experienced a below-par season as they have a 9-9 win-loss record. Weak hitting and a shallow pitching staff have contributed to the poor record.

Defense, thought to be the main forte, collapsed as the locals have averaged three costly errors per game.

Jim Carroll and Bill Hyman are currently leading the team in batting with averages of .303 and .300 respectively. These are the only two regulars batting above .300.

IFC League Teams To Vie For AMS Smoker Playoff Berth In Intra Play Tonight

Because of the Associated Student open nomination convention last Wednesday night, the final Inter-Fraternity Council league intramural basketball games were postponed and will be played tonight.

Alpha Sigma Delta will clash with Beta Tau in the 7:15 game in the men's gymnasium, while in the 8:15 game Zeta Phi Sigma will go against Gamma Phi Ypsilon. This last round will determine the top team in the IFC league. The winner will go against the Inter-Club league winner at the May 25 Associated Men Student Smoker.

Featured on the same card with the championship intramural game will be the traditional boxing matches put on by boxing coach Roy Diederichsen.

The IFC league, as a whole, looks better than last year's league, being generally stronger in all departments than the Club league, Jack Gaddy, faculty intramural sports coordinator, commented.

However, Gaddy noted that the top team in either league would be the highly touted Collegiate Five, who are so far tied with the hard charging Divine Ones for first place in Club standings.

Action in the Inter-Club League on May 1 was limited to one game, as the CC's and the H&R team forfeited to the Newman Club and the Campus Police, respectively.

The only game played that night, in the fifth round of club competition, was that of the Divine Ones against the Filipino Club.

The fast-breaking Divine Ones charged through the Islander's ragged defense to rack up an impressive 88-31 victory.

In the fourth and final Intercollegiate Fencing Association tournament this Saturday, the college's fencing teams will compete with teams from 13 other colleges in the men's gymnasium.

Fencing for San Francisco on the men's team will be Captain Harry Jorgensen, co-captain Bill Lindo, Bob Lawrence and Stuart Funk, while Captain Carolyn Diaz and Jennifer Renaud will fence on the women's team.

In the three previous IFA competitions, fencing team members Jorgensen, Lindo, Lawrence and Funk have taken one first place finish and two second place spots.

Next Wednesday, May 16, Jessie Willis, David Hoffman and two other fencers will compete against five local high school teams and one from Clayton Valley High School of Concord. Site of the competition is the men's gymnasium.

RAMBLINGS

By Jerry Littrell

Pachyderm Ramble To Be Tons Of Fun

CITY COLLEGE of San Francisco is usually under constant attack from various persons about an apparent lack of college spirit. It is a problem not native to this college, however.

Orange Coast State College recently had a similar problem but found quite an unusual method for solving it. The solution involved an attempt to organize an Elephant Race.

In a nutshell this is the answer to our problem of apathy. Let us agree that students here are tired of the same old routine sports of football and soccer and that the time has come for a change.

A committee could be formed to investigate possibilities for success of such a venture. The first point that might be considered is, "Who would come from all over the world, strolling through the world. A minimum of 10 colleges might be invited to this campus FIRST."

Elephants could be rented from perhaps a local source or, if the participants wanted to, they could ship their own mounts. The cost of renting these animals could be deducted from the gate receipts.

Probably the biggest problem would be where the race would be held. Three times around Smith Hall would provide a fairly centralized location but would not afford the distance needed to attain top speed.

The starting line could be the court flagpole. From there the line of march (race) would be down the hill, around the arts building, down Phelan Avenue, across the practice football field, twice around the Ingleside Police Station, ending at the men's gymnasium.

The publicity alone would be well worth the effort of putting on the race. Dignitaries and officials from all over the world would come to our own City College of San Francisco to witness this FIRST. Where else in the world could anyone see something to equal this.

Even Ben Hur's famed chariot race scene would be trivial in magnitude. Undoubtedly there would be problems. Think of the anguished look of the gardeners as they watched 40 tons of runaway meat trampling over the campus greens.

Of the feeling an Anthropology 10 student would have when he awoke from a slight slumber during a lecture on prehistoric animals to see a mammoth bulk trotting past the classroom window.

The two-mile Tusk Trot or the marathon four-mile Pachyderm Ramble would enliven student spirit of an otherwise apathetic student body. Well, has anything else worked?

Employers Screen Recruits Today; Peace Corps Reaps Fest Fund Share

Businessmen Hear Packard Before Talent Search Starts

Forty-five industry and government teams, representing some of the leading employer groups in Northern California, visit the campus today to participate in the college's seventh annual Recruitment Day.

Led by David Packard, president of Hewlett-Packard Company of Palo Alto, who will address the employer and college staff at 8:30 a.m. in Smith Hall, the recruitment teams bring the largest group of talented searchers in the history of the college. Sixty-five individual personal interviewers and specialists will interview graduates from the 35 training programs.

Four leagues will be represented in the championship. The Golden Valley, Coast Conference, Central Valley and the Big Eight will be testing ability and skills.

Boasting a 7-0 record and a championship in the Big Eight of Oakland City College, Siska, Ron Priesman of Menlo, Ryder Getz of Modesto, Leon Hylberg of Menlo and Rich Perez of Hartnell.

In the doubles matches, the locals have Siska and Jilka in number one and Anderson and Kern in number two.

The vastly improved Jilka possesses one of the best overhead strokes in the area, while Anderson, who has only been playing tennis for 19 months is known for his all-around play.

Rounding out the traveling squad for the championship matches will be Kern. "He is a fast-improving and rising player," Diederichsen said.

Diederichsen, who has a genius for producing championship squads, was also the coach of the first-place soccer team in the fall.

Contract Signed For Statler Fund

Contracts, which mark acceptance of $100,000 for the college's hotel and restaurant department, have been signed with the Statler Foundation, Dean Louis Batmale announced recently.

The gift was contingent on the H&R and allied industries raising an additional fund of $50,000.

Of this amount, alumni raised $7500 and H&R students together with their families have given approximately $3200. "Something of which we are extremely proud," Batmale emphasized.

Plans are now in the process of being drawn for the annex to Smith Hall, which will open in early 1964, he added.

The annex will have an upstairs study hall which will accommodate a large number of the general student body. The hall will have tables, chairs and other facilities for students to eat lunch.

Downstairs will be a library and lecture demonstration hall.

Don Constine To Speak At Prep Day Tomorrow

Donald B. Constine, City College graduate and now San Francisco's United States Commissioner, will return to the college tomorrow as a keynote speaker at Prep Day, Associated Student Vice President Suzanne Murphy confirmed today.

When he took over the new post on January 2, 1961, he became one of six full-time United States Commissioners in the nation today.

Following his education at City College, he entered the Hastings School of Law.

While an assistant U. S. attorney, Constine is believed to have handled more bank robbery cases than any other man in that position in the nation.

Colombian Unit To Benefit From COO Event Friday

By John Silva

Council of Organizations' most colorful event of the year, the Spring Festival, will be held in Smith Hall from 7 to 11 p.m. Friday.

Ed Pawlus, COO president, disclosed last week.

Establishing a two-year college precedent, COO will donate portions of the Spring Festival profits to the Peace Corps, Ralph Hillman, dean of men, said.

He stated that COO agreed to use the Peace Corps as the Spring Festival theme and that funds from festival activities will be donated to the Peace Corps in Colombia, South America.

"This project, urging that junior colleges consider supporting the Peace Corps, was voiced at the California Junior College Student Government state conference held at Los Angeles last month," Hillman added.

Regarding the Peace Corps proposal, Pawlus said, "This is a very good idea. A committee will be appointed to look into this."

All students are invited to bring their parents to the festival, Pawlus stated, adding that an admission of 10 cents will be charged with the possession of a registration card.

The COO president emphasized that students should accompany their guests to the admission area.

"All festival games played will be games of skill and not of chance," he said. No money will be exchanged at the booths; instead, tickets will be sold for 10 cents each to persons who may then in turn present them to individuals managing booths."

Twenty-one COO organizations, Pawlus said, are expected to manage 21 eight-foot booths in which games will be played and prizes awarded.

He added that cafeteria manager John W. Dunn is scheduled to direct a dance band at the event, comprised of students here.

Decorations for the hall include colorful streamers, balloons and posters which will embellish the booths set up along the walls in the fountain area of Smith Hall, Pawlus reported.

He said that dress for the occasion is casual sports attire.

Presidential Candidates Stage TV Debate At Noon

Two closed circuit television sets in Cloud Circle will carry a debate between Bill May and Dave Oley, Associated Student presidential candidates, at 12 noon today, AS President Dan Collins stated.

Each will begin with a five to eight-minute statement, then each will be given time to refute the other. A panel of five will question the two candidates on their views.

Collins reminded students that non-AS cardholders are free to vote on May 23 and 24.

Choral Groups Ready For Annual Recital Tuesday

Choral classes have been preparing all semester for their annual Spring Concert to be held at 8 p.m. next Tuesday in the theater, according to Glen Marshall, director of the A Cappella Choir and the Men's Glee.

Highlight of the evening will be the entire Mozart Coronation Mass. The 30-minute piece will feature four soloists, Charlotte Smith, Sandra Martin, Tom Brocker and Wayne Redus, soprano, alto, tenor and bass, respectively.

The contemporary composer, B. Martino, will be represented by his three Czech madrigals. The choir also offers three Songs of Morning by Bach.

Bach, Thompson and Schubert will be the Men's Glee offering as well as two spirited folk songs, Good Fellows Be Merry and Bonnie Eloise.

The third group to participate in the concert is the Treble Clef, under the direction of Richard Fenner. The women's group was re-established last semester after several years' absence.

Programming is aimed toward variety for academic purposes and to maintain audience interest. This accounts for the presentation of selections as formal as the Mozart Mass and as informal as a folk song, Marshall said.

This concert will be taped just as other musical events have been in the past, he said. The tapes contribute to a growing music library which can be used for instruction or entertainment by other campus groups.

Part of the program was performed at Vacaville prison, which recently had its own spring choral performance. It was the prison's third concert and the second one in which the college participated.

The groups are clubs as well as classes and consequently perform in off-campus programs such as the prison festival.

After Tuesday night's show, parts of the performance will again be repeated in a College Hour concert.

The Friday series of musical presentations will culminate this semester with the choral offerings.

Slides, Tapes To Tell Story Of Center For Blind Friday In C-Hour

Standing room only may be the case in S-100 this Friday during College Hour when Alpha Gamma Sigma presents Doorway To Opportunity, according to AGS President Ron Hennessey.

By slides and taped narration, the audience will be taken on a tour through the Oakland Orientation Center for the Blind, which in years has returned more than 400 blind persons to normal and productive lives.

The center, which is the only school of its kind in the western United States, teaches skills of travel training, using only a long cane with no assistance from the sighted, while crossing streets; and also training in the use of standard power tools which include no special safety devices.

The blind students get their first indication of the confidence and success within their reach when they discover that the administrator of the center is totally blind himself. In addition, three of the instructors on the staff of seven are also blind.

This success story of the Oakland Orientation Center was filmed and narrated by Harry Cordellos, a student here and an alumnus of this training center.

"The slide and tape program," Cordellos said, "is just one way of saying thank you to the outstanding staff of the center for a job well done."

Following the presentation of the slides held at the Oakland Center and after earlier announcements of the program, AGS President Hennessey stated that there will probably be a capacity crowd in S-100 this Friday.

Since there is a full program planned, it will be necessary to begin promptly at 10 a.m., he added, inviting all students to attend.

Orchestra, Band Present Annual Spring Concert

Performing during College Hour this Friday in the theater, the college's chamber orchestra and concert band will present their ninth annual spring concert, Meyer Cahn, instrumental music director, announced today.

The repertoire will consist of 18th, 19th and 20th century works from Rumania, the Slavic areas and Spain, in addition to the United States, Cahn added.

Theme of the program is works derived from folk material.

This is the first time that the orchestra outnumbers the band. According to Cahn, the ratio is about 28 to 25.

On the program will be a Rumanian Rhapsody based on old folk songs and dances, in addition to selected materials from the other countries.

Keith Wagner, in his fourth semester with the college's orchestra, will perform a clarinet solo. Jan Rhodes is the concert mistress and soloist of the orchestra. She will also take part in this Friday's program.

To accommodate anticipated crowds, the show will be transmitted into the choral room, A-133, via closed-circuit television.

The college's combined orchestra and band is also scheduled to play at commencement ceremonies in the stadium on Thursday, June 7.

The program this Friday will be similar to the one presented May 8 when four other two-year colleges participated in a special instrumental festival here.

Cahn remarked that he is pleased with the response given the College Hour concert, and he hopes the same will continue through the rest of this semester and into next fall, when a new concert series will be scheduled.

Past concerts have played repeatedly to packed theaters, making it often necessary to turn away hundreds of students.

Pledges Better Know George Washington's Relatives

By Edy Grant

Only seven out of 69 two-year colleges in California offer sororities. After seeing what a pledge must go through to enter, it's easy to see why. A major feature of pledge—or "torture week"—is the demerit system. Demerits are issued for smoking, neatness, singing, kinking, cockiness and memory.

One sorority pledge's natural response, when a fraternity man asked her if she wanted some coffee, was, "No, thank you," which earned her five demerits for kinking, the process of talking to a man without permission.

On receiving demerits for kinking, Jean Shirley, a Phi Beta Rho pledge, remarked, "One of the most maddening and absolutely frustrating things about pledge week was not being able to talk back to those cocky fraternity men."

Memory demerits are given to pledges for forgetting to address the sisters as Miss, for not pronouncing or spelling a sister's name correctly, for not knowing the Greek alphabet by heart, or for not having memorized their spels.

In other words, if you don't know George Washington's third sister's son-in-law's middle name, you'd better watch out.

Confusing pledges is a common practice of the sisters. Purposely, she might ask a pledge if she would like a demerit. If she answers yes, then the sister is happy to oblige. But if she answers no, the sister grants her demerits for being cocky.

Most pledges agree that demerits should mean more than they actually do since they all have to do the same amount of work to remove them. They feel that they are given out right and left without any real significance behind them.

In most cases they are right, but occasionally they are levied for real offenses.

As Claudette Stickle, another Phi Beta Rho pledge, stated, "Demerits sometimes are not given out for real offenses, but once 2000 were given out for kidnapping a sister."

Pledge week finds the pledges singing at 7:30 each morning in Smith Hall. Proposing to the fraternity brothers, who just love to hear the pledges' qualifications, is one of the stunts they must perform.

To annoy the pledges, one sorority staged a kidnapping. The kidnapped pledges were taken to Fisherman's Wharf and were forced to sell tissue paper covered with peanut butter and salmon eggs for a penny per cut.

Only after selling 10 cuts each were they allowed to retire.

Pledges are not sorry for the hectic times they go through, because they realize that the sisters are only trying to gain respect.

Arlene Di Fiore, who pledged Delta Psi, said, "It was a lot to go through, and I am happy it is over, but it was worth it, because I have made many new friends with similar interests."

Another pledge commented, "It was one big mad rush, but now that I will soon be an official member, I am glad to have the opportunity to socially get to know the people at the college better."

A pledge needs the majority vote of active members to obtain membership. To qualify the pledge must carry 12½ units with at least a two-point grade average.

Approximately 180 women out of 2000 here are in sororities. Each pledge will definitely be accepted, but not necessarily by the sorority of her first choice.

During interrogation, which begins pledge week, sorority sisters emphasize the point that pledges should not be interested in social activities. Sororities also exist for the purpose of developing college spirit by rendering service to the campus.

Exchange Of Ideas With Others Broadens Student Understanding

STUDENTS who come to college, attend their classes, and return to their homes miss a most important part of their education.

That is, a broadening of one's understanding of various social, political, philosophical, esthetic or other concepts, theories or beliefs held by other individuals.

In short, it is finding out what other people think.

For many, college will be the last social melting pot into which they will be mixed.

This is particularly true of females who, not necessarily but all too often, get married either before or shortly after finishing their college education, and their world promptly shrinks to extend not much farther than the corner supermarket.

But men and women who stay single are not definitely destined to be worldly-wise and sophisticated, for in many jobs a person rarely has the opportunity to be in personal contact with people whose interests differ much from his own.

Men, however, have a "second chance," for most of them will serve in the armed forces at some time, where they will be thrown together with other men with complete disregard to origin or interest.

But one who spends two, four or more years gaining his higher education only to discover a complete incomprehension of what is meant by "right" or "left wing," or a blanket dislike for art which is not done in a photographic style, might well assume that, because of his studies in his major, he was not able to "fool" with the courses dealing with those other subjects.

The fact is that these subjects don't appear on the schedule, although they can be learned at the college.

The students here have come from all walks of life. There are veterans, both military and civilian. That is, many have spent a number of years working for their living before returning to complete their education.

They can explain, for instance, what is needed to get along with an employer or what kind of irritations may be encountered in any occupation. And, in the form of a "sea story" (first-hand experience), it can be very interesting listening.

A student might learn from one of the many foreign students here an opinion on just why his country reacted a certain way to a United States policy.

Whether one is compatible with them or not there is something to be learned from the egotist, the beatnik, the athlete, the introvert and anyone else.

For people are life, and life is people.

THOSE who attend the spring choral concert next Tuesday evening in the campus theater will notice a red-haired young man, who accompanies the singers, seated at a piano.

Warner Jepson looks very much like a musician. His face is sensitive, with eyes that glance nervously but vacantly from behind dark-rimmed glasses. He is tall and not quite too thin and usually wears a tweed jacket and tennis shoes.

He was graduated from the Conservatory of Music at Oberlin College in Ohio and is presently employed here to play for the choral and dance classes, but Jepson insists quietly that he is not really a musician.

He is anything that he happens to be doing at the moment, and that might be painting, sculpting, or working in photography. Be that as may, it is in music that he has distinguished himself, namely by writing the songs for a ballad opera, San Francisco's Burning.

The musical is an original little theater production which involves a group of colorful people from the two extremes of San Francisco society in a 1908 background—Barbary Coast ruffians and the Nob Hill social set. The show opened at the Playhouse on December 15 of last year and was greeted enthusiastically by critics and audiences. It is now part of the Playhouse's tenth anniversary festival along with three other productions. More than 40 songs are in the show, compared with an average of 15 that make up other musicals. Director Kermit Sheets explained, Jepson wrote the score off-and-on for a year, whenever I felt like it," he said. He had written several songs for a

'Hi, Cuz' Motor Scooter Caper Brings Kin Together

By R. D. Hacker and Harry Cordello

The Campus Police department recently encountered one of its strangest capers in the arts building parking lots.

It began when Thomas Cain, campus policeman, sauntered over to a brand new motor scooter parked illegally.

To his dismay, Cain saw that the scooter also had no license plate, no registration card and no parking permit.

So he promptly wheeled it over to the Campus Police station and told Police Chief Lewis Pollack of the apparently abandoned motor scooter.

Pollack telephoned officers at Ingleside police station, and they sent a man over with a tow truck to take the scooter, Mike Cooper, was found, he explained to campus policemen that the wind must have blown the paper license plate off the side of his new scooter.

The policemen then escorted him to Pollack's office where he looked at Pollack and said, "Hi."

"Who's he?" asked one of the policemen.

"He's my cousin," replied Pollack.

Dogs and Cats

'Kick Bucket' In Top Style

When dogs and cats pass away, the pitiful little creatures pass away in style—thanks to a student here.

Joseph A. Amori, placement director, said that last week a student here applied for a job calling for two main qualifications:

1. That the applicant love animals;
2. That the applicant be mechanically inclined.

"Now," said Amori, "he builds caskets for dogs and cats at Colma."

One can almost picture those little pathetic pets, lying in their little velvet-lined caskets with their little paws crossed and their little toenails trimmed neatly.

This student earns $2.50 an hour for his "dogged" labors, and "he is doing just fine," said Amori.

What Excuse Do You Give When Refusing A Date?

By R. D. Hacker and Harry Cordello

Normally, if I don't like a fellow he will usually know it, but if I do I have to make up an excuse, I say that I have to go out with my parents to dinner. Sometimes I just say that I'm very sorry but I have another date.

Sharon Funke, freshman:

It depends on the circumstance. I don't say that I am sick, because if I do decide to go out it would be very embarrassing to meet the boy whom I had refused. Sometimes I will say that I am going out with my parents to the country for the weekend.

According to Emily Post a girl is supposed to say that she has made other plans, but sometimes I just say that I have another date. I don't say that I am sick, and I keep calling, I just tell him that I don't want to go out with him.

Lila Diamond, freshman:

I might say that I am sick, but if I do, I wouldn't go out if I were asked later. There might be a chance that I would meet the boy to whom I had said no. I usually stick to the old saying that I have made other plans, or that I'm just busy with homework.

Mary Lynn Flynn, sophomore:

The best excuse that I can give is that I'm engaged—because I am. Before I had another date, I used to say I had another date or that I was going out with my parents. Sometimes I would just say I had other plans, or that I was busy with homework.

Pat Bennett, sophomore:

"I have something else planned" is the usual answer I give to someone I don't want to go out with. Just don't feel like going out, or I am too tired to go out to be other answers that I give. I try to be as nice as I can when I tell a boy no.

Barbara Reiss, freshman:

Saying that I have too much homework is a good excuse. I never tell a boy that I just don't want to go out with him—it would hurt his feelings. Most of the time I will say that I have another date or that I have made other plans.

Shots At RAMdom

By Dave Kleinberg

AS TWO ANTS galloped across the top of a cereal box, the first, Amos Ant, hollered for the second to slow down.

Panting and out of breath, Amos Ant continued, "You know can't keep up with that pace. I'm not as young as I used to be. What are you going so fast for?"

"I'm just following instructions," retorted Andy Ant. "It says, 'Tear on dotted line.'"

WOMEN who are watching their weight (and which women aren't) have a new slogan to replace the old "Battle of the Bulge" and "36-22-36 or fight."

The new campaign march is "Think Thin."

It comes in handy. Men, next time you take your steady to dinner, give her a malcontent look and utter, "Think Thin."

It saves money.

THERE ONCE was a connoisseur who saved money. He was a wine taster, of course, it wasn't thick (it was, probably, think gin.)

His tasters were so delicate, that he could not only tell you what year wine he had sipped, but the names of the people who stomped on its grapes.

SCRIBBLED on a sign at the northeast end of the campus were the words, "Ban the Bomb."

A few days later the ban was erased and substituted was the word, "Drop." "Drop the Bomb" and "Ban the Bomb" are two thoughts directly opposite from each other—and on what kind of sign were the two thoughts?

One Way.

AS A STUDENT walked up from the parking lot, he shook his head and complained about the many tickets he had received for driving the wrong way on one-way streets.

He says it's not his fault, "I've been at City College so long that my car window is completely cluttered with college parking permits and I can't see out the window."

BELIEVE IT OR NOT: The college has one for Ripley-James Ripley, physiology instructor.

Voters Meet Candidates At Rally Friday

Bill May's Statement:

"Next semester the calendar of events in Student Council will be changed because the budgets for next fall are being passed now, and this will give the president for next semester a good chance to initiate new projects."

"This is one of the main reasons you will need a president who has experience and drive."

"I feel I am qualified because I have experience from being student body president at South San Francisco, president of the Engineering Society, a member of sophomore council, and chairman of the student-faculty relations committee, and I also have the drive. So vote for Bill May for AS president."

Nominees For Top AS Posts Issue Election Statements

Thirty-five candidates will be introduced to students at the College Hour election rally at the Ram Friday, as campaigning for the 20 elective Associated Student offices shifts into high gear with only one week remaining before the voters rush the polls on May 23 and 24.

Dan Collins, AS president, will introduce the candidates. Entertainment includes a group from the Men's Glee Club featuring Tony Boyadiss, Ray Paul, Stan Pappas and Al Davidson.

Candidates for the six executive offices will each give a one-minute speech. Because of time, candidates for council seats will only be introduced.

Election Commissioner Rick Aguilar made it clear that no political parties were to be formed before the convention, but following the convention, candidates are free to unite as long as they do not use names or initials of previously existing parties.

ASSOCIATED STUDENT PRESIDENT:

Bill May and Dave Oley, whose statements appear separately, are campaigning for the office of AS President.

VICE PRESIDENT:

Gail Margolin states, "It is the responsibility of the Vice President to help plan activities which will be of interest to the students and which will encourage their participation."

"I have been active in student government for three semesters and feel I have the necessary experience, interest and enthusiasm to fulfill the responsibilities required for the office of Vice President."

Larry Thurwell comments, "I am qualified for the office of Vice President because I have been active in every area of student government."

"If I am elected I will institute the following: 1) Better communications between the students and the Student Council through a Vice President bulletin. 2) Survey the opinions of the students on such things as the distribution of sites of the Guardsman, and the placement of College Hour blackboards, etc. 3) In social committees, I will institute policies to keep the cost down on dances which are paid for by the Associated Students."

Rosalee Weiner hopes, if elected, "To carry out and set up a full social calendar for the fall semester. Other than that, I would have to wait to see who is elected to the presidency, and to see if I am elected before it would be proper for me to state all that I hope to do."

"But most important of all I urge all students to vote this semester. Remember, no AS card is needed."

AMS PRESIDENT:

Jim Fuller brought forward the idea that "the increase of new students will necessitate experience in AMS and student government so that the confidence gained at the Oakland Orientation Center for the Blind is shown in the recreation enjoyed by these people. Socials are planned and put on by the students themselves. Though sighted people are welcome, they are not asked to help out with the serving of refreshments."

Confidence-building experiences such as these and others have meant that many women students who now perform all their normal duties as housewives.

The Oakland Orientation Center for the Blind will soon close out this chapter in its story of success, as a new highway will be taking over part of the property. Yet, a new chapter will soon begin as plans are going ahead for the relocation of the center.

'Dedication' Drives Council Into Unprecedented Sunday Session

It's called dedication! Because of the cancellation of two meetings for Business and Prep Days, Associated Student President Dan Collins will call his Student Council to order in a special meeting at 7:30 p.m. this Sunday.

This action is necessitated because of limited time on which to act on next semester's budgets.

With budget action already begun, the council has processed the budgets for drama, dean of women, dean of men, executive expenses and the Freshman Class.

In addition, nominations were opened for the Freshman seats on council vacated by Terry Foulkes and Charles Miller. Those nominated were Ernest Gash, Imogene Walker and Richard Gray.

Fred Fitzgerald, gunnery coach here, said that the college's expert shooting team displayed superior marksmanship by defeating U. S. Coast Guard, S. F. Police, U. S. Navy and four other top ranking gunnery clubs.

Displaying similar shooting ability, he explained, was the college's marksmanship squad who also won first place trophies at the Oakland matches.

Campus policemen winning individual championship medals were Gerald De Gerolana, David Sheehan, Steven Thatcher and William Wilson.

Last month the pistol team competed at the California Rifle and Pistol Association's state championship matches at Fort Ord, California, where they defeated top statewide gunnery champions.

Dave Oley's Statement:

"Selecting officers is one of the most important responsibilities of the individual student in college. These officers will represent you throughout Fall '62. They are your voice to the faculty, administration and community."

"This semester, as a member of Student Council, I have found one factor in student government of paramount importance. The executive officer must exert leadership—a forward drive to meet problems that confront the student body."

"This leadership should be exerted in an effective, responsible manner. In short, the essential criterion is, responsible leadership."

"If elected as your Associated Student president for the fall semester, I will at all times strive to serve conscientiously, and to the best of my ability."

the AMS President can start immediately with the new students and Student Council in organizing a more effective AMS program.

"As an officer in the AMS this semester I have observed, first hand, the procedures and methods of effectively co-ordinating the AMS program."

Bob Rihetti emphasized, "The road to hell is paved with good intentions. I will make no promises that I cannot keep. If I am elected I will bring the student body into student government. I will attempt to get the ideas of the majority and not just a minority."

"I know that all of the people cannot be pleased all of the time, yet I intend to try to please all of the people most of the time."

AMS PRESIDENT:

Susan Fitzpatrick is the only candidate for the AMS Presidency, so she is automatically elected. "Aside from the regular AMS activities planned for the fall semester will be an auction sponsored by the AMS."

"Highlighting my plans will be a Women's Day at the college. This will be a day when the women students take over all the administrative posts on campus."

SOPHOMORE CLASS PRESIDENT:

Four students are running for Sophomore president, Vince Contreras, Jim Horan, Larry Malbaum and Phil Robbins.

FRESHMAN CLASS PRESIDENT:

Candidates for the office of Freshman president are Rick Thomas and Nick Zlatonovich.

SOPHOMORE COUNCIL SEATS:

Twelve candidates are campaigning for the seven Sophomore seats on council: Sam Andrews, Mike Caldwell, Ed Cecil, Marcia Devlin, Rich Gray, John Hommes, Jane Kayser, Bill Miles, Harvey Samuels, Austin Thompson, Peggy Thon-Wornden and Pauline Walil.

FRESHMAN COUNCIL SEATS:

Only nine of the 16 nominees for Freshman seats on council have become candidates: Art Dassow, Katie Dwyer, Ernest Gash, Pete Montonen, Alan Pioletti, Lerrita Fruedencind, Tony Reyes and Walter Rice.

Siska Again -- Netters Roll To NC Crown!

Championship Netters Enter State Title Meet

By John McShane

Based on their showing in the North Sectional championship, certain members of the Ram Big Eight title-holding tennis team will participate in the State Junior College championships Friday and Saturday at Long Beach.

Ram star Bob Siska could possibly be the top contender in the state-wide matches from the northern sector.

Trackmen Invade Modesto Nor Cal Meet Saturday

Local trackmen, sparked by the trio of Alex Darnes, Lon Brantley and George Holland, will invade Modesto Saturday to compete in the Northern California College championships.

Darnes, an ex-Polytechnic High track star, was the best discus thrower in Northern California last year, with a mark of 154-9/4, and is unbeaten so far this season.

Other members who qualified in the Big Eight meet are Claude Shipp, 100 and 220-yard dash; Elbert Robinson, discus; Brantley, Holland and Herb Briscoe, broad jump, and Andy Loobey, mile.

Tim Power, 440 and mile; Rich Byer and Steve Jackson, two-mile, will also attempt to stack up points for the Rams in the meet.

In a May 15 sprint and 440 trials, the relay team, along with Shipp and Power, participated to qualify in the Northern California meet.

Best times for individuals competing are Darnes' 173-3 in the discus, Brantley's 24-1 in the broad jump, Shipp's 9.9 in the 100-yard dash and 22.1 in the 220-yard dash, Robinson's 140 in the discus and Holland's 23-8 in the broad jump.

Ray Hearne took a second in the high jump, Darnes took a first place in the discus with a heave of 154-9/4, Elvin Bridges and Othello Carr took first and third positions in the broad jump.

The mile relay team and Frank James, two-miler, also placed within the top four.

Paul Rundell To Speak At Block SF Dinner June 4 Honoring Lettermen

Final confirmation that Paul Rundell, San Francisco State College basketball coach, will be guest speaker for the Block SF Society's awards banquet, slated for Monday, June 4, was made last week by society sponsor, Louis Vasquez.

Special awards, trophies and an award honoring the most valuable player in each sport will highlight the dinner which will be given in Smith Hall, Vasquez stated.

Team jackets will be awarded to the soccer, tennis and basketball teams by virtue of winning their respective sports championships.

The main event of the banquet will be the presentation of block letters to spring athletes, Vasquez added.

Persons receiving blocks two years in a row will be awarded team jackets.

Approximately 70 athletes are expected to attend the semiannual affair, to receive their respective awards.

Originally scheduled to speak at the banquet was Howie Dallmar, Stanford basketball coach, but he had to withdraw because of a previous engagement.

Rams Grab Singles, Doubles Titles At Monterey Peninsula

By David Kleinberg

In a near repeat of last week's performance, tenacious Bob Siska won the single's title then came back with teammate Ed Jilka to capture the double's crown to lead the college to the Northern California Sectional tennis championship.

The Rams scored 10 to runnerup Menlo's six and Modesto's five last Friday and Saturday at Monterey Peninsula College.

The fabulous 19-year-old Siska, improving consistently with each match, knocked over Fresno's Bill Carroll, 6-1, 6-3; in the semifinals and then committed near holocaust on Modesto's Ryder Getz, 6-1, 6-1, to win the title.

It was the third straight time this year the ex-Junior Davis Cupper had downed Getz.

Because Jack Kern and the doubles team of Kern and Anderson reached the quarterfinals before failing, the Rams will send two doubles squads and two singles to the State Tournament this weekend at Cerritos College in Norwalk.

Siska and Jilka easily disposed of Hartnell's Dave Schmickrath and Hank Perez in straight sets, 6-1, 6-1, in the semifinals, but had some difficulty against recalcitrant Ron Priceman and Leon Mayberg of Menlo before prevailing, 6-4, 6-4.

After breaking Priceman's service in the second set they glided in with little trouble.

Elated Coach Roy Diederichsen, whose squad went through the Big Eight season without a defeat and captured the conference championship last week, said, "This is a tremendous victory for Siska. He really played great. Getz went to the state finals last year."

"Bobby just clobbered him. He did everything necessary to beat Getz. He crowded the net well, he volleyed good, and hit hard to Getz' backhand. His serve is much stronger now than in early season. He looks a good bet to gain the finals and win the state meet."

"Definitely, without a doubt, he's the best player I've ever coached."

In the quarterfinals Kern lost to Getz, 6-1, 6-3, and the doubles combo of Anderson and Kern fell to Priceman and Mayberg, 6-4, 6-1.

Because he competed in the state tournament, third-seeded Tom Edlefsen, upset by Siska last week, did not enter for Oakland City College.

Baseballers Finish Last

Santa Rosa pounded pitchers John Pearce and George Tauber for five runs in the sixth inning, then went on to hand the Rams their 11th defeat of the year, 8-1, in the season closer last Friday at Santa Rosa.

The five-run outbreak gave the Bear Cubs a 7-1 lead and thereafter were never threatened.

Pearce shut out Santa Rosa for the first four innings, then was touched for two runs in the fifth and then the explosion. The Rams won three.

RAMBLINGS

By Jerry Littrell

MANY PERSONS reminisce about how things were in the Good Ol' Daze. (Example on Page 3.) Changes are noted in areas ranging from the automobile to coat racks.

Another change has taken place right here at the college in areas of recreation. In past years as time for commencement drew near, the sophomores and faculty would get together for their own personal "day of reckoning."

Each semester they would challenge each other to a softball or basketball game (depending on the season), usually held on the practice football field or in the men's gymnasium. These games were taken quite seriously—with tongue in cheek, that is.

The Professors, brimming with confidence and hope for any upcoming game, held "secret training camps" and secret "workouts" before the "crucial series."

The Sophs, brimming with overconfidence, usually came into the game cold but nevertheless lost most of the contests.

DISCUS THROW artist Alex Darnes uncorks a mighty heave in a recent tuneup for the upcoming Northern California Junior College meet this weekend at Modesto.

Al Darnes Wins Discus With 169-6 In West Coast Relays At Fresno

Although broad jumpers Lon Brantley and George Holland failed to place, Alex Darnes got off his second best discus throw of the year, 169-6, to take first place in the West Coast Relays last Saturday at Fresno.

In fact, if Darnes didn't place the college would have been blanked. The 5-10, 220-pounder's first gave the Rams five points and an 18th place finish.

Brantley, who has leaped 24-1 this year, managed only 22-2 Saturday, and Compton's Lester Pollar won the event with 23-6. Holland jumped 22-5.

Darnes, who has a pending national mark of 173-3, downed second place John Parks of Reedley by nine feet. Darnes, Holland, Brantley, Andy Loobey, Claude Shipp and Elbert Robinson will make the trip to Modesto this weekend for the Northern California championships.

Shipp has been clocked around 10 flat for the 100; Robinson has thrown about 142 feet in the discus and Loobey is around 4:30 in the mile.

Bring Back The Good Old Softball Daze

These series produced such names as Louis "Sluggo" Batmale, Lee "Charger" Elsan and O. E. "Andy" Anderson, just to name a few still active participants.

Students were tabbed with nicknames ranging from "Fireball" to "The Twister."

Then for some unknown reason (Students claimed the Profs lost interest; Profs claimed vice versa) these games were cancelled.

Response to the Elephant Races has not been entirely favorable, so resumption of the Prof-Soph games might possibly be the answer to instilling a shot of spirit into an otherwise becalmed college student body.

The faculty is loaded with talent. Physical education instructors could finally get the chance to display the theories they have been teaching, while the students could have their last chance to display the "youth-over-experience" theory.

We doubt that any major league scouts would be interested in the outcome, but they could provide two of the most laugh-packed hours of the year. The talent is there: Where is the Spirit?

ZPS To Battle Collegiate 5 In AMS Smoker

An all-important playoff round in both leagues of the Associated Men Student - sponsored intramural competition took place last Wednesday night in the woman's gymnasium to decide the league winners for both the Inter-Club league and the Inter-Fraternity league.

The two top club teams, the Collegiate Five and the Divine Ones, provided a fast moving, top notch game in which the consistent scoring of the Divine Ones' John Giles failed to stop the unrelenting attacks of the fast-breaking Collegiate Fives, who eventually won, 60-51.

Gamma Phi Ypsilon and Zeta Phi Sigma provided action in the IFC league, the Zetas squeezing through at the finish to top Gamma Phi Ypsilon 17-16 in the lowest scoring game of the season.

In the men's gymnasium, the Newman Club trounced the Campus Police team, 52-36.

The AMS Smoker Friday, May 25, will feature the two top teams, the Collegiate Five and Zeta Phi Sigma, in an inter-league championship tilt.

The smoker will also feature an intramural boxing show, put on by boxing coach Roy Diederichsen, and the intramural volleyball playoffs.

Details concerning the smoker can be obtained from AMS President Fred Cherniss in the Associated Student office, S-134.

Admission to the smoker will be free of charge to all AS cardholders, Cherniss said.

Swimmers Dunk Sacto To Finish Fourth In Season

Copping a fourth place in the Big Eight Conference with a 2-3 record, the swimming team showed vast improvement all year with a great majority of the representative members attaining their best seasonal times in the Northern California championship.

In winning their two meets, the Rams knocked over Sacramento and gained victory against Santa Rosa when the latter dropped out of league competition.

Best times of individual team members were Chuck Greninger's 440 and 1500 meter free style, who broke two records with a 5:09.4 and 20:41.5 respective clocking in these events.

The 440-free style record was set in the Big Eight championship meet while the 1500-meter free style mark was broken in the Big Eight meet, with a 21:03.0, and then bettered in the Northern California meet, 20:41.5.

Herm Fruchtenicht, 100-yard breast stroke, 1:09.9; Bill Love, 100-yard backstroke, 1:01.2; Eli Silver, 100-yard free style, 54.8, and John Holm, 100-yard breast stroke, 1:09.9, had their best efforts against competitors in the Northern California meet.

The medley relay team, comprised of Love, Holm, Mark Haskell and Silver, had its best clocking in the Northern California meet with a 4:07.3.

Diver Rollin Randall had his best day against Oakland when he racked up 118.5 points for the locals.

The free style relay, made up of Haskell, Love, Silver and Holm, had its best day in the dual meet against Stockton with a 4:00.2 timing.

Against the Bulldogs of San Mateo, John Vida had his top performance in the 220-yard individual medley with a 2:49.4.

Coach Roy Burkhead looks to Greninger, Fruchtenicht, Love, Randall, Haskell, Webster and Bill Watson as a top carry-over team for the Ram next year.

2. Stockton 4 1
